LAST VISIT—Serge L. Cincotta and other members of the family sit beside the candle-lit flag draped casket of his son, Tom, in St. Raphael's Church. A guitar mass was offered yesterday at the church for the 19-year-old Marine, who fell in battle after giving up a chance to leave Vietnam.

Requiem For A Vietnam Marine

Family, Friends Gather For Tom Cincotta Rites

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

(from the Gospel of St. John, quoted in the eulogy to Pfc. Thomas Cincotta)

By LARRY D. HATFIELD

The three rifle salutes echoed back from the bare slopes of Quail Hill, muffled drumbeats of history.

A fleeting shiver touched the warm air as taps drifted down the hill, a requiem for yesterday's young men, a banshee for tomorrow's.

A Marine Corps major knelt before the solemn-faced boy and gave him the folded flag from his big brother's coffin near the grave at San Rafael's Mount Olivet cemetery.

The boy stood and handed the flag to his parents.

Pressing the flag to her, Mrs. Serge L. Cincotta stood and faced the relatives, friends — and some strangers — who had come to Mount Olivet to mourn her fallen son, Tom, killed in Vietnam 11 days before.

Mrs. Cincotta, in a simple white dress squared with red and blue lines, stood erect under the bright sky, turned blue now from the morning's earlier bullet gray.

Softly and eloquently, she said she prayed her son's death was not in vain. She spoke of the war that has divided the nation and begged her hushed listeners to understand that her son, who would have been 19 a week ago yesterday, died for what he believed in.

She and her family realized, she said, there were many who opposed the war and pleaded with those people to understand that Tom Cincotta believed he was fighting to defend their right to oppose it.

"We've got a great countey," she had said before the funeral. "He died for what he believed. He died for his country. We hope it was not in vain. We hope people will remember those boys who are still there."

Earlier, at the guitar mass at St. Raphael's Church, Betsy Chapman of San Rafael had sung words that echoed what Tom Cincotta's mother had been saying since she and her husband learned of his death from one of his Marine buddies in Vietnam:

"Whether I'm right or whether I'm wrong,

"I've got to believe . . .

"I can't be right for somebody else.

"If I'm not right for me . . .

"I've got to be free . . .

"Daring to try, to do or to die

"I've got to be me."

More than 600 persons attended the mass, including San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, a second cousin who

TERRA LINDA COMPLAINTS

Teens Defend Park Gatherings; Deputies Deny Patrols Are Lax

By TOM COCKRELL

Unease over an alleged invasion of a Terra Linda neighborhood park by unruly teen-agers is putting residents on edge and posing problems for Marin County sheriff's officers.

It is fast becoming a community issue in the Orange Blossom Lane-Orris Terrace area where little Oleander Park is located.

"We've got a nasty situation here and its only a matter of time until a serious incident occurs," Cecelia Martz, vice chairman of the Terra Linda Recreation and Park District board, told the Independent-Journal.

"My phone has been ringing constantly," said John A. Colistra, chairman of the park board.

Phone calls from irate residents have reached sheriff's department switchboards at the rate of one every hour and a half for the past three nights, a department spokesman said.

Residents charge that gangs of 30 to 60 youths congregate nightly to hold impromptu boxing matches, drink wine, beer and "harder stuff" and drag race along Oleander Drive. Park watchers also hint at illicit sex taking place in dark corners of the park.

They say the situation is becoming intolerable and blame difficulties on failure of the sheriff's office to police the area adequately.

There are also charges of adults selling liquor to youths from trucks driven to the area at night.

But teen-agers in the park answer that they simply have no place else to go.

"We'd rather be anywhere than here. We just want something to do," said one Marinwood youth who hitchhikes to the park each night.

Marin County Juvenile Officer Harvey Teague places part of the blame for the problem on dissatisfaction of teen-agers with formal, structured recreation

Nixon Issues Warning On Health Care Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon said today the nation faces "a massive crisis" in health care and placed his seal of approval on a collection of proposals to do something about it.

Nixon told newsmen that demand for health care is increasing so much faster than the supply of professionals and facilities available that there could be a national breakdown in the area unless action is taken within two to three years.

The President helped unveil an eight-page "Report on the Health of the Nation's Health Care System," signed by Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare and Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, assistant secretary-designate.

Finch and Egeberg listed a broad variety of concrete moves, proposals and ideas that, where not previously adopted, have at least been under wide discussion in Congress and within the HEW department.

Much of the report's emphasis was on spiraling costs of the medicaid program, which was described as "badly conceived and badly organized."

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance Committee searched for ways to stop the climbing costs of medicare and medicaid programs without extensive government intervention in fees charged by physicians and hospitals.

Medicare provides help for sick people 65 years of age and older. Medicaid is a joint federal-state program to provide medical care for needy persons.

President's Son, Herbert Hoover, Dies

PASADENA (AP) — Herbert Hoover Jr. shunned publicity most of his life and when he died at age 65 yesterday there were no press announcements of his passing.

The son of the late president served as the No. 2 man in the State Department from 1954 to 1957 under the late John Foster Dulles.

Hoover died in Huntington Community Hospital which said he had been hospitalized for about a week. Spokesman declined to name the illness or give the cause of death.

Hoover once said there were three ingredients that made life worth living for him—the outdoors, far away places and mining engineering.

Shunning politics most of his life, Hoover, an engineer like his father, made his professional mark as an inventor and administrator in the fields of mining, radio and electronic engineering.

It was his experience in oil mining that brought him reluctantly into public life. Serving as a trouble shooter for Dulles, Hoover was instrumental in healing the rift between the British and the Iranians over the nationalization of British-held oil concessions in 1954. Shortly after the success of his work in the oil dispute he was named undersecretary of state.

Two Senators Critical Of Save-Bay Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Proposals for a commission to preserve San Francisco Bay from filling and uncontrolled development encountered criticism today from two members of the Senate Finance Committee.

Sens. John Schmitz, R-Tustin, and Ralph Dills, D-Gardena raised objections as proponents of save-the-bay bills presented their measures before the committee.

Without passage of legislation this year, the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, which now controls filling of the bay, would die.

The committee is expected to take the measures under study and put together its own bill.

Some 500 people packed a hearing room and many of them applauded witnesses who spoke in favor of the bills.

Dills told Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-Atherton, one of the authors, that his bill could cost the state general fund money. He said the San Francisco Bay Commission created by the Dolwig measure might seek to condemn property, and the state would have to pay the costs.

Gromyko For Closer Tie To Washington

Red China Assailed In Speech

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko condemned Red China today and made a bid for developing friendly relations with the United States.

Gromyko, in a major foreign policy speech before the Supreme Soviet—parliament—said the Kremlin favors talks with Washington "to find positions of agreement both on questions of bilateral relations and on unresolved international problems."

He warned Peking that attempts to use armed force against the Soviet Union "will be met with the necessary rebuff."

TALKS EYED

Despite the belligerent tone, he expressed readiness to hold talks with China "on a wide range of questions" but gave no indication that the Mao Tse-tung leadership had shown interest.

Gromyko's one-hour and 50-minute speech showed an increased Soviet willingness to deal with Washington and a hardening hostility toward China. It apparently reflected a pro-Western change in Kremlin foreign policy following a series of bloody incidents on the Soviet-Chinese border.

The Soviet foreign minister proposed talks on Berlin to prevent trouble from flaring up there again. The Kremlin attitude toward the divided city has been considered a barometer of its interest in getting along with the West.

ASIAN SYSTEM

Gromyko, after assailing China, spoke favorably of the possibilities of a Soviet-inspired collective security system in Asia. The Soviet Communist Party general secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, proposed this June 7 at the world Communist conference, obviously meaning it as a device to contain China.

Gromyko claimed the proposal had aroused widespread interest in Asia.

His bitter criticism of Peking contrasted with marked mildness toward the United States. He passed lightly over Vietnam, which used to rate long diatribes here, and used a conciliatory tone in other references to

TRUSTEES' ACTION

Hayakawa Now Permanent Boss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — S.I. Hayakawa advanced from temporary to permanent president of troubled San Francisco State College today with blessings from Gov. Ronald Reagan and criticism from faculty.

But Hayakawa, a jaunty, soft-voiced language expert from Mill Valley, left the door open "slightly" that he might seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate next year. (See another trustees story, page 19.)

Republican Reagan said of the 63-year-old campus leader, "He is an example throughout the country of the relatively small group that have stood firm" in college disruptions.

Reagan and other state college trustees voted 16-2 yesterday to name Hayakawa permanent San Francisco State president.

As acting president since last fall, Hayakawa called in hundreds of police to keep the campus open through four months of violence, bombings, charges of police brutality and student vandalism.

He promised yesterday to work "quietly" to improve the campus, peaceful since strikes by students and faculty ended earlier this year.

Hayakawa's critics called him a poor administrator, "a master dramatist," and an ambitious seeker of political office.

Regarding rumors he may seek a U.S. Senate seat, Hayakawa said: "The door is still slightly open but I haven't got much time to think about it."

Reagan and Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the 19-campus college system smiled and shook Hayakawa's hand after his appointment was announced.

Hayakawa moved last fall from a part-time job on the San Francisco State faculty to the president's chair after appeals for a firm stand against striking students impressed Dumke and other college trustees.

The strike involved student demands for a black studies department and additional programs for minority group students.

Hayakawa's appointments as acting and permanent president bypassed a regular faculty committee named to search for a campus president.

The committee suggested that San Francisco faculty give Hayakawa a vote of no confidence. But Dumke and Reagan said the appointment followed regular procedure.

Trustee Edward O. Lee of Oakland, a Negro, said of Hayakawa, "He spent more time building his image than building a college."

McInnis Explains Why Upton Was Replaced

John F. McInnis, chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, declared today he refused to renominate Dr. William F. Upton for appointment to the county planning commission because he "totally ignored" criticism of planning operations.

In a press statement he said was intended to "summarize my views . . . now that a little time has passed and possibly some perspective gained," McInnis said.

"During a period of over two years . . . I voiced loud and clear criticism and complaints of our planning operation. I had no desire to dictate to the commission, but I believe that I am obliged to raise pertinent criticism as I see it and I believe that the commission is obliged to consider criticism arising from responsible persons or agencies. . . .

"My questions and criticism were totally ignored by the man holding the position which I was to fill by appointment. If he would not respond to me, how could I expect him to respond to the public which we both served. . . ."

Under a system through which supervisors have largely unchallenged powers to appoint planning commissioners from their districts, McInnis chose Marinwood insurance man Jack G. Nixon to replace Upton, a San Rafael dentist and a conservationist. McInnis said at the time of Nixon's unanimous appointment June 17 that he was not voting against Upton, but that "I wish to bring a younger person for a perhaps more vigorous approach and in my opinion representative of the newer element of Marin County."

Upton had served on the commission for 16 years, but McInnis said in his statement that the commission "is not a private club in which time-in-service generates a proprietary membership."

Nixon was one of McInnis's key campaign leaders when he was elected to the board of supervisors in 1966.

"Jack nixon was one of the first names suggested to me by various others," McInnis said. "Several others were proposed and given serious consideration, but Mr. Nixon stayed in the category of 'most desirable.' Far from it being a 'political payoff' as some have suggested, at various times he indicated to me that he would prefer that I not ask him to take the appointment."

McInnis said that, on Nixon's recommendation, he asked management counsultant Edward M. Lewis of Los Ranchitos to take the post, but "it developed that Mr. Lewis' work simply would not permit the planning commission activity and I then directly asked Jack Nixon to accept the appointment. I know that many others had urged him to do so and he accepted."

Fying Lessons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pat Nixon says she once took flying lessons from a boyfriend while in college, but never got a pilot's license because the romantic attachment didn't last long enough.

The President's wife made the disclosure at a White House party for some 200 woman pilots who have flown in the Powder Puff Derby, a transcontinental air race for women.

Winner of this year's derby was Mrs. Mara Culp, 27, who comes from the President's hometown of Whittier.

Eye Surgery

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Tran Van Huong of South Vietnam was reported recovering from eye surgery and resuming work today at his official residence.

Huong, 65, left his office a week ago to undergo treatment for his eyes. Informants said he had been operated on by American doctors and that the surgery apparently corrected his ailment, glaucoma.

Trial Begins

ALGIERS (AP) — A trial of 182 officers and men of the Algerian army, accused of an attempted coup d'etat in December 1967, opened today in Oran, western Algeria.

The allged leader of the coup was being tried in absentia. Former Col. Tahar Zbiri, once army chief of staff, fled the country after the coup failed.

The majority of the accused are officers and noncommissioned officers. Civilian figures included Laroussi Khelifa, a minister under former President Ahmed Ben Bella.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The condition of British actress-singer Marianne Faithful showed "marked improvement" today following her collapse in a Sydney hotel suite yesterday, a hospital spokesman said.

At An 'End'

LONDON (AP) — A man rare coin dealers called the world's greatest counterfeiter was sentenced to two years in prison yesterday. His comment: "All good things must come to an end."

Dealers had said there was no such thing as a rare coin counterfeiter — but that was before Anthony Dennington, 33, began flooding the world's coin markets with pieces fashioned from old jewelry. Police said he used moulds made of denture powder.

Noticing the glut, British and American dealers asked Scotland Yard to investigate. When detectives raided Dennington's Chelsea apartment they found 2,000 coins and 500 moulds.

Syria Given Arms By Red Chinese?

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria has received $15 million in weapons as a gift from Communist China in the past few days Al Sayyad magazine reported here today.

These arms have already been deployed on the cease-fire line with Israel, the weekly claimed, without giving details on the weapons.

Al Sayyad's report appeared speculative in view of Syrian President Noureddin Atassi's current visit to the Soviet Union.

SITTING ON REPORT?

Wisconsin Demo Blasts Agency Over DDT Paper

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gaylord A. Nelson has charged the Department of Agriculture with sitting on a report condemning the general use of DDT.

Agriculture officials denied any such report exists, but did announce yesterday the department had ordered a temporary halt in the use of nine persistent or long-lasting pesticides including DDT — in government pest control programs.

The Wisconsin Democrat called on Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin to ban use of the toxic pesticide altogether.

Nelson said the department has kept the report quiet because "they haven't done anything about it."

Dr. G. W. Irving Jr., administrator of the USDA's agricultural research service, and Harry W. Hays, director of the pesticides regulation division, said no such recommendations have been made to Hardin.

"If there had been a report I would have known about it," Irving said.

Nelson acknowledged the report may not yet have reached Hardin's desk. But he added: "There is no doubt in my mind the report exists."

He contended the department's temporary halt to use of DDT in its own programs was a "ridiculous palliative" designed to assuage public opinion.

"The Department of Agriculture is America's worst offender," Nelson asserted. "It is locked in with the agricultural interests that use DDT."

Nelson said Hardin set up a special intradepartmental committee to study the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council Report On Persistent Pesticides.

The USDA committee recommended a ban on aerial dusting with DDT and use of the pesticide in "aquatic areas"—near lakes, rivers and streams, he said.

Bobby Baker Is Now Facing Fraud, Antikickback Counts

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Baker, once a protege of Lyndon B. Johnson and secretary to the Democratic Majority in the Senate, will be charged next week with violations of civil fraud and antikickback statutes, says an assistant attorney general.

William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Department of Justice civil division, said Baker was never indicted "under any antikickback statutes. When the Nixon administration entered office we decided to review the case."

Ruckelshaus added yesterday that the government will ask for triple damages. "We are trying to recover some of the money," he said, declining further comment until the suit "is reviewed in its final version by Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and filed early next week."

Baker, now 39, is free on bond pending his appeal on his 1967 conviction on seven counts of theft, income tax evasion and conspiracy. At last report he was deep into several successful business ventures.

Baker was accused of stealing most of the $96,600 he received from California savings and loan executives who thought they were making political contributions, evading $23,000 in income taxes, and conspiring to write off some of this money on the tax returns of a Washington lobbyist.

Ruckelshaus talked about the suit while in Chicago yesterday for a speech at the national convention of the Young Republicans.

A Justice Department spokesman, asked for comment on Ruckelshaus remarks declined, indicating that too much might have been said already. "There's no precedent for this sort of thing around here."

Egypt Says Israeli Suez Camp Is Held

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt claimed its forces sneaked across the Suez Canal today and held an Israeli position north of Ismailia for three hours without any Israeli interference. Israel denied it.

Maj. Tibor Yonash, an Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv, said: "Up to now there have been no Egyptian attacks. No damage was discovered and no signs of enemy action were found."

An Egyptian military communique said two infantry detachments supported by military engineers, "planted explosive charges and blew up all fortifications and equipment in the position."

"The surprise attack paralyzed all precautionary counter measures taken by the enemy and he could not interfere in any way for nearly three hours," it continued. "Our force returned to base without suffering any casualties."

Herbert Hoover Jr. Dies; Shunned Political Spotlight

when things are put to you as a matter of duty to serve your country, it is extraordinarily difficult to say 'no'," Hoover said of his duties as undersecretary.

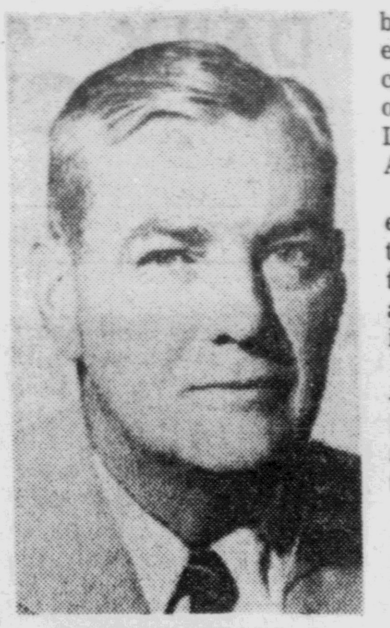
He was said to be upset when rumors circulated early in 1956 that he might replace then Vice President Nixon as President Dwight D. Eisenhower's running mate.

"I do not wish to be disrespectful," he said at the time, "but I have not the slightest interest in politics."

Hoover said his fondest memories were of far off places where he mined for gold and explored for oil and not of the years his father spent in the White House as the 31st president. He was 25 when his father became president in 1929. Already married, he busied himself in research and engineering positions at Harvard Business School, Western Air Express, and Transcontinental and Western Air during his father's four-year term.

Born in London in 1903, he earned a bachelor's degree at Stanford and then went on to get a master's from Harvard.

In his mid twenties Hoover suffered a two-year bout with tuberculosis. He wore a hearing aid from age 14 when a severe case of influenza left him deaf in his left ear.



HERBERT HOOVER JR.
Engineering, not politics

Survivors include his widow, Margaret Watson Hoover, a brother Allan, 62, Greenwich, Conn.; two sons, Herbert Hoover III, San Marino, and William Bowles Hoover, Sunnyvale, and a daughter, Mrs. Richard Brigham, West Chester, Pa., and 11 grandchildren.

Hoover listed himself as a Republican but his hobbies and professional interests seemed to outstrip his political nature. He belonged to many professional engineering and petroleum societies and had been president of the International Radio Relay League and the International Amateur Radio Union.

Socially he was a member of exclusive clubs that included the Bohemian in San Francisco, the California in Los Angeles and the Metropolitan in Washington.

His hobbies included fishing —like his father—and he was a radio ham at 12 with his own shortwave radio amateur station.

He also served as president of the Automobile Club of Southern California, as a trustee of the University of Southern California and as a board member of several corporations.

As an oil-exploration engineer and geologist he worked at various times for the governments of Iran, Peru, Venezuela, Chile and Brazil.

The family requested that contributions be made to the Patient Assistance Fund of the Huntington Memorial Hospital.

There was no press announcement of the death and newsmen learned of it from a paid classified in a newspaper.

A private funeral will be held at Pasadena's All-Saints Episcopal Church at 2 p.m. Monday.

Astromonk's Temperature Death Cause

HONOLULU (AP) — Bonny, the astromonk, died of a heart attack probably brought on by his lowered body temperature, says a preliminary report issued following a six-hour autopsy by a dozen scientists.

A final autopsy report on the monkey which died 12 hours after returning to earth is not expected for months, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said yesterday.

Dr. W. Ross Adey, the space project's chief investigator said the fatal drop in Bonny's temperature may have been due to his immobilization in weightlessness and a too-cool capsule during the nearly nine-day flight.

Temperatures in the tiny spaceship ranged from 68 to 70 degrees, but Adey said astronauts have complained of being too chilly when their capsule was kept at 70 degrees.

Red Satellite Up

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched satellite No. 289 in the unmanned Cosmos series today, Tass news agency said, adding that it was operating normally. The satellite is orbiting at a maximum distance of 210 miles from the earth and a minimum of 120 miles, Tass said.

Thai Leader Denies Defense Pact Secret

BANGKOK (AP) — Thai Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn admitted today the United States and Thailand signed an apparently unpublicized mutual defense agreement "three or four years ago," but denied it was secret.

"Call it what you will," Thanom said, "but it is not a secret agreement."

The existence of the pact was revealed in Washington by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the foreign relations committee. They claimed the United States had secretly broadened its commitment to Thailand during the Johnson administration.

Thanom told newsmen he signed the agreement with Lt. Gen. Richard G. Stilwell, then a major general and chief of the Joint U.S. Military Assistance Group in Bangkok. Stilwell now is in Vietnam.

The prime minister said the agreement was in accordance with the 1954 Southeast Asia Treaty Organization agreement but emphasized that the United States would send American troops to participate in "joint operations" with the Thais in defense against Communist aggression.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman refused to comment on either the existence of the agreement or on Thanom's statement. Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman, said: "I don't know what they are talking about."

Greyhound Tells Charter Swaps

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) Greyhound Lines Inc. says it has switched most of its charter business to other carriers, but not because of a strike by mechanics.

A spokesman, Kenneth Satron, declared yesterday that "every year about this time, our long lines business reaches a summer peak and we have to use all available buses to accommodate traveling vacationers."

Previously the firm said it had abandoned 17 commuter runs in the San Francisco Bay Area, but only because of a decline in passengers brought about by a vacation lull.

Fred Martin, an International Association of Machinists business agent, contended that both curtailments resulted from equipment breaking down during the walkout.

Blaze Destroys Yosemite Hotel

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (UPI)—Fire destroyed the famed Glacier Point hotel and adjacent Mountain House in Yosemite National Park last night. There were no injuries.

The 45-room hotel had been closed since winter when heavy snows left it heavily damaged. The management had started extensive remodeling and it was believed the fire started in the area under construction.

The Mountain House, which housed a dozen employees, a snack bar and a souvenir shop, sustained about $150,000 damage. The employees were not injured.

The fire damage was severe mainly because fire equipment had to come over 28 winding backcountry miles to get to the hotel.

An estimated 20,000 persons observed the blaze from the valley floor.

Bear Strikes Again In Yellowstone Park

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — Two tourists were attacked by a bear yesterday as they lay in their sleeping bags in Yellowstone National Park.

Neither of the victims, David Lou, 22, of Los Angeles, and Michael Rock, 23, of Carnegie, Pa., was injured seriously. Both suffered minor head wounds in the attacks and were in satisfactory condition.

Park rangers were mystified by the attacks, the second and third in the park this summer. All three attacks have been at the fishing bridge campground.

Last June 10, Daphne Jax, 5, of St. Paul, Minn., was mauled by an aging grizzly bear but she has recovered.

"From the description of the bear," Park Supt. Jack Anderson said of Wednesday's attacks, "we believe it is the same animal."

Anderson said the bear had not been captured. Rangers and others were searching the campground area. He said the bear was "large and brown".

Anderson said Lou was sleeping in a tent about 3 a.m. when the bear walked in and attacked him. About 30 minutes later and a quarter of a mile away, Rock was attacked as he lay in his sleeping bag outside his car.

Last Charges Dismissed In People's Park Mass Arrest

BERKELEY (UPI)—Charges have been dropped against 55 persons arrested during the battle over the People's Park, the last to be cleared of 432 picked up in a mass arrest on May 22.

There were no convictions in the 432 cases stemming from the mass arrest, which represented less than half of more than 900 arrests made during three weeks of sporadic violence.

After the first arraignments, Municipal Court Judge Floyd Talbot ruled that fingerprints and photographs obtained by booking officers at the mass arrest were inadmissable as evidence. He said such evidence was insufficient to prove those arrested were not just bystanders.

"The previous ruling leaves me little alternative," Municipal Court Judge George Brunn said yesterday when the last 55 cases came up. "In order to be consistent, I will dismiss the charges."

Of the 432 arrests, more than 80 were dropped without filing any charges.

IT'S WESTWARD HO, FOR BOTH THE AMERICAS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — North and South America are drifting westward over the Pacific Ocean at a rate of from one to six centimeters a year, says a scientist from the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

The speaker, Dr. N. Terence Edgar, was in San Francisco with engineers and scientists to report on the Glomar Challenger, a ship that can drill far into the earth's crust through 20,000 feet of ocean.

Cores taken from the Atlantic Ocean back a nine-year theory that huge underwater ridges are rising in oceans and pushing continents farther apart, he said.

The Americas, he continued, may be moving as much as six feet in a man's lifetime.

Finch Aide Going Back To Paper

WASHINGTON (UPI)—George L. Brand of San Luis Obispo has resigned as director of information in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Brand, a close friend of HEW Secretary Robert Finch who named him to the $28,976 post earlier this year, will return to the San Luis Obispo Telegram-Tribune as editor on Aug. 1 after taking a leave of absence from the paper Feb. 1.

Finch said yesterday he had noted Brand's efforts in HEW with "deep satisfaction." A successor has not been named.

Army Criticized Over Battle Tank Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major tank shortage may be developing because of the Army's preoccupation with the new, sophisticated and trouble-ridden Sheridan weapon system, says a House armed services investigating subcommittee.

"We need more tanks. I am not at all happy about our tank combat situation in Europe," said subcommittee Chairman Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., yesterday, in releasing a report on the Sheridan.

Further, the subcommittee accused the Army of trumping up a need for the Sheridan in 1959, pushing it into production before testing was complete, and covering up difficulties to keep budget funds flowing.

The tank strength in Europe has been sapped because the Army stopped making the mainstay M60 tank in 1967 while at the same time it was selling an unspecified number of the same model to Iran, Austria and Italy, the subcommittee said.

"Not only did the Army fail to maintain an adequate production rate of M60's during the 1960's, but they slowed down the production line and even closed it in 1967 to produce the M60E2, which still cannot be deployed because of deficiencies," the report said.

The E2 modification is an M60 tank fitted with a special turret that allows conventional shells and Shillelagh missiles to be fired from the same barrel.

The special turret is an offshoot of the Sheridan tank, which has been plagued by electronic difficulties, faulty ammunition, and mechanical breakdowns.

"Ten years of effort and some $1.2 billion have now been committed to the Sheridan-Shillelagh effort," the report said.

"Yet there is no convincing evidence that the system represents enough of an improvement in combat capability over existing weapons (used in a proper mix, or appropriately modified) to justify any such expenditures of time and money," it said.

Separately, Army spokesmen said the subcommittee did not give "full weight" to the combat performance of the Sheridan in Vietnam, where few have been deployed.

The Army said the Sheridan has increased fire power, mobility and over-all combat capability of armored cavalry units in the war zone. Problems "can be expected with the introduction of any new weapons system in combat situations."

Five To Life For Slaying Of Sheriff

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two San Quentin escapees, convicted of killing a deputy sheriff during an attempt to break out of the Lake County Courthouse, were sentenced yesterday to prison terms of from five years to life.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh also handed down sentences of from one year to life for Larry Taylor and John Lynn, both 24, because of the escape attempt.

Karesh said both attempted escape terms would be served after Lynn and Taylor complete current sentences being served for robbery and forgery, respectively.

Then, under the law, the second degree murder terms would be served when the attempted escape terms are completed.

Taylor and Lynn were captured after escaping from a San Quentin forestry camp and taken to Lakeport. They were convicted of killing Deputy William Hoyt in the courthouse during a struggle on Oct. 11, 1967, as the defendants were being moved from jail to a courtroom for arraignment. They had escaped six days earlier.

In passing sentence Wednesday, Judge Karesh said:

"Taylor is not a man of violence, but it is clear he is easily led and therefore a danger to society. Lynn, however, has a tremendous potential for violence. With these sentences both men will be in prison for a long, long time."

Auto Damaged By Fire, Crash

A Sausalito man escaped uninjured yesterday when his car caught fire, but the car was a casualty, firemen said.

Firemen reported Ferdinand A. Gnau of 25 Spencer Court was warming up his car at 3:10 p.m. when a broken fuel line ignited.

Gnau leaped from the car as flames licked up, and the unattended car rolled downhill to Spencer Avenue and slammed to a stop against a utility pole.

Firemen said fire damage was an estimated $100, but damage from the crash was more extensive.

Britain Offers Treaty On Bacterial Arms

GENEVA (AP) — Britain presented a draft treaty at the 19-nation disarmament conference today to ban the manufacture and use of bacteriological weapons.

But sources said the proposal, presented by Minister of State Fred Mulley, was not expected to draw support from the Soviet Union or its Communist allies at the talks.

The Soviets have argued that there is no need for a new treaty and have called on all nations to adhere to the Geneva protocol of 1925 banning chemical and bacteriological weapons. This is partly to embarrass the United States, which has not signed it.

In a message to the conference last week, President Richard M. Nixon said the U.S. delegation "is prepared to examine carefully together with other delegations, any approaches that offer the prospect of reliable arms control in this field."

Inverness Utility Budget Approved

A budget for 1969-70 was approved last night by the Inverness Public Utility District board.

William H. Thompson, a director, said the budget total was "substantially the same" as last year's, which amounted to $6,800. Thompson was not able to produce the exact figure.

The board also decided to hold its regularly scheduled meeting on the second Wednesday of each month, rather than the second Tuesday.

GOP Back In Fold, Reverse School Fund

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Republicans, seizing on a Democratic foulup, suddenly returned to Gov. Ronald Reagan's fold today and reversed house approval of a $372 million school aid measure.

Democrats and dissident Republicans had defied the governor yesterday by voting to increase a school aid bill from $200 million to $372 million.

They ignored Reagan's promise to cut down the money to the $120 million in the state budget.

But today, Republicans pointed out Democrats actually had placed the wrong amendments across the Assembly desk—amendments which did not include $57 million for city schools as thought.

"These amendments totally make the bill unsuable," said Assemblyman Victor Veysey, the reluctant author. He called the situation "hilarious."

Democratic Assemblyman Mike Cullen of Long Beach told Republicans "unfortunately the newspapers carried headlines of the Assembly defying the governor." But he said "if this house wants to send something to the governor he wants to veto, it's this house's privilege."

The vote to rescind the money boost amendments was a straight partyline 41-35—with all Republicans voting for the reversal.

The full bill will be taken up later.

Meanwhile, Sen. Stephen P. Teale, author of another school bill in the Senate, disclosed he will prune his $211 million measure down to the $120 million.

cently resigned at San Francisco State, and Hayakawa still is faced with setting up an ethnic studies department promised as a settlement to the student strike.

Trustees also announced other major appointments, including Ellis McCune as permanent president of Hayward State College; Hobart W. Burns, acting president of San Jose State College, and Carl Gatlin, from the Drexel Institute of Technology in Pennsylvania, president of Stanislaus State College.

Trustees also named Alvin Marks, an educator and recent head of Skymark Airlines, as dean of student affairs for the college system and Lee R. Kerschner, a political scientist, as dean of faculty affairs.

The board of trustees formally approved a student fee increase of about $6 a school year. It also adopted new rules spelling out college presidents' power to declare emergencies and suspend students without hearings.

The board approved a construction budget request of $172 million for 1970-71. The final figure will be decided by Reagan and the Legislature next year.

Trustees also listened to a report on problems at Sacramento State College in the wake of the resignation last May of President Robert Johns.

College officials reported that they will work with the State finance department on a study of Sacramento State expenditures. A state auditor general's report had criticized Johns' handling of out-of-state travel and campus expenses for bleachers and food service contracts.

Dumke said the auditor general's office "was trying to smear us," adding that his own office also was making an investigation.

After an audit committee meeting earlier yesterday, trustee George Hart of Ross issued a strong statement about Dumke's administration.

Reporters asked Hart later if he was asking for Dumke's resignation.

"No," Hart replied.

His statement read, that "the stewardship of the chancellor together with certain members of his staff should be critically reviewed by the trustees at an early date with the view of making some long overdue changes in personnel."

But Hart said he was not planning on asking for such a review until sometime next fall.

He also said that the colleges' file on president Johns should be given to the Sacramento County district attorney.

Afterwards, Dumke refused to comment on Hart's blast.

Firemen Ask Higher Wage In Novato

Novato firemen, stating that they were paid less than four other fire departments in Marin County, last night asked for an unspecified increase in wages, according to Assistant Fire Chief Alvin S. Butti.

Lt. Raymond E. Dougherty gave the comparison of Novato, $770 monthly pay with top firemen's wages in San Rafael at $896.50, Mill Valley at $849.45, San Anselmo, $831.10, and Sausalito, $820.37.

No comparison was made with other departments in Marin County.

Novato firemen work 73 hours per week compared to an average of 66 in the four other departments, he said.

The Novato fire commissioners wanted more information on the step programs of other departments and the differences between firemen, lieutenants, captains, assistant chiefs and chiefs in wages and fringe benefits, Butti said.

The board set 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday at the main fire station to get the additional information and continue the discussion of salaries and fringe benefits, Butti said.

Washington, stressing the desirability of talks.

Gromyko made no effort to disguise the importance the Kremlin attaches to China, whose 700 million people and turbulent society are removed from this country only by a disputed border more than 4,000 miles long.

"The situation in Asia and elsewhere in the world depends to a considerable extent on what aims China will serve and the way its foreign policy will be oriented," the foreign minister told parliament.

"The leaders of the Chinese People's Republic have done everything in their power to unsettle the relations that developed between our countries in the first years after the victory of the revolution and the establishment of People's China.

But Dolwig replied the commission would have no power to condemn land and if it sought to do it "it would be an illegal act."

Schmitz objected to provisions that would allow the commission to zone some areas for wildlife refuges or recreation, saying it could cause economic harm to property owners who might want to use the land for commercial purposes.

But William Siri, University of California professor and a famed mountaineer who has climbed Mount Everest, said:

"It's never been an anticlimax to return to the Bay Area — not even from Mount Everest. I hope it stays that way."

Before the committee were bills by Dolwig, Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco; Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland and Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

All the measures are supported by the present Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission.

All but Dolwig's would continue the commission. Dolwig proposed a new commission, with the same powers, and supervision over pollution control.

The Knox and Petris bills give the commission the power to control development in a band extending 500 feet inland. The Dolwig and Marks bills cover a 100-foot-wide band.

MASS

occasionally dabbed at his eyes. There were many nuns, some of whom had taught Tom in school, and many of his classmates from Marin Catholic High School, where he graduated a little more than a year ago.

Seated with his parents, brothers and sisters in the first pew was Linda Scatena who wore Tom's Marine Corps ring.

During the ceremony, Mrs. Cincotta was given support by her husband, who took her arm occasionally.

The clothing of many of the women mourners followed Mrs. Cincotta's red, white and blue color theme. The concelebrants of the mass — Msgrs. James E. Cain of Stockton and Edward Dullea of Marin Catholic and Rev. John P. Tierney of St. Sylvester's parish — wore white vestments.

"Tom hated black," his mother said. "Our faith believes that death is not the end, but the beginning of something new."

Among the mourners were some who had not known the dead Marine. One of them, a 19-year-old who has avoided the draft (Tom volunteered last August), said before the mass: "I think it's a dirty, rotten war and this country is wrong. But this guy believed he was right. I don't agree, but I respect him for that. It takes a lot of guts to be willing to die for what you believe."

A girl classmate said, "I don't believe in the war and I wouldn't have gone. But that's easy for a girl to say, isn't it? Tom believed and now he's dead. His death has to mean something. I hope it means we will all start to see how crazy it is to go on sacrificing our young men."

In his eulogy, Bishop Mark Hurley of San Francisco, who had baptized Tom and all but one of his brothers and sisters, spoke of what young Cincotta's death meant:

"It would be sheer folly to make any attempt to explain what has happened or to pretend that we can know the reasons why. Life is full of mysteries and our Catholic faith defines a mystery as a truth which we cannot fully understand . . .

". . . There is no mystery, there is no question at all that a young man has offered his life in a pure oblation and sacrifice for his friends. Some people may be tempted to hide behind a worn-out cliche that 'war is hell' — as indeed it is — or 'youth is impetuous' or some other arbitrary supposition.

"But the stark ineluctable fact stands out in bold relief: this young man did not travel to a faraway jungle as a private citizen; he bore no personal grudge or grievance against the enemy; he had no quarrel with the men he faced across no-man's land.

"No, he left his native soil as a public person, dressed in the official uniform of his country, and he risked his life in the name of each and every citizen of the United States."

Looking at the grieving parents and grandparents, Hurley said it is more natural for sons to bury parents and grandparents than for them to bury sons. "Could we be blamed if we protest that the angel of death has made a mistake, that the angel of death is in error, has confused spring with autumn?"

Ironically, Cincotta had been given a chance to come home after being wounded in April. He passed it up because, a friend wrote, he didn't want to "lie his way out."

Another irony was that Tom would have been among the first 25,000 American fighting men to be withdrawn from Vietnam. The first contingent arrived in the United States just two days ago.

The last letter he had written home, told of the impending withdrawal and commented wryly, "If I don't get a 'basket-leave,' we will see each other in 1970."

The last sentence in that last letter said:

"Tonight we will be nice and warm. Love, Tom."

programs in general and lack of interest in the Terra Linda Center program in particular. "It just fell apart last year," he said.

Colistra, who said he has approached both the Marin County Recreation Commission and San Rafael High School District for funds this spring, admits the teen program at the Terra Linda center is "limited."

"I ran around like crazy looking for money. I got none. We forewarned the county this would happen if we couldn't put on a teen program."

The problem is complex. Mrs. Martz says many incidents are in direct violation of the park board's Ordinance No. 1. It specifically prohibits loitering, "riotous, boisterous, threatening, indecent, immoral or abusive behavior, or use of profane language . . ."

Moreover, the ordinance prohibits gatherings of more than 20 persons without prior written permission of park directors.

Terra Linda parks are governed under community service district provisions which place police responsibility in the hands of the sheriff's office.

Lieutenant Thomas Lightfoot, night watch commander in the sheriff's department, says his men regularly patrol the area. They cannot roust the youths without legal cause.

"We go by the book. We have to follow rules of evidence," he said.

"We're not trying to dodge our obligation, but we are frustrated unless we have something to work with."

Lightfoot said complaining residents can help by making a citizen's arrest if they see a youth violating the law. But he said most residents, when approached by deputies, say they do not want to appear in court.

He also suggested a chain link fence built around the park and a sunset curfew might solve park problems.

"If a boy climbs that fence after dark, we can arrest him."

But deputies don't want to provoke a repeat performance of a July 1 fracas in Tiburon's Paradise Park in which deputies and highway patrolmen clashed with 100 rock and bottle throwing youths, resulting in 9 arrests.

"It's a can of worms," admits Sergeant George Reuss.

Meanwhile, Terra Linda park directors are faced with a growing problem and a possible citizen protest at tonight's 8 p.m. meeting in the Terra Linda Community Center at 670 Del Ganado Road.

And teen-agers, many sons and daughters of neighborhood residents, want to know where they can go without fear of being rousted.

Cooperating with sheriff's deputies who cruised the park area last night, they dispersed promptly at 11 p.m., stacking cans and bottles in park trash containers. But, said the youths, "We'll be back."

Three Youths Arrested In Mill Valley

Three youths were arrested yesterday by Mill Valley police for investigation of possession of stolen property and petty theft after they allegedly were caught rifling coin boxes at a drive-in auto wash.

Larry James Stover, 18, of E36 Hilarita Housing, Tiburon, and Curtis Price Jr., 18, of 710 Drake Avenue, Marin City, were booked into Marin County Jail with bail set at $315 to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

The third youth, Robert Donzill Price, 17, of 72 Cole Drive, Marin City, was booked into Juvenile Hall.

Police said officers became suspicious when they saw the youths parked in a car wash stall at Ashford Street and Lomita Drive at 10:30 p.m. but not washing their car. When officers checked, they found two of the coin machines had been emptied and a third, they said, in the process of being pried open.

Also, police said, property identified as having been taken from the City of Mill Valley's corporation yard in a May burglary was found in the car.

Twin Heiresses To Juvenile Court

The cases of twin heiresses who are accused of growing marijuana at a rented Kentfield home were certified yesterday to Marin Juvenile Court from adult court.

Deborah Wadsworth Prentice Ettinger and Pamela Prentice Ettinger, 19, were arrested June 13. According to probation officers, they are no longer living alone in Kentfield but have gone back to their parents.

They are the granddaughters of the co-founder of Prentice-Hall Inc., New York publishing firm.

10 Persons Perish In Farmhouse Fire

POSEN, Mich. (AP) — Ten persons died today in a roaring farmhouse fire outside this Polish, potato-growing community in northeastern Lower Michigan, firemen said.

All who died were related. Seven were children ranging in age from 15 months to 16 years.

The toll was the highest in recent Michigan history. Twice since 1950, eight died in two separate fires.

Of 12 who normally lived in the two-story home, only two survived. One escaped. Another was visiting in nearby Alpena.

Edward Gralewicz, 48, who escaped, said the fire broke out in the first-floor laundry room about 1:30 a.m. and spread with incredible speed. Fire Chief Ray Wosniak said it may have been caused by faulty wiring.

Dead are Anthony Gralewicz, 85, Edward's father; Theresa Bonin, 39, Anthony's daughter; her husband, Wallace, 45, and seven of the Bonin's eight children: Victor, 16; Barbara Ann, 15; Kenneth, 13; Julie Ann, 11, Gregory, 8; Marcia, 5, and Robert, 15 months.

Edward Gralewicz told Presque Isle County sheriff's deputies that he came home from his job as a laborer in nearby Stoneport about midnight and went to bed.

At about 1:30 a.m., Edward, awakened by the family dog's barking outside, said he smelled smoke. He said he then went to the laundryroom at the rear of the four bedroom, two-story frame house and as he opened the door, fire and smoke billowed out, driving him back.

Edward said he shouted upstairs to warn the others, but that flames drove him out before he could effect any rescue.

Carol Bonin, 17, whose parents perished, was away visiting in Alpena.

Neighbors who saw the flames called Posen's volunteer Fire Department, but intense heat and smoke prevented entry by firemen and the walls collapsed soon after their arrival, fire officials said.

The Gralewicz family worked a 120-acre farm, raising grain and potatoes, in this agricultural area on the Lake Huron shore.

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas yesterday issued a stay of execution for Denis C. McGautha, a San Quentin Death Row inmate who had been scheduled to die Aug. 13 in the gas chamber.

The stay will be in effect at least until the fall when the Supreme Court reconvenes after its summer recess to consider an appeal of McGautha's conviction.

McGautha, 43, was brought to Death Row Oct. 5, 1967 following his conviction of the fatal shooting of a Los Angeles market owner during a robbery.

Agnew Could Hold Key To ABM Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today Vice President Spiro T. Agnew may get his first opportunity to vote in Congress when the Senate finally acts on the Safeguard program.

Mansfield told newsmen senators already have "made up their minds" on the antimissile question and he doubts whether any votes will be affected by the debate that began Tuesday and which may last three weeks.

"It looks like a 50-50 proposition," he said. "Maybe Agnew will be the deciding factor."

The vice president, although president of the Senate, can vote only to break a tie. He would be expected to support the Nixon administration's Safeguard plans.

The Montana Democrat said the twice-postponed secret Senate session would not be held this week. "When we do have it," he said, "we ought to give the Senate plenty of notice."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, asked about White House efforts to use a soft-sell approach in trying to sway GOP senators to back the program, replied: "You don't sell something by going into a room with a baseball bat."

Meanwhile Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy says it is "pure hogwash" to argue the program is needed to strengthen President Richard M. Nixon's hand for U.S.-Soviet disarmament talks.

First Marine Unit Leaves War; New Low In Deaths

SAIGON (AP) — The first contingent of U.S. Marines to be withdrawn from Vietnam flew to Okinawa today as military spokesmen reported the lowest weekly number of American battle deaths in almost six months.

The Marines left with none of the fanfare accorded departing U.S. infantrymen three days ago. An advance party of 120 Leathernecks of the Ninth Regiment departed from Quang Tri, a base 20 miles south of the demilitarized zone, in two four-engined transports.

They included 60 combat troops of the 1st Battalion and the rest payroll and administrative personnel who will prepare for arrival of the main body of the 8,000-man regiment expected in Okinawa within the next few weeks. The rest of the First Battalion will leave in a few days, spokesmen said.

U.S. headquarters said 153 Americans were killed in action last week, the lowest death toll since the week ending Jan. 11 when 151 U.S. personnel were killed.

Spokesmen said the relative lull in combat activity accounted for the marked decrease from the preceding week's toll of 241 Americans, and from the weekly average of 243 American dead in the first 26 weeks this year.

Another 1,548 Americans were wounded last week—772 of them hospitalized—compared to 1,674 the previous week.

South Vietnamese casualties and the number of enemy dead reflected similar drops—274 government troops killed and 586 wounded last week compared with 446 killed and 804 wounded the previous week, and 2,381 enemy killed compared with 3,485 the previous week.

The new casualty reports raised to 37,019 the number of Americans killed in action in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961, 238,147 wounded and 1,325 listed as missing, captured or interned. For the same period the U.S. Command lists 526,085 enemy dead.

Bolinas Utility Budget Adopted

A 1969-70 budget of $96,657 was approved last night by the Bolinas Community Public Utility District, an increase of $2,092 over last year. No tax rate increase is likely, secretary Jane Phillips reported. The current rate is $1.785 per $100 assessed valuation.

The budget includes $69,657 to be raised from property taxes, an increase of $1,809, and $27,000 to be raised by other revenues such as water bills and connection charges.

Comparable figures last year were $67,848 from taxes and $26,717 from other revenues.

The board also reelected Jose A. Silva chairman and Manuel S. Peters vice chairman.

Reagan Eyes Income Tax Hike—25 Pct.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan is considering both a one cent sales tax increase and an average 25 per cent personal income tax hike in a proposed revision of his property tax relief plan.

This was disclosed today by Finance Director Caspar Weinberger, who told a reporter the administration is rewriting the plan the governor proposed earlier in the year.

If the revisions are accepted, it would be a sharp departure from what the Republican governor first sought. But his original plan has encountered opposition from Assembly Republicans, including Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael.

Reagan originally asked for an average 50 per cent personal income tax increase by imposing a new one per cent tax on gross personal income.

The sales tax — now five per cent — would not have gone up, although it would have been extended to repair services, magazines and newspapers and other categories.

The new state funds are to go to local government to finance a massive reduction in local property taxes, averaging 50 per cent.

The final result: shifting much of the burden of local schools and other services from the property tax to the income tax, which hits many more people.

Toronto was the first North American city to adopt the metro type of government for the whole area.

Lodge To Hanoi, Cong: U.S. Will Not Capitulate

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told the 25th session of the Vietnam peace talks today the United States is ready to negotiate and compromise, but declared: "We shall not capitulate."

Lodge said North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government constantly demand the withdrawal of allied forces while rejecting all proposals for mutual withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops.

"To hold such a position is to demand capitulation by our side," he said. "This is unreasonable. We shall not capitulate. No negotiated settlement of the war in Vietnam is possible until you modify that demand.

"We are prepared to negotiate and compromise. While you refuse to join us in negotiation and compromise, the tragedy of war continues."

Lodge said the other side's reaction to President Richard M. Nixon's May 14 peace proposals has been negative, and he repeated Nixon's warning that "our fighting men are not going to be worn down, our negotiators are not going to be talked down and our allies are not going to be let down."

The meeting brought little more than the now familiar accusations between the two sides, each blaming the other for the continuing deadlock.

South Vietnamese delegate Pham Dang Lam declared: "You are trying to influence world public opinion and American public opinion to force the U.S. and allied troops to withdraw from South Vietnam and, on the other hand, you are avoiding the question of withdrawing back to the North your own troops, cadres and subversive forces present in the South."

Cash, Drugs Taken In Pharmacy Burglary

An undetermined amount of cash and narcotics were taken in a burglary last night at the Indian Valley Pharmacy at 1615 Hill Road, Novato, according to police.

The burglary was discovered at 8 a.m. today when the owner, Milton Nenneman opened the store, according to police.

Fair Director Facing IRS Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Harrison F. Cutler, managing director of the California Exposition, was charged yesterday with failure to file federal income tax returns for a three-year period.

The Internal Revenue Service, in a suit filed in federal court, said Cutler did not file a return or pay taxes for the years 1963, 1964 and 1965. It said his total income for the three years was $37,030.

Cutler, an Elk Grove bachelor, was summoned to appear in court Aug. 8. Conviction on the three counts would bring a sentence of three years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Prior to taking over as managing director of the exposition and fair in Sacramento, Cutler was manager of the state fair and of numerous county fairs and horse shows.

Water District Eyes Marincello 'De-Annex'

Marin Municipal Water District which spent months working on annexing Marincello in 1967 yesterday decided to investigate de-annexing.

"I'm very curious about Marincello," said board president Robert G. Anderson after the board wearily agreed to try to collect $24,305 in overdue fees.

Anderson asked Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger for a report on the status of the 1,692-acre area above Sausalito — long slated for development as a planned community.

"It doesn't look like it's going to be developed," said Anderson. "Could we de-annex?"

Seeger said he has been in contact with Gulf Oil Corp. which owns most of the property. "They still say it's going — manana."

Meanwhile, the board approved a resolution to levy a special tax within the Marincello zone to cover delinquent annexation fees. The landowners had agreed to pay $51,000 in annexation fees, with $10,000 in advance. The $10,000 is all that's been received.

Seeger reported yesterday that Gulf has indicated it doesn't want to go on the tax rolls. "They may pay it up before it does," he said.

Marin Municipal Water District Also:

SPECIAL FEES — Agreed to pay the district's attorney, Robert W. Elliott $420 in extra fees for his work on two cases — one of them involving violations of the district's prohibition of nudity. Elliott said the case involved hippie-type persons who apparently tried to scare off other citizens who came to picnic at Kent Lake. The offenders took off their clothes, he said.

CONSTRUCTION — Approved relocation of water mains in connection with widening of Highway 101 at a total cost of $34,800, with the state to pay 53.6 per cent.

PIPELINE — Authorized a pipe line extension for a four-lot subdivision at Shady Lane and Lagunitas Road in Ross with costs of $7,578 to be borne by the owner, A. Crawford Greene Jr.

FIRELINES — Approved fireline extension agreements on Summit Drive ($5,218) and Spring Trail ($5,458) in Corte Madera and on Morning Sun Avenue ($5,545) in the Tamalpais Fire Protection District with costs to be split between the district and the jurisdictions involved.

OVERTIME — Learned 124 hours in overtime had been spent selling fishing permits. A total of 2,867 permits, with proceeds ot $13,071 have been issued so far.

IDENTIFICATION — Authorized spending $150 to provide all employees with standard identification cards.

Pontiff Flees Roman Summer

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI left the summer heat of Rome today and headed for his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo in the cool Alban Hills. But it is no vacation for the Pontiff.

The Pope, 71, will work on speeches and details for his July 31 trip to Uganda in East Africa.

The Pope will stay at Castel Gandolfo until he leaves for Uganda then is expected to return to Castel Gandolfo for a few more weeks. Even then he will be busy preparing for a synod of Roman Catholic bishops from throughout the world Oct. 11 at the Vatican.

Castel Gandolfo has served as a summer Vatican since Pope Gregory XV's first visit there in a horse-drawn carriage in 1626. The town has a population of 3,000 and is 1,000 feet above Lake Albany. It is usually considerably cooler than Rome in the summer, although only 17 miles away. fp735apd

Youngster Is Fair From Ladder Mishap

A 4-year-old San Francisco boy was reported in fair condition today with a fractured skull at Marin General Hospital after he slipped and fell from the ladder of the high diving board yesterday at Corte Madera's Edgewater Inn, police reported.

Scott Johnson, son of Mrs. Virginia Johnson, was climbing the ladder to the 10-foot board at 12:52 p.m. when he fell to the concrete deck, police said.

Shopping Center Plans Approved

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee last night approved a plan for the enlargement of the north end of the Red Hill Shopping Center building to allow for a Sears Roebuck and Co. display room and warehouse. Applicants for the plan are Grubb and Ellis Co., San Rafael.

An application by Mel R. Westenberg to roof his carport at 36 Sunview Avenue was approved by a 3-2 vote, committee members James G. McDonald and James Frankopf voting "no" because they felt the roof would extend into public right-of-way and Warren R. Perry abstaining.

The committee approved landscape plans for St. Nicholas Church at 102 Ross Avenue and an application to remodel the exterior of the Kientz Bakery at 625 San Anselmo Avenue.

Bicyclist Hurt In Crosswalk

An 11-year-old San Rafael boy suffered scrapes of his right elbow and right knee yesterday when he was struck by a car driven by Harriet Levine, 46, of 425 Mission Avenue, San Rafael.

Michael C. Swanfeldt of 119 Greenfield Avenue was treated at Marin General Hospital after the accident which occurred at 1:23 p.m.

Police said the boy was walking his bicycle across the street and was in the crosswalk when the accident occurred at the intersection of Fourth Street and Greenfield Avenue.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Militant Student Punishment Urged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly education subcommittee has endorsed a resolution urging the University of California, state colleges and junior colleges to act immediately to punish disruptive students.

The measure by Sen. Walter W. Stiern, D-Bakersfield, called on the university regents, state college trustees and junior college governing boards to "take immediate action, including filing criminal charges and instituting disciplinary proceedings...against those individuals who aid, abet or participate in campus disorders."

The resolution was sent to the full education committee yesterday with a recommendation for approval.

The subcommittee on education environment also held for further study bills to:

Permit dismissal of an elementary, secondary or junior college teacher who was absent without leave for five consecutive working days. Such a law already applies to university and state college instructors.

Prohibit reemployment for two years of a teacher on the college and university level who is absent for five or more days.

Require the university and state colleges to set up rules and regulations for student conduct and notify the students of the requirements.

TAX DATE

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate has voted to set a Jan. 1, 1970, starting date for the one-half cent sales tax increase in the three counties of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

The BART bill by Sen. Lewis Sherman, R-Berkeley, was approved by the Senate Wednesday on a 30-0 vote and sent to the Assembly.

The one-half-cent boost was authorized earlier by the Legislature to pay off the $146 million BART debt.

Sherman said the levy had been scheduled to go into effect 90 days after the Legislature adjourns.

AUTHORITY

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill prohibiting the state college trustees and junior college governing boards from delegating policymaking or administrative authority to the academic senate was approved by the Senate yesterday and sent to the Assembly.

Sen. John G. Schmitz, R-Tustin, said decentralization of authority adds to the problem of campus unrest.

The vote on Schmitz' measure was 22-2.

FOOD PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill that in effect increases the purchasing power of families receiving welfare assistance was approved last night by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The measure by Assemblyman Gordon W. Duffy, R-Hanford, won bipartisan support. It permits persons to use federal food stamps to increase their subsistence level with the stamps.

Under present requirements, food stamps must be purchased with dollars.

ASSAULT

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill setting a minimum five-year prison term for assaulting a policeman or fireman with a deadly weapon was approved by the Senate yesterday on a 24-6 vote and sent to the Assembly.

Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-Atherton, said his bill also prohibits a person convicted of assault on an officer or fireman for the first time from receiving a suspended sentence or probation.

Recreation Topics

The teen-age summer recreation program and Ayala Day ceremonies will be discussed by the Tiburon Parks and Recreation commission at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

State's Job Roll Over 4 Million

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Employment in California last month surpassed the 8 million mark for the first time in history, the state Departments of Employment and Industrial Relations reported today.

A total of 8,047,000 held jobs during the month, 92,000 higher than in May and 255,000 higher than June last year. The figure was beefed up by the influx of summer job hunters.

Meantime, unemployment totaled 386,000, an increase of 59,000 over May but 7,000 below the level for June 1968. Labor disputes and continued layoffs in the aerospace industry was blamed for the increase.

HITCHHIKERS EVERYWHERE

How Else To Get Anywhere?

By PATRICK SULLIVAN

(Second of two articles)

In the limited effort they have made to keep widespread hitchhiking in Marin under some kind of control, police and other authorities have realized little success.

Nowhere is the futility of the present 20-word law governing hitchhiking shown more dramatically than in Sausalito, where police several months ago launched a crackdown on illegal hitchhiking.

Their tool in the sweep was California Vehicle Code section 21957. It reads: "No person shall stand in a roadway for the purpose of soliciting a ride from the driver of any vehicle."

The primary target area for the get-tough policy was the Gate 6 area leading out of Sausalito toward Highway 101.

Warnings were issued. Citations were handed out to the more flagrant violators and those who had previously been warned about the statute and its key words: "... stand in a roadway..." Persons cited were usually slapped with $14 to $19 fines.

"We got them pretty well trained," said Inspector Robert Glynn.

But "trained" evidently means merely trained to keep clear of the roadway while soliciting a ride.

And late in June an 18-year-old Sausalito girl, presumably waving her thumb legally, was picked up by a man in a purple sports car and driven to an isolated spot behind a bait shop, where the man began to paw her. After a struggle she was able to escape from the car.

Authorities cite what they believe to be several contributing factors to the growth of hitchhiking. Some linked it with an influx of hip, free-thinking persons about the time the Haight-Ashbury district began to resemble a jungle two years ago.

One said the same attitudes that go with pot smoking seem to lend themselves to hitchhiking.

But ovrwhelmingly, police and other officials laid the hitchhiking explosion to the lack of a regular, reliable, reasonably-priced public transportation system throughout the county.

"We have beautiful beaches out at the coast but there's no way for kids to get there except in car pools — or by hitchhiking," said Sgt. Al Howenstein of San Anselmo

"Now we've come to accept it in lieu of public transportation," he said.

Two Redwood High School students, Tim Hilton and Dan McClennan, both 15, hitchhike regularly. They said they have had only one "bum ride," when a man picked them up on the Tuburon Peninsula and drove aimlessly "asking if we had ever had an experience with God and preaching from the Bible"

McClellan said he hitchhiked almost daily to and from school. During the summer months the two find hitchhiking is the only way to visit friends.

"I have a friend who lives about four miles away in Tiburon," said Hilton.

Both boys, too young to obtain driver's licenses, said even if they were limited to coping with existing bus service, "there still is the problem of getting the money."

Sometimes, McClellan admitted, if he has the money he still travels by hitchhiking because it is easier and there are things he would rather spend the money on than bus fare.

The two boys can plan on no relief in the dismal public transportation picture this summer. The plan being bandied about by county officials that would take only 90 days to get buses on the road would not become a reality until October even if it were suddenly given full approval tomorrow.

Thus, it seems, young hitchhikers will be populating Marin roadsides well into the coming months. While police and others are anxious to break up what they see as an inducement to various crimes, they have not been armed with an equitable law to do so.

A countywide ordinance, prohibiting hitchhiking from any place near a road, has been proposed by Ross Town Councilman Roy Farrington Jones and stirred interest among some law enforcement authorities.

But it might turn out to be unfair to thousands of the county's stranded youths.

"If you are going to ban hitchhiking, realistically you would have the obligation to provide something suitable as an alternative," said Juvenile Inspector Gerald R. Green of San Rafael.

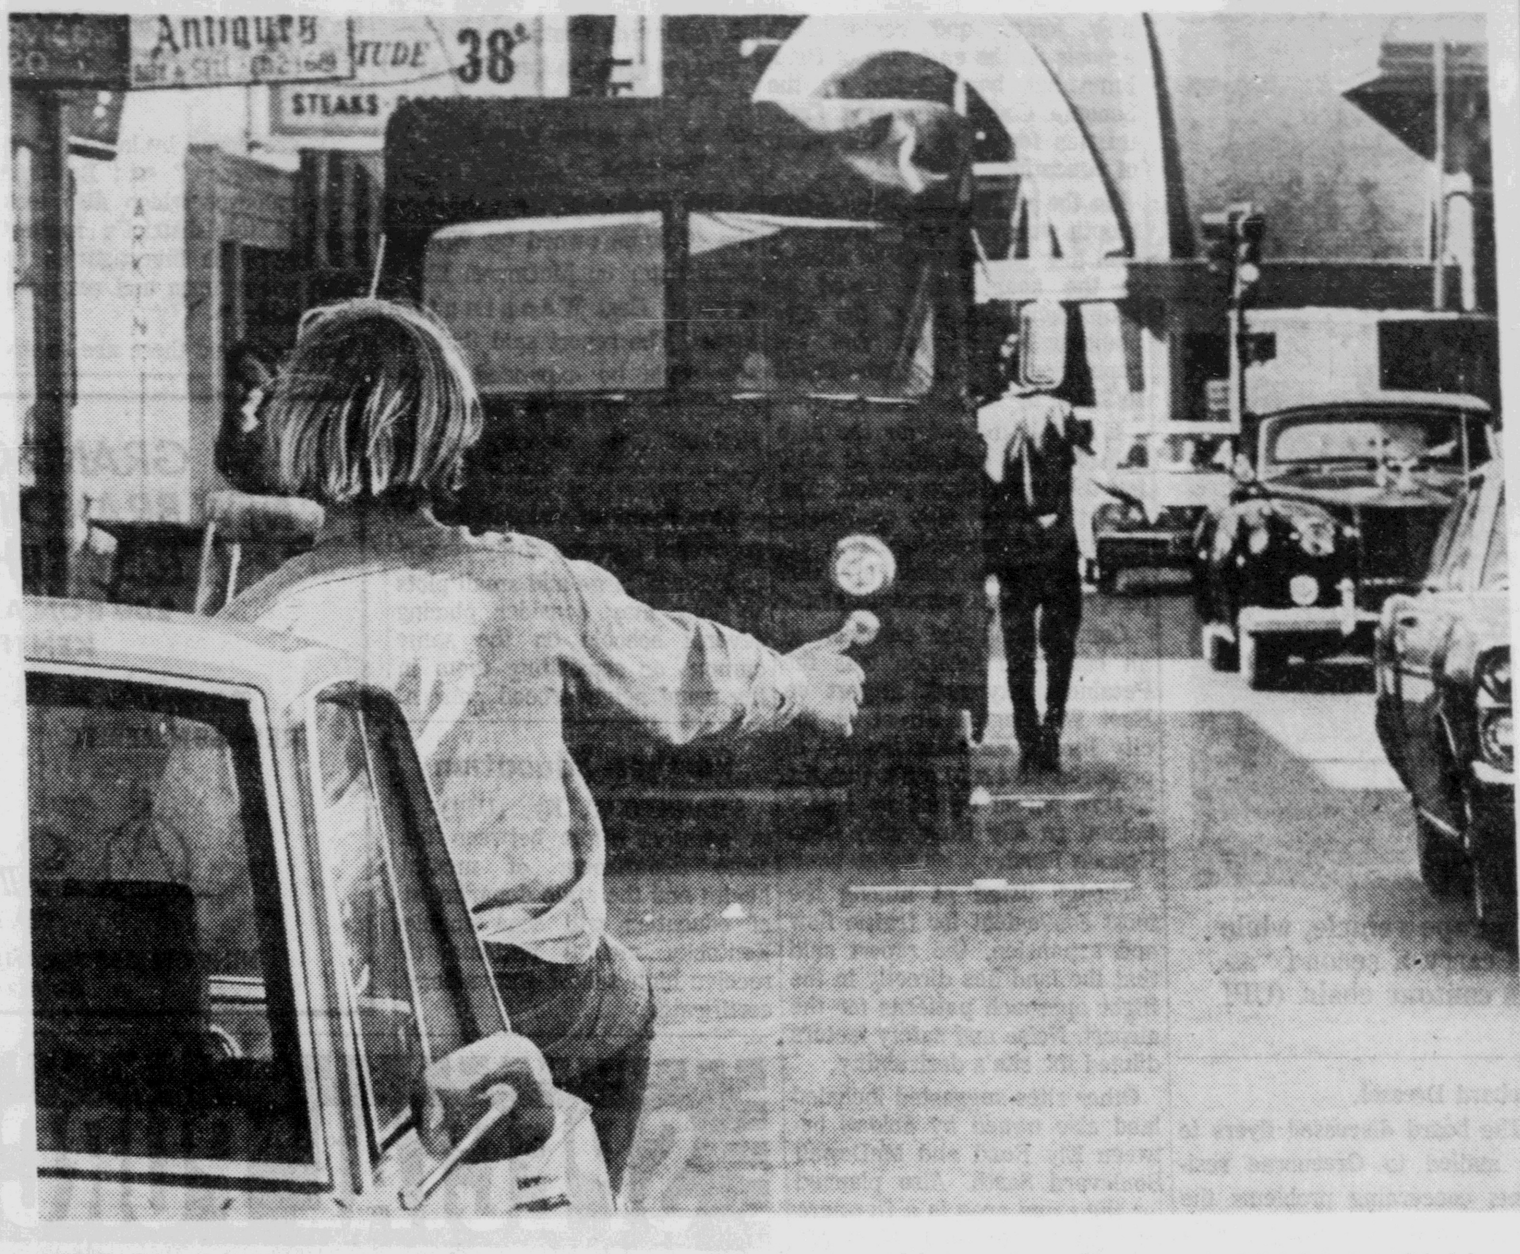
In the meantime, police fall back on placing the responsibility for hitchhiking youths in the hands of parents, and calling for understanding of the dangers by hitchhikers themselves.

But if, the only interim solution is to convince teen-agers of the dangers they face, one thing is clear: scare tactics probably won't work.

Statistics on juvenile drug offenses bear out that crude propaganda films, sensational pamphlets and other such approaches to dissuade youths from drug use have largely failed.

Another campaign of that sort, this time regarding hitchhiking, might result only in driving another wedge into the chasm separating the generations.

Yet it is also a tragedy, as one officer said, that the only way some young hitchhikers now get the message is when they find themselves trapped in a seat next to someone with a knife.



THE CASUAL WAY — Sausalito, too, has a good share of hitchhikers. Both the young man in the foreground, leaning against an auto, and the one in the background next to the truck are violating the vehicle code ordinance prohibiting hitchhiking on a roadway. They got rides from passing motorists on Bridgeway — and no citations.

Gunshot Fatal To Housewife

A San Anselmo woman died yesterday in Marin General Hospital of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Mrs. Velma Stack, 40, the wife of a San Francisco police sergeant, was wounded in the head about 2 p.m. at her home at 846 Butterfield Road by a single gunshot.

Her husband, Thomas, was asleep in the house at the time, according to Deputy Sheriff Denny Shine, who said Mrs. Stack left a note indicating she was in poor health.

Silverthorne's Son Takes Witness Stand

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Don Carlos Silverthorne Jr. has taken the witness stand in the second trial of his father.

The elder Silverthorne, 69, of Tiburon, is charged by the U.S. some $200,000 in funds from his San Francisco National Bank before it was closed down in 1965.

The younger Silverthorne, 44, testified yesterday he took a pay cut to come to work for his father's bank in April 1963. He said he was making between $1,100 and $1,200 a month as a clinical laboratory technician — his current occupation — and received $1,000 a month at the bank.

He said his father made him a vice president and director, that he served as loan officer and assistant to the operations officer, and was in charge of janitors.

Silverthorne Jr. testified that a federal bank examiner, Victor Del Trebici, had told him his father ran the bank in an unorthodox manner. He said he knew about gifts his father purchased for clients, and had accompanied him on several shopping trips.

The witness testified about tallying by himself and another bank officer of some $300,000 in loan fee transmittal letters and being told there should have been $800,000 in fees.

Cross-examination brought out that the elder Silverthorne had testified before a Senate committee in Washington that total loan fees of the bank amounted to $205,000.

The government contends that parts of loan fees given money brokers for obtaining deposits were diverted to the elder Silverthorne's personal accounts.

The defense sought a continuance because one witness, Virginia Richards, a former bank vice president, had recently undergone surgery. Another, William S. Bennett, could not be located, the defense said. The request was denied.

Bennett was a loan broker who did considerable business with the bank.

Later, defense attorney George Martinez tried to get Mrs. Richards' testimony from Silverthorne's first trial, in February 1966, entered as evidence.

U.S. District Court Judge Albert C. Wollenberg turned him down but agreed to hear arguments on admitting testimony given by Bennett in the earlier trial.

Silverthorne was convicted and sentenced to 60 years in prison, but won a reversal on grounds that publicity surrounding his trial made a fair verdict impossible.

Workers Strike Nickel Plants

TORONTO (AP) — More than 17,200 members of the United Steelworkers of America began a work stoppage today at the two main Ontario plants of the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

As bargaining for a new three-year contract and higher wages continued in a Toronto hotel, workers did not show up for the day shift at Sudbury and Port Colborne Inco plants. A total of 15,500 are employed by Inco in Sudbury and 1,700 at Port Colborne.

A company spokesman said picket lines were set up.

The company is the world's largest supplier of nickel. The strike would dry up production and cripple the steel industry on three continents.

Wife Is Refused Lowered Bail

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court yesterday refused to reduce bail from $12,250 for Constance Abercrombie, 55, Novato housewife accused of shooting her husband Saturday.

Mrs. Abercrombie, who remained in jail in lieu of bail, entered an innocent plea to the charge of assault with intent to commit murder. A preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Her husband, Robert, a retired Army major, was reported in "generally good condition" at Letterman General Hospital.

Auto Stereo Taken

An auto stereo and 10 tapes, valued at a total of $168 were taken from his locked car at his home at 30 Novato Street, San Rafael, sometime Monday, Donald Allen Smith reported to police yesterday.

More than 150,000 acres of asparagus are planted each year in the United States.

READY FOR TROULBE — Rescuers in fireproof suits practice saving astronauts in case trouble develops on the launching pad. Leak May Delay Beginning Of Apollo 11 Countdown

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A leak developed in pressurization system of the Apollo 11 rocket today and a crew rushed in to find it, raising the possibility of a delay in tonight's scheduled start of the final countdown for the moon landing mission.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the leak was in the helium gas system used to pressurize fuel tanks in the first stage of the 36-story Saturn 5 rocket.

The helium is stored in bottles in the liquid oxygen propellant tank.

The exact location of the leak was not known and access doors were opened to permit a crew of technicians to enter the tank, which holds 334,000 gallons of liquid oxygen.

"We don't know where the leak is or how serious it is," a NASA spokesman said.

If not found and corrected, the start of the final countdown, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. tonight, aiming for a liftoff at 9:32 a.m. next Wednesday.

As the technicians troubleshot the problem, the Apollo 11 astronauts, Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins climbed into the command ship trainer to practice the engine maneuver that will shoot them out of earth orbit and set them on a quarter-million-mile course to the moon.

They are to orbit the moon July 19, and the next day Armstrong and Aldrin are to fly a fragile lunar module (LM) to man's first landing on the lunar surface.

Early on July 21, first Armstrong, then Aldrin are to step outside for an exploration period scheduled to last about two and one-half hours.

The countdown is 93 hours, but it is spread over five and one-half days. This allows for several planned holds to give the crew rest and time to correct any problems that might arise.

Greenbrae Group Discusses Picnic

Plans for a family picnic tentatively set for Sept. 28 in San Anselmo's Memorial Park were discussed last night by the Greenbrae Property Owners Association board, then the board continued discussion to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Richard Dressel.

The board discussed flyers to be mailed to Greenbrae residents concerning problems the board has been working on this year. Board members discussed, but set no date, for proposed meeting with County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni on the proposed Marin County transit system, secretary Beth Reilly reported.

East Petaluma School Sites Eyed In Report

A report on possible sites for new junior and senior high schools on the east side of Petaluma has been issued by the Sonoma County Planning Commission for study by the board of education.

In the report, result of a five month study, it is said that several new schools will be needed in the near future based on projections made by the city planning department that the population will jump from 22,500 to 32,000 by 1975.

Enrollment for the high schools was estimated at 2,240 for the same time period. The report centered only on Petaluma and did not include Rohnert Park or Cotati which are also part of the high school district.

Complicating the selection of an east side location was the Petaluma Skyranch airport on East Washington Street at the city limits. First on the list of proposed locations was the 50-acre parcel owned by Henry Soldati on Ely Road near Casa Grande Road.

Though listed as among the most convenient for traffic flow and expansion, the report said that the land lies directly in the flight approach patterns for the airport. Noise and safety factors diluted the site's desirability.

Other sites suggested included land also owned by Soldati between Ely Road and McDowell Boulevard South. Also planned for the same area is a five-acre city park site and 10 acres owned by the Old Adobe School District for its fourth elementary school.

The county planners also recommended consideration of a 98-acre parcel on Ely Road, a quarter of a mile south of East Washington Street, owned by R. E. Atkinson. Another consideration was given to land just south of the Atkinson property that includes 104 acres owned by E. L. Thompson.

Also mentioned favorably was the 40 acres owned by William Millmeister on McDowell Lane, north of East Washington Street. The report said that the site could be expanded to include the 96 acres owned by Richard Gray directly to the west.

The board of education had requested that the study recommend both large and small plots so they may consider placing several schools on the same campus or separating them in the usual neighborhood pattern.

Further Education

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI)—A cooperative effort between the state department of mental health and the state department of education will soon enable Kentucky mental patients to receive high school equivalency certificates.

Grand Jury Cites Law On Secrecy

A question from the Sausalito School District on the possibility of its being under investigation by the Marin County Grand Jury can't be answered, foreman Alfred W. Bowman said today.

"We're bound by law to operate in secrecy," said Bowman — an answer which also took care of the district's request that any such investigation be done in an "open and responsible manner."

Bowman said there are several matters currently being investigated by the grand jury but what they are will not be divulged until official reports are issued.

Supt. Phillip W. Schneider had written to Bowman at the unanimous request of the school board to put at rest rumors that the district is being ivestigated.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Don't Give Up A Growing Stock For Volatility

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a stockholder of Genuine Parts Co., but in spite of steady growth in sales and earnings the price of the common stock has traded in a narrow range. Do you think it would be advisable to switch to a more volatile issue? — J. B.

A. Genuine Parts' shares have moved, in about two years, from a low of 14 to a high of 41⅝ for a gain of close to 200 per cent. Although the shares have since trended lower, this is primarily in response to a declining market. Unless you are interested in trading in-and-out of the market, I see no justification for a switch to another stock, on the basis of volatility.

Earnings have increased an average of 12 per cent year-to-year since 1960 while sales gains outpaced this rate. Not only has the dividend been raised annually during that same period but it has been increased in two of the last three quarters. As a distributor of automotive replacement parts, your company services about 2,700 independent jobbers in 43 states. Two recent acquisitions will add over $35 million annually to sales.

Your own shares in a strong growth issue; with patience your investment should work out well.

Q. Would you please give me your opinion of AMREP Corp? — G. B.

A. The company has estimated earnings will be between $1.95 and $2.05 a share for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1969. A 55,000-acre site in New Mexico, now 60 per cent paid for, has been developed into a balanced community by the company. Two residential developments in Florida are in various stages of completion. AMREP's oil and gas operations include a 15 per cent interest in a potentially important discovery which is awaiting additional drilling for a more accurate appraisal of its value.

Hayakawa Appointment Fitting, Well-Deserved

The California State College Board of Trustees gave Dr. S. I. Hayakawa a vote of confidence by installing him as president of San Francisco State College.

It was a fitting and deserving appointment for the courageous semanticist from Mill Valley who refused to bow to a show of force by dissidents and managed to keep the riot-torn campus from a complete shutdown last winter and spring.

His critics contend that his promotion will only lead to more strife. Dissident students are reported to be organizing even now for a renewed attack against the Hayakawa administration this fall.

In seeking the permanent appointment, Dr. Hayakawa appears determined to see through the unenviable job he took over last fall when he was picked as acting president.

OF THE MANY ordeals that he has had to endure, several stand out in sharp relief — the man in a tam-o-shanter leaping on a sound truck and pulling wires from a loudspeaker and then lunging to retrieve his hat which was knocked off in the scuffle; the man on the speaker's platform refusing to yield in the face of angry militants crowding around and onto the stage.

From the outset, Dr. Hayakawa announced publicly that he would listen to requests such as for improved black studies and ethnic studies programs. Had it not been for the strikers, he said that a black studies program would have started in the spring semester and an ethnic studies curriculum in the fall. We are convinced he will continue to press for these programs.

ON ONE POINT, he has remained steadfast—There can be no negotiations and no deals under duress.

It is probably no coincidence that this firmness was one of the points stressed in a report from eight college presidents who surveyed campus disorders nationwide and released their findings last month.

The report concluded that there should be no negotiations of demands under duress; that is, when personnel are detained or buildings occupied. It must be made clear that there can be no amnesty for civil or criminal lawbreakers, the college presidents declared.

The decision by the state college trustees to continue the firm leadership exemplified by Dr. Hayakawa is a logical one.

Dr. Hayakawa needs this vote of confidence and the continued backing of the community and moderates on the campus as he faces another trying year.

Acorn For Supper?

If we had to revert back to the primitive ways of the Indians, many of us will probably die from hunger, exposure or both.

They had to live off the "fat of the land," which would provide slim pickings under today's standards.

Edward K. Balls, in his "Early Uses of California Plants," notes that the oak was one of the principal providers for inhabitants of the Sierra foothills and in the central valleys.

On the deserts, the main food sources were the mesquite and mescal (century plant). These foods were supplemented by dry seeds from grasses and annuals, the few native wild fruits, various other nutlike seeds, and by the leafy parts of numerous plants.

Along the coast, such as in Marin, large amounts of shellfish were consumed, together with fish, game and birds.

Can Private Operator Rescue Cal-Expo From Financial Woe?

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One of the many attempts of the state Legislature to resolve the difficulties of Cal Expo, the virtually defunct all-year, state-wide exposition planned some years ago, is AB 2006, by Assemblyman Peter F. Schabarum, R-Covina, before the Assembly ways and means committee.

The $34 million extravaganza is completely bogged down with financial difficulties, and doubts exist as to whether it can ever be revived either by private or public capital, although the state does plan to hold a "state fair" this year on the new fair site.

Many explanations are given for this failure to perform on schedule, but when they are all boiled down, the one really valid explanation is the lack of money to complete the exposition, and get it going as originally envisioned. And the lack of money results from two sources — first the lack of revenue, and second, the reluctance of the Legislature to provide additional funds for the exposition. Many members feel as though further appropriations would be tossing good money after bad.

THE SCHABARUM measure is an attempt to revise the law to permit private enterprise to take over the exposition and fair, but as it is written, would appear to drive private enterprise away from the venture rather than encouraging a responsible corporation from taking it over and making it the "showplace" of the state, which it was intended to be in the first place.

The bill in the first place creates an "executive committee" designating the director of finance, the state controller, and the secretary for agriculture and services as the three members, none of whom are elected or appointed on the basis of their particular knowledge of dictating the operation of an exposition.

The bill further lodges virtually all of the authority of operating the exposition in the hands of the secretary of agriculture and services, who is an appointee of the governor.

UNDER THIS executive committee, which is charged with providing for and supervising the operations, would be a private corporation, somewhat similar to the one that was junked previously, to handle operations, but under such restrictive measures, it would be tremendously handicapped in providing a suitable exposition and fair.

The bill also demands another two-year "study" of the feasibility of carrying on the project, and the bill states expressly that "the Legislature does not intend to invest additional funds in the exposition until a complete and thorough study is made of the economic feasibility of the exposition, and that the government entities benefitted most be willing to make a financial commitment to its future."

THIS PRESAGES participation by the city and county of Sacramento, which has been viewed coldly by the local governments concerned.

In effect, the proposal does little, if anything, in promoting the future of the California Exposition and Fair, except to make it more difficult to find private enterprise which will take the white elephant off the hands of the state.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Facts Support God's Existence

In the Word of God we read, "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." Psalm 53:1.

Those of us who are referred to as the "mindless majority" by Mr. Brewer in a recent "Readers Say" find it very amusing to hear such men declare Someone doesn't exist, simply because they have never known Him or His Presence or seen His miracles. It is rather like the child-like mind who says, "I can't see the wind or the air — therefore they so not exist." Even more amusing are the attempts of those who sit in judgment upon the existence of God to couch their opinions in an attempt to sound ultra-intellectual.

Although facts supporting the existence of God from a scholarly, scientific and human viewpoint far outweigh the futile attempts of the creatures He created to prove His non-existence, let me say it simply in a way which even the foolish ought to be able to understand: If you are right, Mr. Brewer, we who believe in God have lost nothing but have gained what Christ promised and what the world seeks after; freedom from guilt, peace of heart and mind, a meaningful purpose for living plus myriad other benefits, while you have gained cynicism, negativism and a license for sin.

However, if we are right, we have gained as well, eternal life in paradise, and you — you have lost everything.

Alternatives To Concrete Channel

Your article of July 3, "Ross Citizens Seek Delay In Creek Nod" referred to the general meeting of the Town of Ross Property Owners, held on July 2, in connection with the Corte Madera Creek Project. In view of the emphasis on one particular alternative, and omissions of certain other points, there may be some who will be offended . . .

Under the extreme pressure to accept construction through the town, or have an unseemly diversionary drainage ditch and dike constructed at the southern boundary of Ross, we supported the Council when they resolved to join the Marin County Flood Control Zone in February, 1967. In so doing, Ross accepted the Corps of Engineers' sterile concrete liner plan, in principle, subject to review and written approval of the detailed construction plans.

In order to assist in the preparation of detailed plans of Ross portion by the Corps of Engineers, our town engineer, Mr. Phillip Lygren, has conducted meticulous studies which define the requirements for preserving existing trees wherever possible. These final plans cannot be fully resolved until channel walls are staked or otherwise defined . . .

The property owners affected must be involved . . .

Mr. Lygren and ourselves, with the Ross Citizens Committee and advisory engineers, are sure that this work cannot be done in time to permit bids for the construction of the entire portion of Phase 3 to be let in time for construction to start in the spring of 1970 . . .

The basic point that relieves many people is that there is time to constructively develop alternatives to the sterile concrete ditch through Ross. Phase 3 cannot be prepared for and completed in less than two years from the spring of 1970. We believe that there are alternatives which can be constructed within the framework of this two year project schedule, and which will be far more pleasing than the sterile ditch, and which will be acceptable in total project cost.

The citizens at our meeting unanimously resolved to have attorney Mr. William Bricca request the board of supervisors to divide Phase 3 into two parts, so as to provide time for alternatives to the sterile ditch in the Ross portion to be developed, and cost estimated . . .

Tiburon Fire Chief Grateful For Help

On July 4, a 23-acre grass fire burned from Del Mar Estates to Paradise Drive in Tiburon and threatened several homes.

The fire spread rapidly beyond the initial attack units of the Tiburon Fire Department, and mutual aid apparatus and personnel was requested from five Marin County fire departments.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Marin County, Sausalito, Belvedere, Alto-Richardson Bay and Kentfield fire departments for their valuable assistance. Many of these men, including Tiburon's paid and volunteers, worked long hours during and after the fire, some not receiving compensation for their efforts.

My thanks to the Tiburon Police Department and California Highway Patrol for traffic and crowd control, and last but not least the local citizens including the rarely praised teen-agers who worked diligently assisting with hose lines, hand tools and back packs.

It is gratifying to know that when a serious fire threatens, so many persons can work together effectively.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

One night two safe-crackers invaded a Maryland bank.

One sat down, removed his socks and shoes, and began turning the dial of the vault door with his toes. "Boy!" he exulted, "will this drive those fingerprint experts nuts!"

A bug on statistics and mathematical problems was bent over a mess of figures one afternoon with a particularly blissful expression on his face. "What's so wonderful?" asked a fellow-worker. 'Unless these figures deceive me," chirped the exuberant one, "I'm home free. My wife's on some crazy new diet and claims she's losing four pounds a week. She was 160 pounds when she started, and if my calculations are correct, I'll be rid of her entirely in 39 weeks!"

QUICKIES:

Charles, a leading tonsorial artist at the Waldorf barber shop, has found a new way of entertaining customers while he's shaving them. He sings softly into their sometimes-nicked ears, "Nobody Knows the Stubble I've Seen."

Russell Miles was spotted by his wife attempting to stop a water leak by pressing very hard on the spigot. Cautioned his wife, "For goodness sakes, Russell, if the spigot won't work, don't faucet!"

Melvin Laird Faces Stiff Test In Ballistic Missiles Debate

WASHINGTON — As background for the antiballistic missile debate in the Senate is the record of one of the most curious confrontations in the history of a body that has seen so much of human squalor and human nobility. That record is now in the Pentagon being sanitized, which means often that only the blanks are left in a puzzle to be solved by a few specialists with inside knowledge.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird became acutely sensitive, as he carried the administration load in the ABM controversy, at the suggestion that his estimate of the Soviet missile threat differed from that of Richard Helms, director of the Central Intelligence Agency. Laird told Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he would like to appear with Helms to show there was no real difference between them.

Fulbright after consulting committee members proposed that the confrontation be in open rather than closed session. This was, of course, impossible, since the CIA director never testifies in public. It was extraordinary enough that he should appear with a high-ranking cabinet officer who had challenged the committee to prove any disagreement between them. For those who have labored to make the CIA a strictly professional, nonpolitical organization this seemed above and beyond the call of duty.

SOME MONTHS earlier Helms had given the committee a professional estimate — the agreed estimate of the intelligence community — of what the Soviets were doing to build a defensive wall with antiballistic missiles. Helm's careful appraisal, in the top-secret category, was very much in the minds of committee members as the two men faced them. The extent of the Soviets' ABM defense relates directly to Laird's main argument — that the Russians are building a first-strike capability which would wipe out America's Minutemen and make a retaliatory strike impossible.

Helms had testified that the Soviet military planned a city-wide defense of Moscow with their ABMs, known in the Pentagon code as Galosh. They had planned to install more than 100 launchers.

But then, and this was the dramatic thrust of Helms' testimony, after 60 to 65 launchers were put in place, a halt was called. The best evidence was that doubts had increased about Galosh's effectiveness. The development was stopped so that with further research a breakthrough might result in a truly defensive weapon. This is the case made by many opponents of the Nixon Administration's Safeguard ABM, who argue against spending $7 to $11 billion to deploy two missiles when so much doubt still exists as to their capability.

As to the Talinn Line around Leningrad, Helms' testimony was similar, although with rather less supporting evidence. Talinn had also been planned as a city-wide defense, using the same, in effect, experimental launchers.

WITH THE confrontation continuing hour after hour tensions built upon in the committee room. Helms squirmed, as one senator put it later, but he did not back down. His original estimate of Soviet ABM capability stood for the record. For a civil servant who has tried with some success to keep out of public controversy it was an extremely difficult position.

After six months in a post as demanding as any in government Laird is the supersalesman. Even those most strongly opposed to his views on ABM and the testing of the multiple-warhead missile, MIRV, take a charitable view of his role. That is what he has been told to do in a position he certainly did not seek. If he pushes too hard at times — his mother is reported to have said, "Mel, you sound as though you're trying to scare people" — it is the zeal of the earnest, small-town advocate weighted down with a responsibility almost too much for any solitary human being.

Middle East On Brink Of Full-Scale Fighting

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

At the United Nations, the Big Four recessed their Mideast peace talks indefinitely. And in the Middle East, the fighting edged up another notch toward full-scale resumption of the 1967 war.

Actually, the situation is not quite so bad as such a bare summary would suggest.

U.S.-Soviet talks on the Mideast will continue and a certain amount of agreement has been reached between the two powers in a position to influence Mideast affairs.

The Soviets, who no longer insist on an Israeli withdrawal from its forward positions as a first condition of peace, have indicated they would participate in any international police force that might be assigned to the area. And they seemingly are slowing down the flow of arms to the Arab nations.

A final communique issued after Soviet-Syrian talks in Moscow put more emphasis on agricultural and cultural programs than it did on military hardware.

THERE ARE frustrations on all sides.

In attempting to persuade the Arabs to accept the reality of Israel's existence, the Russians are running into the same frustrations as did the United States in the 1950s.

To forestall any Big Four or Big Two attempt at an imposed settlement and in the face of United Nations condemnation, the Israelis abandoned any pretext of a negotiable position in Jerusalem and declared they were taking over the whole city permanently.

They also declared they would keep the Golan Heights of Syria, the Gaza strip, notwithstanding its hostile Arab population, and Sharm el Sheik at the mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba.

ON THE OTHER hand, while the Israelis remained confident of their ability to deal with the Arabs militarily, the last thing they wanted was more Arab territory and the burdens of policing it.

And despite increasing Arab confidence in their ability to handle their new Russian weapons, the Arabs also had their problems.

One of these was the Palestinian commandos operating independently of governments and rejecting any but a military settlement of the war with Israel.

Despite a reported withdrawal of Palestinian forces from Lebanon, a government crisis brought on by their presence there persisted.

JORDAN, WITH an estimated 15,000 of the commandos on its soil, had felt the repeated stings of Israeli retaliation and also was trying to bring the commandos under control before they toppled King Hussein's government.

But the problem facing the rest of the world, and particularly the United States and Russia, was that the fighting was spreading from air and artillery duels to quick thrusts on the ground by regular army forces on both sides. Continuation could tempt either side to a quick settlement.

No Trouble With Any Mashers Says Pretty Young Hitchhiker

They say part of where it's at is in the streets. It's true.

We picked up Alice Lucas, attractive, 22-year-old blonde hitchhiker, the other day on College Avenue in Kentfield and transported her to Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur.

She was vivacious in her striped, bibbed overalls, tennis shoes and yellow T-shirt and — apparently — as clean as a whistle.

Why does she hitchhike? To save money and because buses are so far apart.

But things have changed, said Alice. "When I started four years ago, it was easy to get rides. Not from old ladies — but young boys. They would stop just like that," she said, snapping her fingers.

ALICE HAS never had any trouble with mashers, she related, because she first asks where the driver is going and, she added, "I really look at them carefully.

"I act really naive if they start to give me any trouble and I tell them I'm only 14. If they hand me any lines, I ignore them."

Talking about her adventures, she said, "I got a ride with an old man once who was in love with a donkey. And I got a ride with an old man who told me he was once a eunuch. One of my boy friends I met hitchhiking. He was my boy friend seven months.

"I get lectures from ladies: 'Oh, dear, don't you know what can happen to you. You must be 12 years old and here you are hitchhiking. I just hate to see this.'

"ONE WOMAN told me, 'My daughter hitchhikes and the only reason I picked you up is because I figure someone else will give my daughter a ride.'

"The first time I ever hitchhiked I was stranded in Petaluma. I had seven miles to go.

"I couldn't walk seven miles. The people who gave me a ride were so nice. Then I started doing it and it was fun.

"Once I was trying to get a ride and I couldn't because a highway patrolman was parked nearby. I asked him, 'Why are you in my way? No one will stop when you're here.' He got so embarrassed that he gave me a ride all the way to my door."

Miss Lucas is working in Ross but living in Larkspur and says: "I'm earning money to buy a car."

We let her out in front of St. Patrick's Church, wearing the overalls she said she had traded for a sweater which wasn't even hers. She danced off up the hillside, her hair flying.

CORTE MADERA patrolman Gerald Fries tells the story about a Fourth of July happening that left a man up in the air on a "Tilt-a-thing" for 45 minutes.

The man went up in the machine at the carnival, was held in his seat for 45 minutes during a breakdown and, when he came down, said: "I want my quarter back." The carnival man looked at the man who had been tilted much more than most customers, refused him the rebate and said: "You had your ride."

The reason Corte Madera whipped Larkspur in the annual volunteer firemen's ball game, said Fire Lt. Lee Larson, is because of Harold Kelly's "superlative" coaching and no errors. "Larkspur shoulda stayed home and fought fires," said Larson.

WE ASKED Henry Muller, Kentfield Hardware proprietor, why the Kentfield Corners were so haunted looking. Muller, who said the old building all covered with vines used to be his store and before that an inn, said the owner likes it that way.

Bargemen used to come up Corte Madera Creek — pre-flood control — and turn about in a turning basin on what is now college property. "They came on one tide, remained overnight and went out with the next tide," Muller added. Now the two corner buildings, plus a tiny gold mining-type hut on the off lane, snooze in the sun, the stories of the bargemen gone with the tide.

ART BUCHWALD

Conduct Diplomacy In The Nude; It May Prove Quite Revealing

WASHINGTON — There is so much nudity in the arts these days that it's losing its shock value. I predict that if the trend continues, we're all going to take nudity for granted, and no one is going to get too excited about it any more.

Rather than fight it, I believe we should figure out ways of adapting nudity to other spheres of our society, such as politics and diplomacy.

For a start, I think it would be a good idea for the Soviet-American disarmament talks to be held in the nude, with all participants sitting around the table unclothed.

Now, before you start writing letters to your editor, let me explain the advantages of holding the disarmament conferences in the nude.

FIRST, IT WOULD show that both parties have nothing to hide and are willing to negotiate in good faith. When you're talking to someone with no clothes on and you have none on yourself, it's almost impossible to lie.

Another reason why nudity could work at a disarmament conference is that without any clothes, the conferees would soon forget that they were Russians and Americans and would start thinking of themselves as members of the same human race.

One of the more obvious arguments in favor of a nude disarmament conference is that neither side could accuse the other of having something up its sleeves.

Nor would there be any danger of the parties carrying bugging devices on them (providing no one with a hearing aid would be permitted to be a delegate).

At the beginning, when the delegates arrive and leave the conference hall, they could cover themselves with their brief cases, but I'm sure that after a few days they'll be less self-conscious and this won't be necessary.

IF THE IDEA works and we have a good disarmament conference, it is my feeling that the principle could be adapted in other areas.

For example, if all military officers were made to discard their uniforms and ribbons and appear in the nude, I doubt if anybody — Russians, Americans, Chinese or anyone else — would have much interest in military matters.

Whether we like it or not, the uniform is one of the big attractions in waging wars, and without clothes, it would be very difficult for someone to give orders without the subordinate breaking up in laughter.

After the military, the next step would be to force all our politicians to take off their clothes before going about the government's business. In this way the public would see their politicians for what they really are, and congressional debates between Everett Dirksen and William Fulbright would be more revealing.

HAD GOV. Nelson A Rockefeller gone nude to South America, I am certain he would have been cheered everywhere he went.

The big question is, should the President of the United States also disrobe in public, or would this be demeaning the office?

I don't think he should at the beginning. But as time goes on and the people get more adjusted to it, I don't see any reason why he can't meet with other world leaders in the nude. There may be some smart-alec kid who yells, "The President has no clothes on," but the Gallup Poll will probably disclose that 65 per cent of the people think he's doing the right thing.

$1.5 Million Suit In Garrison Probe

LOS ANGELES (API) — Edgar Eugene Bradley, once charged by New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison with conspiracy in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, has filed a $1.5 libel suit.

Bradley, 50, a West Coast representative for radio evangelist Dr. Carl McIntire, successfully fought extradition to Luisiana to testify at Garrison's proceedings.

Bradley charged that the numerous defendants in his suit had either placed him in Dallas at the time of the assassination or made statements indicating he was involved in the murder.

As a result, Bradley charged, Garrison issued a warrant for his arrest and the long legal battle that ensued cost him a considerable amount of money.

The suit filed yesterday in superior court named as defendants Mark Lane, author of "Whitewash," a book critical of the Warren Commission report on the assassination; Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. and its radio and television stations in San Francisco; the Los Angeles Free Press and its editor and publisher; the New York Free Press and its copublishers and a reporter, Jay Singer.

The suit also was filed against "The Assassination Inquiry Committee," four of its members and 50 "John Does."

Garrison sought Bradley's extradition in December 1967. After a fight of more than a year, Gov. Ronald Reagan ruled there was insufficient evidence to extradite him.

Bradley sought $1 million general damages and $500,000 punitive damages.

Youth Activity Gets Sympathy, No Money

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission offered moral — but unhappily no financial — support yesterday to a Sausalito woman seeking funds for a Southern Marin drop-in house for young people.

The commission said it had no funds for youth activities programs.

"Moral support we'd be glad to give you — that's all we can do," Commission Chairman Lothar Salin told the applicant, Gretchen Hoskins.

Mrs. Hoskins said a group of students, parents and teachers in the Tamalpais High School attendance area planned a Mill Valley drop-in house. The purpose would not be recreational, but to help young persons with drug, personal and parental problems, she said.

Mrs. Hospkins reported the group was looking for a house to occupy. She said the facility would be staffed round-the-clock by married couples and estimated monthly operation costs at $800.

The commission asked Mrs. Hoskins to return at its Aug. 13 meeting after it had time to review her proposal. The commission had sought $10,000 under the 1969-70 county budget for youth activities, but this was cut by County Administrator Alan Bruce on the ground that such programs should not be funded until a county youth commission was formed to review such requests.

"I think that once the youth commission is established we should get out of this ball game," said Salin.

Commissioner Helen Newman said the roles of the youth and park and recreation commissions in approving youth activity funds should be clarified before formation of the youth group in September.

The commission yesterday named a member, Albert J. Boro, to the 11-member youth group, with Salin as alternate.

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission also:

PER DIEM — Voted 4-1, Salin dissenting, to ask the board of supervisors for a $25 per diem for time spent at meetings. Salin said he would not accept the money because it did not represent a true value of service.

PLANNERS — Asked Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, to invite members of the county planning department to a commission meeting to explain plans for recreational facilities in various county master plans.

PARADISE PARK — Was told by Joske that efforts were underway to reduce vandalism and noise at Paradise Park and to make certain that a neighborhood woman was not affected by the park's sprinklers when she took a shower.

Single Test Case Planned On Flood Control Protest

Both the Marin County District Attorney's office and attorneys for 37 conservationists and college students arrested during a protest of flood control work at Tamalpais Creek have agreed to try one test case.

Mary Kent Schardt of Kentfield was the person chosen to go on trial in Marin Municipal Court July 21 on charges of disturbing the peace and refusing to disperse after being ordered to do sc.

Mrs. Schardt is the daughter of Roger Kent of Kent Woodlands and the cousin of Marty Kent Jones, who has been the leader of the movement to halt flood control work.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Michael Anthony said yesterday that the case will be tried on the legal question of whether a criminal trespass occurred or not.

Charles W. Pierce, attorney for Mrs. Schardt and many of the others in the case, agreed that this would be the battleground.

Both Pierce and Anthony theorized that if Mrs. Schardt is found guilty, many of the defendants will enter no-contest pleas to the charges.

Kent, an attorney, will assist Pierce in the defense of his daughter.

Fog Tail Light Urgency Sounded

BERKELEY (AP) — High intensity tail lights would make safe driving in fog possible, a research engineer has told a symposium on visibility and driving.

Dr. Dan M. Finch of the University of California Institute of Transportation and Traffic Engineering said yesterday, studies indicate the need for three levels of intensity for tail lights: the lowest for normal night driving, another 10 times brighter for daytime driving and a third several thousand times brighter for fog.

Other experts stated new types of high intensity lights can be adapted to provide 60,000 candlepower.

Auditions Slated

Utah Governor Decries Warning

SALT LAKE CI (AP) — Gov. Calvin L. Rampton says the handbills are distorted.

The pamphlets turning up on car windshields say, "Caution. Travel in Utah may be extremely hazardous to your health."

"Beware of taking your family vacationing in Salt Lake City, which is downwind from the Army's million-acre Dugway Proving Ground. This is where deadly nerve gas and biological weapons are being tested," the handbills say, and refer to the incident last year in which 6,400 Skull Valley sheep died following an accident in a nerve gas test at Dugway.

Rampton said, "This is obviously someone or group distorting the facts to carry foward an attack on the morality of nerve gas testing even at the expense of the economy of the state."

The United States uses an average 150 gallons of water a day for each man, woman and child. In 1920 the per capita daily consumption was about 115 gallons.

Some Facts About Women And Alcohol

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

"The women of this nation can, if they will, do more to change public attitudes about alcoholism than any other single force — provided they are able to understand this illness."

In an interview at her home in Sausalito this was the point strongly emphasized by Florette White Pomeroy, chosen last year as one of the 10 women of the year in the Bay Area.

Mrs. Pomeroy is an authority on the subject, for she is the executive director of the National Council on Alcoholism, San Francisco area, and she frankly admits, "Alcoholism is an illness, and I suffered from it.

"It is a combination of physical, emotional and psychological factors. It is a physical allergy to some component in alcohol, and a lot of research is going on to discover what the chemical X factor is that makes some people alcoholics and others not. Some doctors think it has to do with the manner in which the liver metabolizes alcohol."

MRS. POMEROY HAD just returned from attending a week-long school of alcohol studies at Utah University, where every facet of alcoholism was studied and in which her particular part was lecturing and leading group discussions concerning philosophy and action of voluntary citizens groups concerned with the problem.

A slim and striking white-haired woman, Mrs. Pomeroy went on to explain why she believes women should be so vitally concerned with the problem.

"Women and their families suffer from this problem even if they are not alcoholics themselves," she says, "and a study shows that 15 years ago the sex ratio among alcoholics was 20 per cent women and 80 per cent men, whereas now it is 40 per cent women and 60 per cent men.

"MANY WOMEN ARE hidden alcoholics in the home," she says. "The woman who is bored at home is increasingly becoming a victim of this illness, but she is often able to mask it until she is in its grip.

"The important thing is to recognize the early signs while she still has the mental capacity to recognize what is happening. Any changes in drinking habits are danger signs. Getting drunk more than once ought to be of concern, not morally, but as a first sign she may have a problem.

"IN MANY WAYS women suffer more acutely than men because they are supposed to be held in esteem, and when they become victims, their behavior affects their families and their sense of resentment against themselves is enormous.

"I think women can do a great deal to help because women banded together have brought about many changes in other fields, but they must be concerned and better informed, especially about early detection and prevention. There isn't a cure for alcoholism. You arrest the disease by not drinking."

The National Council on Alcoholism is the voluntary health agency dealing with the nation's fourth major health problem. Mrs. Pomeroy stressed that the council, which is involved in educating the public on alcoholism as well as in helping alcoholics, is not against the use of alcohol.

"For 85 per cent of users there is no difficulty," she says. "The council is neither for nor against alcohol. It is concerned only with abuses.

"ALCOHOLISM MUST be recognized as a very complex illness," she continued. "Hampering progress are beliefs that it is a moral issue or a matter of will power. Both of these myths have been exploded in the work that has been done during the past 25 years. The climate in which the alcoholic suffers must be changed. So long as a majority of people hold to the view that the alcoholic is hopeless, he is going to see himself in this light."

Mrs. Pomeroy also operates the San Francisco municipal court school for prevention of alcoholism.

She explained, "A judge has the option when people are brought before him on drunk charges of giving them probation subject to attendance at four sessions of this school designed to bring them information about the disease. About 10 per cent of them are identified as having problems that could lead to alcoholism."

Mrs. Pomeroy's personal story shows that her prominence in her present position is not the only reason for her selection as a woman of the year.

Born in Seattle in 1910, she was graduated from the Loyola University College of Law in Los Angeles just before the great depression. Instead of practicing law she became involved in the emergency relief programs in the 1930s. She was director of the state relief administration for Sacramento County from 1937 to 1939. Then, after two years with the California Physicians Service in San Francisco, she went to Washington, D.C., where she was on the national staff of the Works Progress Administration (WPA).

During World War II she was with the National Housing Administration (NHA) in Washington. In 1945 she went to Europe, and her work in the displaced persons program of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration (UNRA) took her to many cities before she settled four and a half years in Vienna.

FOR A YEAR and a half there she was director of the UNRA tracing bureau, involved with the many details of locating missing persons and re-uniting families. When this work was turned over to the Austrian Red Cross, she became deputy chief of the International Refugee Organization, the successor agency to UNRA.

In 1951 she returned to her mother's home in Hollywood, and after investigating various job possibilities became a regional welfare officer in the regional office of the Federal Civil Defense Administration in San Francisco.

It was at this time when her work involved too much travel for two years that her drinking problem became serious. Fortunately, she says, she got help and was actually not working only two months.

After that she got a job with the San Francisco Federated Fund or United Crusade from 1952 to 1958, and from 1958 to 1966 was director of the San Francisco United Community Fund, a distinguished national first for a woman.

WHEN IN 1966 the five united funds, including Marin, merged into the United Bay Area Crusade, she became director of agency relations and held this position until January, 1968, when she began her present work as executive director of the National Council on Alcoholism. She had worked with it as a volunteer for ten years before that.

A brief marriage in 1955 accounts for her name as Mrs. Pomeroy.

Somehow this busy woman finds time for other interests.

"Golf is No. 1 on my hit parade," she says. "I have played since 1950 but have a 36 handicap and still take lessons. I am a member of the Oakmont Golf and Country Club and play every weekend.

"I grew up learning to cook and started collecting recipes years ago. When I lived in Europe, I developed an interest in foods of other countries. I collect china and have a melange, including some Meissen.

"I enjoy bridge and love going to the theater and listening to my record collection that includes all kinds of music."

Mrs. Pomeroy bought her house in 1956 and has lived there since 1957. She enjoys

Families Play Host To Tennis Youth

By MOLLY MARIN

Young tennis players have virtually taken over the Belvedere-Tiburon area this week. The youthful competitors, 9 to 18 years of age, are participating in the Belvedere Tennis Club's annual Junior Tennis Tournament which will continue through Friday.

Final event will be "Mixed Doubles 27" — when partners ages are added and must total 27 — a popular fun-finale after a week of intensive play.

Homes throughout the Tiburon Peninsula have been opened to the youngsters. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bolcom, who are tournament co-chairmen, have as their guests Tim Russell and Dick Maguire of Albuquerque, N. M., and Marcy and Kelly O'Keefe and Chip Hooper of Los Altos. The John Hoefers welcomed Rodney Kwan and Mike Choy of Honolulu. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Barber have Clarence Kelly of Hawaii staying in their home. Steve Barber Jr., who is home for the summer after his graduation from Asheville Preparatory School in Asheville, N. C., is also playing in the tournament.

The Charles Auerbachs, whose daughter Darby is a contender, are housing Libby Moses, and Maureen Hennig of Los Altos Hills and Pam Richey of Palo Alto.

Keike Izumi and Paula Clark of Hawaii and Julia White of Albuquerque are staying with the Richard Ollers, Arthur Levine of New York, who has been playing in tournaments across the country, is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Richards.

Housing chairman Mrs. Eugene S. Kilgore and Dr. Kilgore opened their Paradise Cove home to Lee Connolly from Caracas, Venezuela, who came the greatest distance to play in the tournament. Susan Mapes from Corpus Christi, Tex., Mike Callahan from the Peninsula and Susan Memedbasich of El Cerrito, are also staying with the Kilgores. Susan will accompany the Kilgores' daughter, Bee, to the tennis nationals in Little Rock, Ark., the end of July. Both girls are playing in the BTC tourney.

The Kenneth Lamotts, whose daughter Ann is a fine player, have five young girls from various parts of California as their guests. The James Kinsers of the Reedlands have Butch Walts and Jim Wile of Fresno in their home.

Tiburon Peninsula Club courts have been opened for the large tournament and Tiburon's tennis professional and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hook, are housing Janet Fisher and Bev Winters of Pebble Beach, Nancy Puente and Elayne Leles of Sacramento and Debbie, Karen and Janice Brink of Modesto. The Hook daughters, Stacey and Dorsey, are also entered in the tournament.

NICOLA AND DEBORAH OSBORNE have been visiting with their grandparents, the Charles Denby Garvins of San Anselmo. The girls left Sunday for London via the Polar route to join their mother, the former Gloria Garvin, and her husband, Arturo Gonzales. Mr. Gonzales is promotion director for Time-Life Inc. in London.

The girls will return to the states in September to attend their respective colleges, Nicola to Trinity University in Texas and Deborah to Lake Forest College in Illinois.

LINDEN HAVEN of San Rafael will spend the summer with her father, L. Q. Haven in Kobe, Japan, where he lives as manager for the American President Lines. She left from San Francisco aboard the SS President Wilson.

Linden will return late in September to live with her aunt and uncle, Col. and Mrs. W. L. Haven of San Rafael. She was graduated from San Francisco State College last spring.

Women Amused As Men Fret About Fat

By JANE ROGERS
London Express Service

LONDON — Go anywhere the men are and you'll find that the conversation will inevitably turn to dieting. Quite suddenly the men in our lives have started to worry about exactly how they figure on the fashion charts.

At one time the classic suit covered a multitude of shapes and sizes and was, more often than not, specially tailor-made to disguise its wearer's defects.

A suit jacket left unbuttoned acts almost like a maternity top, especially if it is aided by a long flapping tie. It disguises the fact that the male underneath has a large bulging midriff, and it's only when he takes the jacket off that you can see the true size of the situation.

Suddenly men's clothes have shape. Many of them have close-fitting slinky waistlines, and would-be wearers are now beginning to panic when they find that they don't measure up to the new look. Some of them are even finding the newer slim-fitting shirts difficult to button. And the women in their lives, naturally, are having a quiet chuckle to see a man faced with the kind of problem they've been living with for years.

WHAT CAN BE done for a bulging male midriff? Well excessive beer-drinking has often been blamed for this, so that Sunday pint will have to go. He'll have to cut down on his consumption of bread and pastries, of course, and go on a high protein diet instead. But that's not the whole answer to the problem. His muscles need tautening up and that means a session of exercises too.

A good one for a large tummy whatever your sex, is quite simple. You lie on the floor and tuck your feet under some large inanimate object like a bed or a settee (something that won't move easily) then, with your feet imprisoned that way, you attempt to sit up without using your elbows for help. It's hell while it lasts, but it definitely tautens those tummy muscles.

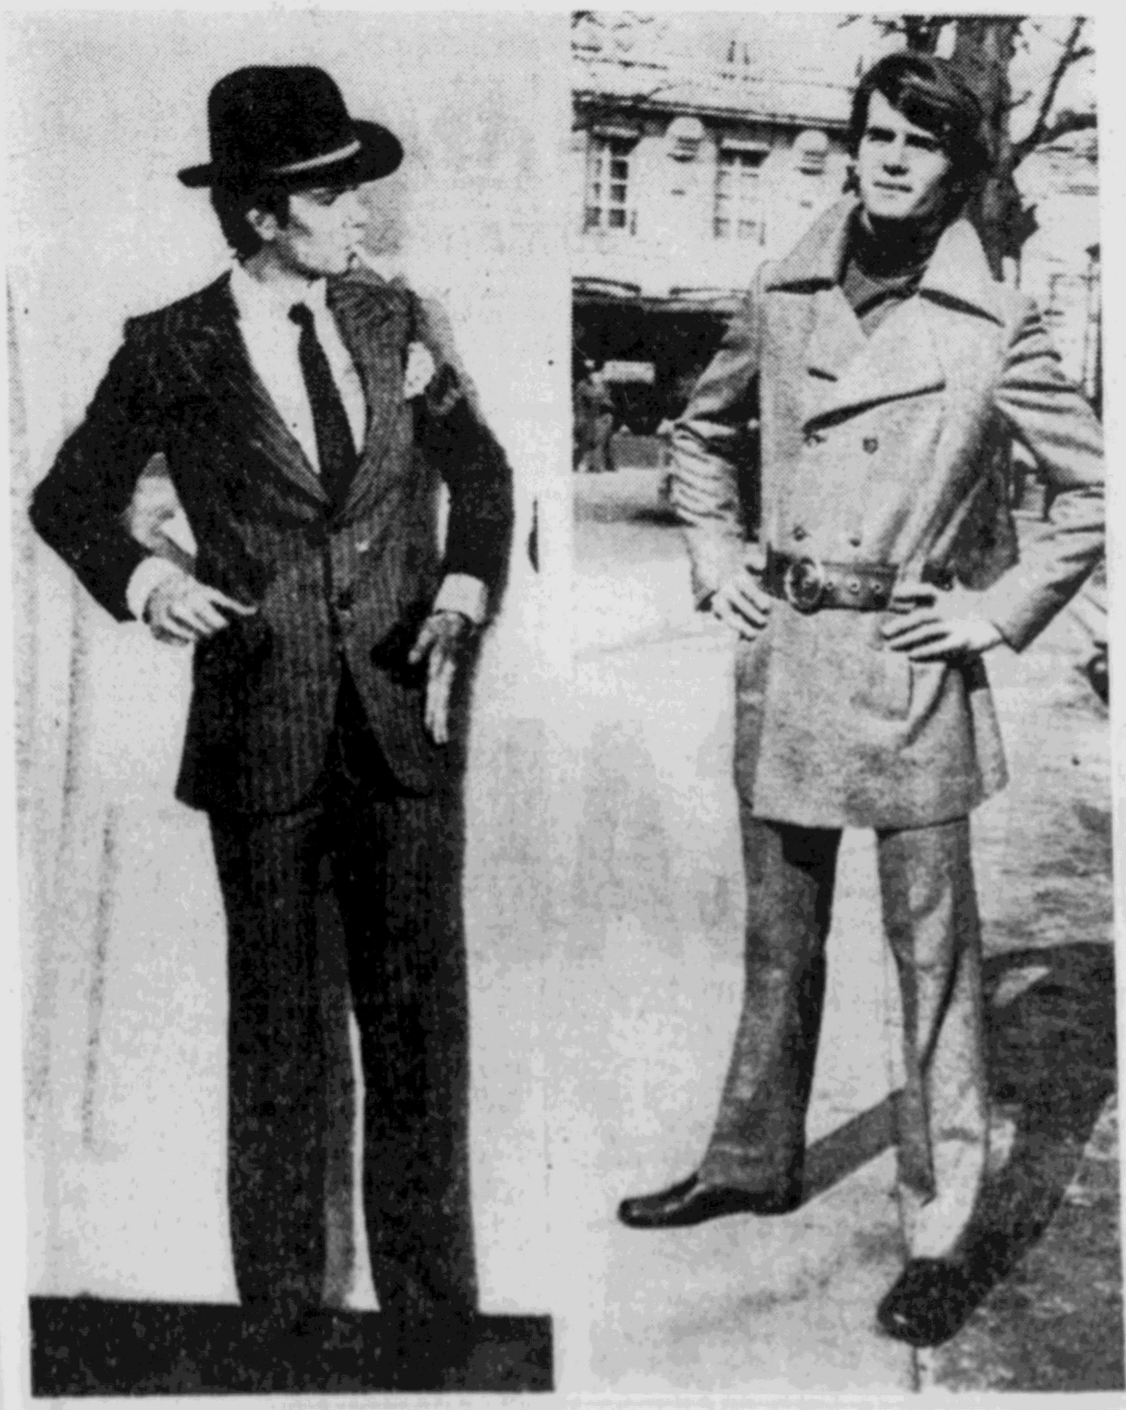
Having got his shape right, the now-trendy newly-slim man can take his pick from a range of play clothes that are just as pretty as those worn by his better half. There's a wet look suit in cire nylon, for instance, in bright canary yellow. It consists of brief boxer shorts and a skinny, waist-fitting top with big patch pockets designed on tone-up boy lines.

Or he can zip himself into a short-legged jump suit in a thick-ribbed fabric that looks like a type of towelling corduroy, is in fact a mixture of cotton and nylon. You have to be really slender to get away with this one, and if he's really worried he can always hide way under the shortie towelling topcoat that tones in with it.

FOR THE MAN with the right shape — broad shoulders, slim waist and respectable legs, there are a whole series of skinny fitting beach sets with ultra-short pants and a bare midriff — they are good for girls too.

What about the man who hasn't been able to make the grade?

Specially for the man with an ample middle comes a white cotton canvas coat from Sweden reaching well down to thigh level. Looks good on the beach or boat.



CARDIN LOOK FOR MEN

Among the new major looks for men by designer Pierre Cardin that will reach the American market this fall are a two button business suit in a new tubular shape, left, with wide lapels, and, right, a leather-belted thigh-high tunic, worn here with a turtleneck shirt.

This is liberation.

Most people call it the bra dress. We call it liberation. Because that's exactly what it does. Liberates you from wearing things over things over things. From wearing anything but it and a pair of bikini pants. The bra dress ends forever unnecessary constraint and false modesty and all that stuff that used to be. The bra dress is the perfect statement of now—young, unencumbered, free. Which is why we have it all kinds of ways in all kinds of colors and prints and fabrics. If you'd like to climb out of your underwear and into the bra dress, see us. We're very freethinking.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl's Dresses Look Better On Friend Than On Owner

DEAR HELEN:

I don't want to seem mean or selfish. Honest, I don't mind my girl friend borrowing my clothes, if only she didn't look twice as good in them as I do!

She has style. On her, my dresses get compliments ; on me, they just hang there and look stupid. She fills them in the right places .

Same thing, when I borrow something of hers. I put it on, and it dies.

I'm beginning to hate all my nice clothes because after my friend wears them, I know I'll never feel the same in them again.

Should I stop lending and taking trades — and how to do it without hurting her feelings? — DUD

DEAR DUD:

Why not instead ask for tips on how to make clothes do the most for you? If you two are the same size, then what you probably need is flair, poise, better posture; perhaps, a change in the way you walk.

Learn her tricks, and you'll both wear well. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Not long ago a "Sad Little Sister" really tore into her big sister. Well, I'm a kid brother, and I don't feel that way. This is what a Big Sister is to me:

She is someone who is first to keep you out of a fight, but if you fight and win, she is first to congratulate you.

She is the one who likes to blackmail you, but never tells a soul what you did.

She always says, "You're not going to the game with me when I drive," but she lets you go anyway.

Even when you're sick, she tries hard to cheer you up, though you are real grouchy and don't deserve it.

Before your voice changes, she tells you to answer the phone and impersonate her to find out if it's the kid she can't stand.

If you get in trouble she is the first to comfort you and try to fix things up.

She is the best person in the world, even when she yells at you.

— A YOUNGER BROTHER

DEAR HELEN:

Sisters don't get much praise from younger sisters. Here's mine:

What is my big sister to me?

She is the one who pays you lots of money to clean her room and sew for her. She brings you home a new blouse when you call her at the office and cry because you lost your boy friend.

She comes to your pajama party to eat all your food and goof around with kids five years younger — and she makes them feel very important.

She tells you that you are pretty when you feel ugly, and then lets you wear anything she owns, even if it's brand new and she hasn't worn it yet.

She is a person who shares your secrets and lets you mess around with her eye makeup. She sets your hair and does your fingernails when you have a special date: So you don't get upset when she expects you to vanish two minutes after her boy friend rings the doorbell.

She even helps you with your algebra!

What is my big sister? Everything anyone could ask for! — LITTLE SISTY

TO ADD SOME variety of interests she has accepted appointments as a member of the board of trustees of the California College of Podiatric Medicine and as a member of the State Board of Consumer Councils of California.

But her major interest for the rest of her life, she says, will be in the field of alcoholism.

Nixon's Voter Rights Bill Is Bypassed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House judiciary subcommittee today bypassed President Richard M. Nixon's proposed voting rights legislation and approved a five-year extension of the existing law.

The administration proposal to shift the focus of the act from the South to the nation at large was never even offered during the brief subcommittee session.

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said approval of the 1965 act extension was by "overwhelming" voice vote. The full Judiciary Committee is also expected to approve the bill when it considers it next week.

Meanwhile, a Negro leader told the Senate constitutional rights subcommittee that the administration's proposed legislation could tie Congress up in a struggle lasting beyond the expiration of the present law.

"That's why the administration's action can be diversionary, disruptive and destructive," Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington office of the NAACP, told the Senate group.

He said the administration is saying that Congress has the power to prohibit voter literacy tests by the states even where racial discrimination is not a factor. Mitchell said he is delighted that the administration is "thinking along these lines," but he said it departs from what is settled law and thus opens up a whole new battle front.

He added that it could bring on a struggle in Congress that would last beyond the Aug. 6, 1970 expiration date of the present voting rights law.

In the House, the full Judiciary Committee will take up the legislation next Tuesday.

Tune's The Same Again On Sausalito Waterfront

Long-standing complaints — unrealistic parking, bulkhead, pierhead and density requirements — were heard again last night by the Sausalito Planning Commission in the third public hearing on the latest central waterfront proposal.

The commission continued the public hearing to 8 p.m. Wednesday in city hall without taking action of any of last night's discussion.

However, the commission did ask planning director H. Eric Borgwardt to prepare comments on the plan with particular thought to complaints raised by property owners involved.

Borgwardt said he would have the report ready "by the time the commission is ready to make recommendations to the council — in a few weeks."

Property owners unanimously decried planning consultant William E. Spangle's recommendations, presented in May, for densities which would limit the total commercial space in the plan area — downtown the waterfront and Caledonia Street — to approximately 900,000 square feet of useable space.

Since most of the downtown area is already highly developed, the limitation would particularly hit the relatively undeveloped waterfront area.

Architect Rene L. Cardinaux, representing Sam Zakasian. said, once again, that such strict densities would cause a quality development to be economically unfeasible thus forcing cheap construction with no amenities for the city.

Spangle said the densities had been revised to half of some suggested earlier in the year "because when we studied it further we discovered we had made a mistake with the higher densities."

He said limited parking and traffic congestion made the lower densities necessary.

Cardinaux and attorney Hugh G. Lawrence, representing Madden and Lewis and the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, both questioned the accuracy of Spangle's parking allocations.

In particular, Lawrence said that out of 1,500 parking spaces required for Madden properties by Spangle, only 650 would be necessary based on actual plans for the area.

Spangle conceded that in particular instances, motels for example, the parking requirements might be less but noted that the general formula of one space for each 300 feet of useable floor area had been used, "as an average."

"If traffic is so bad," Lawrence said, "perhaps Humboldt Street ought to be developed to provide some relief."

Lawrence asked the commission to "seriously consider" the question of whether Humboldt should be developed, noting that the street would bring those driving through the city "back down to the shoreline" in a manner similar to the south end of Bridgeway.

Property owners, to a man, also complained they had not received copies of Spangle's reports enough in advance of the public hearings to study them properly. Chairman Robert L. Nissen promised it wouldn't happen again.

This commission agreed to discuss the proposed expansion of Vina Del Mar Park, and statements on street rights-of-way and public buildings at next week's meeting.

Garage Fire; Owner Saves Two Autos

Fire ruined the garage of a Marinwood home today after the occupant drove two cars parked inside to safety.

Marinwood Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield estimated damage to the garage and contents at 2595 Heatherstone Drive at $10,000 to $12,000.

Bonfield said resident Howard Simmons was in the kitchen shortly after 1 a.m. when he heard a crackling noise in the garage, looked out and saw fire. He drove his two cars out of the garage.

Bonfield said the cause of the blaze was undetermined.

ULTIMATE WEAPON

Do Police Really Need Shotguns?

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- Police surround a Burbank bar. When a burglary suspect tries to escape through a window, an officer fires. The man falls dead...

A 17-year-old, running down a suburban street after wounding a housewife with a pistol, ignores an order to halt and a patrolman shoots. The youth is killed...

A young mother, after going berserk and slaying two children, runs from a Cudahy home and points a gun at a sheriff's deputy. He shoots her dead...

The incidents, all in this area this year, have one thing in common: In each case the weapon was a shotgun.

ULTIMATE WEAPON

The shotgun loaded with buckshot, with firepower likened to that of a machinegun, has become the ultimate weapon in the arsenal of peace officers. Like the Colt .45 of frontier days, it's the "equalizer."

A decade ago few departments had shotguns as standard equipment in squad cars. Now they're common. And being used. Some jurisdictions even employ sawed-off models, deadlier due to wider spread of pellets.

What is the shotgun's role in law enforcement? Most departments say they should be used only when an officer feels his life, or the life of an innocent person, is threatened. Some agencies have detailed shotgun manuals. Others leave use to the discretion of the officer.

In the Burbank bar shooting the suspect was unarmed. A coroner's jury called the shotgun death justifiable homicide.

Because the weapon is so awesome, there can be strong reaction to its use in some situations.

DEATH, OUTCRY

After a sheriff's deputy killed with buckshot a "People's Park" demonstrator during rioting at Berkeley there were protests and demonstrations from groups across the country. The deputy said the young man was throwing objects into a crowd from atop a building. There were protests too over use of birdshot for crowd control in the same riot. The lighter weight pellets wounded scores and one youth was blinded.

The California Highway Patrol's 33-page Shotgun Training Manual says, after noting that an officer's pistol is primarily for defense: "The shotgun is primarily a weapon of offense... only brought into use in situations where its imminent use is anticipated.

"The shotgun has a distinct psychological effect on persons who believe it may be used against them. The muzzle of the weapon, when viewed in the hands of a police officer, may look as big as the open end of an empty oil drum. This psychological effect can, in many instances, be used to good advantage without need of actual firing."

The manual says the shotgun finds its best use in such situations as roadblocks, prison escapes and searches for known felons.

The standard weapon is 12 gauge, carried in patrol cars with four rounds in the magazine and the chamber empty. Each round contains nine pea-size lead pellets, any of which can kill.

"When used as an anti-personnel weapon, the 12 gauge shotgun with buckshot is a sure hitter and an effective man-stopper as compared with other police firearms," says the California manual.

"At close range no other police arm matches its shocking power...It need not be precisely aimed, but may be only pointed ...The shotgun has a dangerous range of ½ mile. The shot pattern at this range can cover an area up to 200 yards in width. For this reason, extreme caution must be used in populated areas."

The manual warns, too, of firing at a felon in an automobile — "buckshot can smash through an automobile body... and cause injury or death to all occupants."

The manual adds: "Another common misconception is that projectiles come out of the muzzle in a spray without direction. On the contrary, the 12 gauge shotgun is an extremely accurate and dependable weapon at close range with buckshot."

Some peace officers favor the weapons as much for their reputation as their firepower.

'GREAT FEAR'

"The sound of a shotgun being cocked," says Sgt. Don McClelland, training officer at the Los Angeles Police Academy, "can inspire great fear."

Says Police Chief Elmer Briscoe of Reno, Nev., where they use the sawed-off models: "If you show a shotgun to a person he generally comes to a screeching halt. You can miss with a handgun, but you don't miss with shotguns. A shotgun is a lot more effective weapon, if you have to use a weapon."

Carson County, Nev., Sheriff Robert Humphrey comments: "My own preference is the shotgun, simply because psychologically it has a tremendous effect. Everybody knows what a 12 gauge will do. Also, it doesn't take a whole lot of sophisticated training for a man to be able to use it with a fair degree of accuracy."

Oakland Police Chief Charles R. Gain says most squad cars in his city are manned by one officer, and one man with a shotgun is two or three times as effective as one man with a handgun.

In San Diego, shotguns are available, but only supervisors can determine whether an emergency is serious enough so they should be carried. In San Diego County, undersheriff Bill Woods says, "We don't pull a shotgun unless they are thugs who really mean to kill you." He recalls deputies once killed with shotguns two men who burst from a hotel after an armed robbery, guns blazing.

USE SPREADS

In Los Angeles County, there's a shotgun under the front seat in every sheriff's patrol car. In rural Hemet, there's a shotgun in the trunk of each of the town's two squad cars. In posh Beverly Hills, new police chief Joseph Kimble has recommended shotguns for patrol cars, but finances are holding him up.

"The increasing violence everywhere has splashed over into Beverly Hills," he says.

Even fire departments pack shotguns in some cities, particularly those where rioting has occurred. San Bernardino Mayor Al C. Ballard says: "We haven't had a bit of trouble since we equipped the Fire Department with them three years ago, and that speaks for itself."

The guns aren't carried on rigs, however, and Ballard says they might be used only in cases where firemen were fired upon or stoned. He has been criticized by professional fire fighter associations, Ballard says, "but they're not running the city, I am."

In the city of Los Angeles, a proposal to equip firemen with shotguns died after being criticized by various officials.

Even security guards use shotguns. At Pepperdine College in Los Angeles a guard shot and killed a teen-ager this year during a night campus confrontation with a group of young basketball players. The case is in the courts. And the school has now outlawed shotguns for its small security staff.

There are times when a shotgun is out of place, says Capt. Paul Bratsch of the Los Angeles sheriff's training academy. "You wouldn't want it in a supermarket or a crowded place where some innocent bystander could get hurt."

And, observes a highway patrolman, "I don't think the public would stand for an officer getting out of his car armed with a shotgun to write out a speeding ticket."

POLICE ARSENAL — Police departments around the country are arming their patrolmen with, among other new weapons, 12-gauge shotguns. Law officers say its mere presence can be a disarming factor when confronting threatening or escaping suspects, and try to discourage its actual use. However, a number of people have already been killed by police shotguns this year. Deputy Sheriff Richard D. Willey of Los Angeles poses with the deadly weapon for wide-angle lens photo. Ghetto Murders: Life Sentence

BOCHUM, Germany (UPI)— A West German court today sentenced a tax official to life in prison for murdering 47 Jews in wartime Poland.

The court found Karl Oppermann, a 61-year-old former Nazi SS sergeant, guilty of shooting 47 Jews in the ghetto at Tarnow during World War II.

Another defendant, Gerhard Gaa, 63, was acquitted of charges of complicity in murder. The court said since Gaa had not acted with malicious intent he could go free under a recently revised law.

Bormans End Tour Of Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Astronaut Frank Borman left the Soviet Union for home today after a goodwill visit he called a "complete success and a personal pleasure."

Borman and his family were seen off at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport by Soviet officials, cosmonauts and their wives. He blew them a kiss just before entering the Soviet commercial airliner taking him to New York via a brief stop in London.

"I am leaving today with a very fine memory of a wonderful 10 days," Borman told an airport news conference. "Everywhere we went we were received with warmth and friendship from Russians in all walks of life."

Diploma Ceremonies Inside San Quentin

With the prison chapel as a backdrop, 336 inmates at San Quentin last night were handed diplomas and certificates marking completion of hours of study behind the high walls.

It was the prison's regular graduation exercises. Dr. Berkeley Johnson, assistant dean of instruction at the College of Marin, was there to deliver the main speech.

Seated in the audience were about 30 wives and relatives of some of the graduates.

Donald Walter, 30, serving a term for burglary and manslaughter in Los Angeles, received an Associate of Arts degree for work under a special program established in cooperation with the College of Marin. Thirty-seven other men completed extension courses given by the college.

Literacy certificates were won by 56 inmates. Elementary school diplomas were conferred on 111 prisoners while 137 received high school diplomas and 31 others certificates of completion of vocational courses.

One of those receiving a high school diploma was Walter C. Hines, 30, imprisoned for the robbery and shooting of a liquor store clerk in Los Angeles. Hines is a resident of Death Row.

Afterward there was a reception with coffee and cake, a chance for brief exchanges between the relatives who came and their loved ones. And then the men were returned to their cells.

Firemen Plan Recruiting Fete

The Belvedere volunteer firemen's annual beer bust will be held at 7 p.m. July 18 at the firehouse to meet personnel and inspect equipment, according to president Tom H. Eubanks.

The free beer bust is open to all men of the community with the only stipulation being those who attend must bring their own beer mugs, Eubanks said.

Firemen, meeting last night, also agreed to hold the annual firemen's ball on Aug. 22 at the San Francisco Yacht Club.

Houseboat Residents Ask PG&E Injunction

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday toured houseboats at Gate Five near Sausalito and then took under submission the questions of electricity in the area and the county's right to clear underwater streets.

Judge E. Warren McGuire indicated that he will rule next week on two requests for preliminary injunctions by landscaper Piro Caro, leader of the houseboat residents who lives on the ferryboat San Rafael.

One injunction asks that the county and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. be restrained from shutting off electricity to the houseboats and the other that the county be stopped from removing debris from rights-of-way on the Arques property.

Judge McGuire, who was accompanied on his tour by attorneys for the county and Caro, said that he spent about two hours looking at the wiring which the county maintains is unsafe and touring houseboats, including Caro's ferry.

Caro has claimed that his ferryboat is an "antique with historical interest" and that the county plans to remove it to clear rights of way through the Arques property.

Judge McGuire said that he was not offered refreshments on his visit but that he did hear "some live music."

Trustees Take No Action On Sonoma State Election

COMBINED AP & UPI

The trustees made no direct move against President Ambrose Nichols Jr., who upheld a student committee's ruling validating Gillete's election after three earlier elections, won by John Owen of Novato, were declared invalid by the committee.

However, the prolonged issue at the college this past semester led the trustees to adopt a resolution calling for creation of a special committee to prepare recommendations for a uniform code throughout the state college system outlining student election procedures and qualifications for student officers.

Gillete, a Cotati resident, is a Black Students Union leader at the Sonoma campus. He has served a jail term following a conviction for importing marijuana into the state.

Color TV Stolen

Consultant Certain Both Buses, Ferryboats Can Work Together

Ferries and improved bus transit from Marin to San Francisco can operate together.

Claude Gruen, head of a study recommending restoration of ferry service, gave this assurance last night to the Marin County Transit District board.

Gruen of Arthur D. Little Inc. consultants presented the firm's study of the feasibility of ferryboat service from Marin to San Francisco.

(On Tuesday, Gruen told the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee, for which his firm's $45,000 study was made , that there should be a halt to almost all plans to improve bus service between San Francisco and Marin for at least two years.

(The time, he said,was needed to test new kinds of vessels and there was danger improved bus service would attract patrons needed to make ferryboats financially feasible.

(The only exception to the two-year moratorium on improving bus service, Gruen said, should be between North Marin and San Francisco's civic center, routes that would not be replaced by ferry service.)

The public would best be served by an integrated system of bridge, bus and ferryboat, Gruen last night told the transit district directors, who did not question him on the proposed moratorium.

Directors accepted the report for study, but wondered what effect a bus system, whenever improved, would have on the feasibility of ferries.

According to the report there could be either:

A system using four conventional hull ferryboats, 1,000 to 1,500 persons capacity, operating from a central terminal in Corte Madera or:

A ssytem using 11 hydrofoil or air-cushion supported craft with 250-persons capacity, from terminals in North Sausalito, Corte Madera, and at Gallinas Creek.

Gruen said that an improved bus system would mean that fewer present bus riders would switch to ferries, but it probably wouldn't cut down on the prospective number of drivers who would leave their cars for ferries.

Nita J. Gruen, sociologist for the study, said "for many people the ferry is a more pleasurable prospect than a bus."

If improved bus service lowered the number of prospective ferry riders, the number of boats could be reduced, but "the feasibility wouldn't be impaired," Gruen contended.

Director Dean N. Meyer, a member of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board, said the board district has asked its manager Dale W. Luehring to pursue an integrated transportation system.

The Arthur D. Little study suggested the bridge district oversee the ferry project, with support from San Francisco and Marin County Transit District.

The transit district is awaiting a final report from its manager, Seymour Kashin, on a proposed transportation system from Marin to San Francisco.

Kashin reported that the Arthur D. Little findings will be included in his study. His report will include recommendations "dealing with both an all-bus commuter system and a combination bus-ferry system," Kashin reported. He expected that his final report would be ready in two weeks.

Gruen said the proposed ferry system could be in operation in about two years after a decision is made on which type of system, conventional hull or high speed craft, would be installed.

First, he said hydrofoil and air cushioned craft would have to be tested to see if they meet all standards. If they don't qualify, then the conventional hull, one-terminal program could be undertaken, he asserted.

Land acquisision and street development would have to start immediately to make the start of service in two years, he said.

Supervisor William A. Gnoss, a district director, said he was concerned about the safety of ferries in San Pablo Bay, noting the strong winds, fog and wave action there.

Gruen said modern ferries have advanced navigational equipment, and if any particular craft couldn't meet safety standards, it would be eliminated.

Thomas T. Storer, former Marin supervisor and co-chairman of the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee, urged directors to implement the ferry system "as soon as practicable."

He said the Little report was the only one of several transportation reports that "went to the community and asked 'what do you want?' "

Ferries, he contended, do less harm to the environment than other transportation systems, result in less air pollution and don't result in injury accidents.

The system could be flexible to provide service to Oakland or Richmond, and would bring tourists to Marin, he said.

Meyer said the question before directors on improved bus service and ferries was "how much of each do we buy?"

Corte Madera Mayor Edward W. Colthurst, a director, was absent.

Motel Sought On Waterfront

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Dillingham Land Corp. spokesman told the San Francisco Port Commission yesterday his firm is negotiating with the city planning commission for permission to build a 450-room hotel over water near Fisherman's Wharf.

Hugh Scott, the representative, said the firm had not yet made a permanent application for a building permit but thinks "it can get along with" the 40-foot height limitation for the area.

Scott was before the port commission because his firm would have to lease Pier 37 for the structure which would sit on piling over San Francisco Bay.

Power Failure

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The failure of a 12,000-volt distribution line yesterday shut off electrical power to some 3,000 persons living just west of downtown San Francisco, the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said.

U.S. Condemns Hanoi On Prisoner Secrecy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A Defense Department official says the U.S. knows very little about the 1.340 American soldiers missing in Vietnam, because the North Vietnamese are guilty of "bad faith" in all efforts to exchange prisoner information.

Two of the missing men are from Marin, according to a Hamilton Air Force Base spokesman, who declined to identify them "for sake of their families."

Richard G. Capen Jr., deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, told newsmen yesterday the government does not know whether the men listed as missing are, or have been, in prison camps — or whether any of them are dead.

Capen said only 345 of the missing men are known to be prisoners of the North Vietnamese. More than half of these are Air Force men.

The Defense Department official said information is so sketchy on the captive airmen that a fuzzy photograph of one was shown to wives of missing men—and 20 of them identified the picture as being of their husbands.

Capen, who later briefed families of missing men, said only about 100 families have received only 700 letters in the past years from North Vietnam captives.

The United States holds no North Vietnamese prisoners, Capen said. Instead, they are turned over to the South Vietnamese government.

Although the Communists have shown little concern about passing along information on prisoners, Capen said "We do believe" they will honor a promise to release three Americans.

The promised release was for July 4, but the three captives have not yet been heard from. Speaking of the missing, Capen said, "These men have not been forgotten."

Mao's Favorite Blasts Conclave

TOKYO (AP) — Red Chinese Defense Minister Lin Piao, Chairman Mao Tse-tung's heir designate, has denounced the recent Moscow world Communist conference as a "sinister anti-Communist, antipopular and counterrevolutionary" gathering.

It was the first statement made by a Red Chinese official on the Moscow conference which China boycotted.

The statement, broadcast yesterday by Peking's New China News Agency, was contained in a congratulatory message to Albania on the 26th anniversary of the founding of the Albanian Communist party.

San Anselmo Home Burglary Discovered

A portable television set, a floor polisher and a tool box, valued at a total of $185, were stolen from the home of James J. McDonald of 16 Florence Avenue, San Anselmo, he reported to police yesterday.

Entry was made through an open window between 4 p.m. Monday, and 8 a.m. yesterday, police said.

Beethoven Shirts Creator Howard Gossage Succumbs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — White-haired Howard Luck Gossage, whose imaginative advertising copy dealt with Anguillan independence, paper airplanes, Beethoven sweatshirts and Irish whisky, is dead of leukemia at 51.

Gossage died yesterday in Presbyterian Hospital, which he entered June 30. His funeral will be private.

He brought an offbeat and often crusading approach to his work at the San Francisco advertising firm of Freeman, Mander and Gossage, which he founded in 1957.

His associate, Jerry Mander, with whom he co-authored the best-selling book "The Great International Airplane Book," said of Gossage:

"He felt that advertising should propagate meaningful ideas . . . not just sell products."

Born Aug. 30, 1917 in Chicago, Gossage was graduated from the University of Kansas City. He was a Navy pilot in World War II and advertising manager of radio station KCBS here before entering agency work.

In addition to writing numerous articles for magazines and lecturing, he was a visiting professor in advertising at Pennsylvania State University.

Married three times and twice divorced, he leaves his widow, former Broadway actress Sarah Kemp, and their 3-year-old daughter, Sarah Luck. His second wife was Mrs. Mary Baty Gossage who lives in San Francisco with their two children, Eben, 15, and Amelia, 13. Mrs. Page Steele of Thousand Oaks was his first wife.

Bids Opened On Island Marina

James Marsh Co. of San Carlos, San Mateo County, with a bid of $229,935, was lowest of seven bidders on construction of marina facilities at Ayala Cove, Angel Island, the state Office of Architecture and Construction has reported.

The new facilities will consist of 40 boat moorings, a 36-foot extension of the pier, two floats and a launching ramp.

The project is one of the first steps in a long range plan by the state Parks and Recreation Commission to expand development of Angel Island State Park.

Health Report Errs: 53 Strep Infections

There were 53 cases of streptococcus infection and no cases of syphilis reported last week in Marin County.

Casper Vaults Into Contention In British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Steady Bill Casper put himself in strong contention in the British Open Golf Championship today by firing another two-under-par 70 for a two-round total of 140. But Jack Nicklaus's failure to conquer the back nine may have put him out of reach of the title.

Nicklaus, who shot an opening round 75, went out determined to gain ground and fired a 33 for the first nine holes. Then he ran into trouble coming home and took a 37.

The blonde belter from Columbus, Ohio, also had difficulty on the same stretch in the opening round yesterday — the same one that cost him the 1963 championship here.

Although his 70 duplicated Casper's, Nicklaus was much further back with a 145 total, seven strokes behind the early leaders, Tony Jacklin and Alex Caygill.

Casper, of San Diego, also went out in 33 and came home in 37, but finished just two strokes back of the leading British pair with first-round leader Bob Charles of New Zealand scheduled to start later in the day. Charles had an opening 66.

The struggling American contingent also suffered another blow when George Archer, the Masters champion from Gilroy, withdrew because of illness. Archer, who shot an opening 79, was stricken with gastro enteritis and a heavy cold.

Among the other early finishers were Gary Player of South Africa, who came in with a 68 for a 142 total. Miller Barber of Sherman, Tex., who tacked a 74 onto his opening 69 and was another stroke further back.

Rich Basset of Upper Montclair, N.J., had a 75 for 153.

Casper managed two birdies and seven pars on the first nine over Royal Lytham's 6,848-yard layout, but slipped to bogey fives on the 14th and 15th and had to settle for a 70.

After his round, Nicklaus singled out those final nine holes as the determining factor in the tournament.

"I believe," said Nicklaus, "that the holes where the champion will be made are on the last nine."

Nicklaus bogeyed the third, then birdied the sixth, seventh and ninth to turn two under par. But he took a bogey on No. 12 and another on the 15th when he

An overnight rain freshened

An overnight rain fresheneed the course and encouraged bold play as the field eyed the cutoff that will send only the low 70 and ties into tomorrow's third round. The field will be cut again after the third round to the low 45 and ties for the final for Saturday.

Archer had spent two days confined to bed after he arrived in Britain and had little chance to practice on the course.

"It's no good me trying to carry on when I don't feel good," he said in announcing his withdrawal.

JIM MURRAY

It's Not Palm Springs On This Golf Course

BLACKPOOL — You could tell right away it wasn't Palm Springs. Don't bother to bring sunglasses.

I'd like to have the false teeth concession in town.

It was a nice balmy day when I arrived. The temperature was up in the 50s. So was the population for the most part.

It's listed as a seaside resort but the only things in swimming had fins on them. You don't have to watch for sharks at these latitudes. Just icebergs. Those aren't really stiff upper lips the British are keeping. They're frozen. You could leave fish out in the sun here. It wouldn't melt butter. For one thing it isn't out long enough. "Summer" lasts several hours here. Five minutes at a time.

Any people who would consider the North Atlantic as a swimming hole would eat pickles for breakfast and make a pie out of filet mignon. And they do. You can always tell a foreigner here. He's the one who hasn't got dyspepsia. Yet.

Working Class Resort Area

It's a working class resort area. A gale force wind was blowing the day I arrived. The North Atlantic was rolling in gray and sullen. I would think it was about as much fun for a holiday as the Murmansk run. It gives you a sore throat just to look at it.

But if a Beverly Hills pool swimmer would turn blue on the strand of Blackpool, you should see what the crowd from the Tucson Open would do if it were handed a bag and told to go out and shoot 63 at the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's (pronounce it "sin-tons").

The fairways aren't mowed, they're bitten. The mowers aren't power driven, they have four feet and wool. If the sheep aren't hunugry, it looks as if they sent a guy out with a pair of scissors and a dust pan. Neither one of them makes very much of an impression on the weeds. There are places you could hit your ball here where they might have trouble finding you.

Trouble Finding Greens

You not only have trouble hitting a green, you have trouble finding it. You don't have to know how to putt, you have to know where.

The fairways are really unfairways, although there is room for two comfortably. When Sam Snead first saw the course, he asked them what they did with the cows.

At first glance, it looks like an empty lot in Cleveland. It's actually on the wrong side of the tracks. A railroad is the out-of-bounds marker on the first three holes. Slice a ball off the tee and you might have to go play it in London. The seventh and eighth holes are on the British Railways' Midland line, too, and some golfers have been about ready to get aboard by then, sticks and all.

You need a railroad timetable as well as a scorecard because you don't want to be lining up a birdie putt when the noon flyer to Preston comes hooting through.

The sprinkler system is called "Clouds." You ask the greenskeeper if he's going to water the greens today and he says, "I dunno." He might wet them with an ice cube. Only trouble it, there aren't any in this country. The only beverage that isn't warm is the coffee.

Can't Get Sunburn Here

The only thing you can't get on this course is sunburn. George Archer played in ear muffs Tuesday. He was playing with a head cold. Playing this course with a cold is like duelling in the park with hemophilia.

A storm which was wrecking ships at sea at the time boomed down over the course and more and more golfers were looking longingly at that train disappearing down in the direction of London and a way back into the north temperate zone.

From America, players' last-minute "regrets" were piling in faster than at a gangster's wedding.

I expect watching this tournament will be more fun than watching a bunch of guys going to the electric chair. Some will go stumbling along praying or weeping, others will be cursing the warden.

I wouldn't bother so much with scores. But I would take roll call every night, and check the late train to London for a lot of guys who got on in cleats, carrying clubs and cards with lots of 6's on them, drenched to the skin and checking airline schedules to Miami.

Morrall May Join Namath If Unitas Gets Top Job

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Not one, but both key quarterbacks from last year's Super Bowl might be missing when the pro football season opens.

Joe Namath, the reluctant quarterback of the New York Jets, announced his retirement a month ago. Yesterday, Namath's Super Bowl opponent, Earl Morrall of the Baltimore Colts, indicated he might retire, too.

IN SAN FRANCISCO

He told a San Francisco news conference he would discuss his possible retirement with the Colts in Baltimore this weekend. The Colts open training camp on Sunday.

"My communications with them will be the deciding factor," said the National Football League's 1968 Player of the Year. "At this point, I'm right in the middle."

So is Namath, but for a different reason.

The flamboyant Jet star said in Corona, where he's making a movie, that he's sticking to his decision not to obey Commissioner Pete Rozelle's order to get rid of his part interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by gamblers.

NO CHANGE

"I would change my mind if someone would say where I was wrong," he said. "If I have been wrong, I won't want any part of the restaurant."

Despite his big season last year, Morrall still might have to fight for his job as he has had to throughout his 13-year career. He said quarterback John Unitas, sidelined much of last season because of injuries, has been throwing well all summer.

In another retirement, Nick Buoniconti, five time All-American Football League linebacker, said he notified the Miami Dolphins he was leaving football to devote himself to his law practice. Buoniconti, acquired by the Dolphins from the Boston Patriots in an off-season trade, said fruitless contract talks prompted his decision.

In Philadelphia, running back Leroy Keyes of Purdue said he won't play in the Aug. 1 College All-Star Game against the Jets unless he signs a bonus contract with the Eagles before the game.

O. J. STILL OUT

Super back O. J. Simpson of USC, the Heisman Trophy winner, still is holding out on the Buffalo Bills for a reported $600,000 to sign. The Bills opened training camp for rookies but Simpson doesn't have to report until after the All-Star Game.

The Washington Redskins opened camp in Carlisle, Pa., under new Coach Vince Lombardi. Quarterback Gary Beban said the team already has shown a "new morale, an instant unity" because of their legendary new pilot from the Green Bay Packers.

Giants Send Juan To Mound Tonight

Key Series In Dodger Stadium

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Manager Walter Alston and his Los Angeles Dodgers couldn't be blamed for wondering what will happen in the National League's Western Division race once the San Francisco Giants become healthy.

Game On Television

Tonight's game will be televised over KTVU, Channel 2, beginning at 7:55 p.m.

The surging Giants limped into town today, sending ace righthander Juan Marichal, 11-3, against the Dodger's Don Sutton, 11-8, in the opener of a four-game series. The Giants have won nine of their last 12 games.

PRIDE

Alston might not recognize many of the Giants' starters but San Francisco skipper Clyde King is beaming with pride over the work of his reserves following yesterday's 10-3 romp over the Houston Astros.

For the second straight game, a Houston pitcher had a one-hit shutout after six innings only to have the Giants erupt in the seventh and eighth for one-sided runaways.

Right-hander Larry Dierker was clobbered for two runs in the seventh and five more in the eighth Tuesday, dropping a 7-4 decision.

Yesterday the Giants defeated Denny Lemaster, 7-9, with four runs in the seventh and six in the eighth.

RESERVES

Ken Henderson's two-run double and Dave Marshall's run-scoring pinch-single were the big blows in the seventh, while Bob Burda's grand-slam homer highlighted the eighth-inning rally.

Those three reserves plus Tito Fuentes have filled in for injured Giants' regulars. King indicated Willy McCovey, Hal Lanier and Jim Hart would be sidelined again for the Dodger series opener.

"Our reserves don't have sensational averages," says King. "But they have determination — and that's more important. These last two wins have given us some momentum going into the Dodgers series.

WANTS THREE

"I'm usually satisfied with a split on the road," he added, "but we're capable of doing better. It would be great if we could win three games but the Dodgers will be much tougher this time with Maury Wills and Manny Mota."

King regards the Dodgers as his biggest worry in the tight Western Division race. "I'd better be most concerned about the Dodgers," he points out. "We have 14 games left with them."

LINZY SAVE

Veteran reliever Frank Linzy retired the last six Astros to register his eighth save and help rookie left-hander Ron Bryant, notch his first major league victory.

Hurler Dillon Powers Win For Novato

Novato American Legion baseballers used the pitching and batting talents of Russ Dillon to down Napa 4-2 yesterday on the Novato High School diamond.

Dillon, the classy southpaw graduate of Novato High School, struck out 13, walked five and allowed five hits. Dillon and first baseman Barry Berringer each hit home runs. Right fielder Glen Holsclaw and centerfielder Gary Trono each cracked triples to aid the Novato cause.

The Novato nine, now 10-5 on the season, travels to Wilson Park in Vallejo Saturday for a 1 p.m. game against Vallejo Post 550 Blue, then host Vacaville at 1:30 the following day at Novato High.

ALL-STAR POWER

Homer-Hitting Outfield For A.L.

NEW YORK — (UPI) — In an attempt to break a six-game losing streak in All-Star competition, the American League has selected a homer-hitting outfield of Reggie Jackson, Frank Howard and Frank Robinson to start in the classic at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium, Washington, July 22.

This ower brigade has combined for 85 homers. Jackson, the Oakland Athletics sphomore sensation, has 34; Howard, the Washington Senators slugger, 32, and Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles, 19.

PLAYERS VOTE

Players, coaches and managers voted for the starting lineup released yesterday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Rico Petrocelli of the Boston Red Sox, the top vote-getter with 286, gained the shortstop berth with Boog Powell of Baltimore at first, Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins at second, Sal Bando of Oakland at third. Bill Freehan of the Detroit Tigers will open as catcher.

The remainder of the 28-man squad, including pitchers and reserves, are the exclusive choices of Manager Mayo Smith of the world champion Detroit Tigers. Each club must be represented at the All-Star competition.

MOST VOTES

Jackson received the most votes among the outfielders, 260. Robinson, who played on five National League All-Star squads as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, collected 250 votes and Howard, 169.

Brooks Robinson of Baltimore missed out as the starting third baseman for the first time in six years when he amassed 126 votes to 163 for Bando in the closest balloting for any position.

MISSED TWICE

Harmon Killebrew missed on two opportunities for a starting role. He was named on 33 ballots for third baseman and his 96 was far short of Powell's 210 at first. Killebrew, the 1968 starting first sacker, was injured in the game last year while stretching for a low throw.

Five of the selectees are hitting over .300. At the time of Kuhn's announcement, Carew led the majors with a .356 mark. Frank Robinson was at .329, Powell and Petrocelli .309 and Howard .308.

One Pitch Is Costly For Athletic Reliever

CHICAGO (AP) — A pinch hitter swinging at the first ball thrown by a relief pitcher last night cost the Oakland Athletics their sixth defeat in seven games.

Pete Ward, pinch hitting for the Chicago White Sox, belted the ball over the fence against pitcher George Lauzerique in the eighth inning and that produced three runs, enough for a 5-3 victory.

Oakland's Blue Moon Odom, 11-3, was to hurl for the A's today against Chicago's Tommy John, 5-7.

WALK, SINGLE

Before Ward connected on his game winning blow, Ed Herrman had walked and Buddy Bradford had singled.

The Athletics got their three runs in the top of the eighth on singles by Danny Cater, Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando, Dick Green and Phil Roof.

Jackson, who hasn't hit a homer since Saturday, declared he wasn't "losing any sleep about it and don't try to ask me why I'm not doing it against the White Sox . . . I don't know." He has 34 homers so far this year.

After today's game the Athletics return to Oakland for three games against the California Angels.

MARIN COUNTY GOLF NOTES

Meadow Club To Be A Busy Place

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Meadow Club in Fairfax is going to be a busy spot the next few days.

Sunday it will be the Marin County Tournament of Golf Champions, starting at 9:30 a.m., matching club champs of Marin's six golf clubs.

On Friday, July 18, it will be the Meadow Club Junior Invitational, a shotgun start at 8:30 a.m. Then on Tuesday, July 29, it will be the North Bay Area qualifying for the Northern California Golf Association Junior Amateur Championship.

Young golfers from the North Bay will be trying to advance to the championship rounds at Lake Merced Country Club in Daly City, Aug. 11-15. Competition will be 18-hole, medal play, no handicaps used.

TERRY DAVIS, 16-year-old junior at Terra Linda High (the MVP on the school golf team) had quite a time playing the tough Spyglass course in Pebble Beach during a vacation trip. He scored his first hole-in-one, using a nine-iron on the 127-yard 15th hole.

IT WAS quite a logjam in the Marin Country Club men's best two-ball foursomes tournament last weekend. Tying for first place were foursomes of Sil DeMaestri, Mat Palacio Jr., John Gardiner, Elwood Frink; George Pearson, Lawrence Boucher, Bill Haley, Scrub Elliott; and Ralph Lewis, Lee Lehmkuhl, Herb Marsh, Clem Ledrech, each foursome with a score of 122.

In the Mixed Scotch Ball tourney at Marin Country Club in Novato, Orville Suttles and Mrs. W. Goldman won in Class A, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Bloom won Class B, and Mr. and Mrs. Scrub Elliott won Class C.

FOR THOSE WHO have hopes of making the field for the Pro-Am event of the San Francisco Open Oct. 22 at Harding Park course, there are 150 spots on a first-come, first-served basis. Requirements are handicap of 16 or less and $200 entry fee. Wow!

MAN OF HOUR — New York Met pitcher Tom Seaver talks to newsmen shortly after his one-hit victory. (AP Wirephoto)

ONE-HIT SPOILER

Frustration Even In Met Win

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Their dizzying dash towards the more respectable neighborhood in the National League standings has turned everything topsy-turvy for the prosperous New York Mets.

Tom Seaver pitched a one-hitter, beating Chicago 4-0 for the Mets ' seventh straight victory last night. It trimmed the Cubs' lead over New York to three games in the East Division race. It should have been a source of great joy. It was, believe it or not, a source of great disappointment.

That's because Seaver flirted with immortality by retiring 25 consecutive Cubs before rookie Jimmy Qualls ended his perfect game bid with a one-out single in the ninth inning.

AGGRAVATION

That single by the No. 8 hitter in the Cubs' line-up deprived Seaver of his line in the record book but it couldn't keep New York from continuing its tear towards the top. Yet, it added the touch of aggravation that always seems to follow the Mets.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh nipped Montreal twice 4-3 in 10 innings and 3-2, Philadelphia split with St. Louis, winning 7-1 before losing 5-3, San Francisco bombed Houston 10-3, Cincinnati edged San Diego 4-3 and Los Angeles dropped Atlanta 3-1.

Seaver drove in a run with a second inning single as the Mets jumped on Ken Holtzman, knocking out the Cub left-hander and taking a 3-0 lead in the first two innings.

SHOWMAN

Then Seaver became a one-man show, retiring the Cubs 1-2-3 in every inning. He struck out five of the first six batters he faced and fanned 11 for the game.

Randy Hundley bunted Seaver's first pitch in the ninth inning and the pitcher threw him out for the 25th Cub to go down in order. Then Qualls rapped the next pitch for the hit. Seaver then retired the next two hitters easily to end the game.

He termed the one-hitter "a disappointment" but around the Mets, that word is commonplace. If every disappointment was a one-hitter, they'd never complain.

Bill Singer pitched a four-hitter and Los Angeles tightened its grip on first place in the West Division by knocking off Atlanta. Manny Mota, who went 8-for-10 in Tuesday's doubleheader sweep against the Braves, added three more hits yesterday.

Annex Squad Maintains League Lead

Annex Motors continued to have the best record in the Marin area Joe DiMaggio Baseball League after nipping Mill Valley Chiefs 5-4 yesterday.

The Motormen, now boasting an 8-1 record in the North Division, were led by Ken Gnoss' two hits.

Toby's Truckers edged Herb's Pool Service 3-2 to vault back into first place in the South Division. Toby's pitcher Tom Olson struck out eight, got two hits, drove in a run and scored the winning run in a very big day. Bill LeNoue homered for Herb's.

In other games, Presidio edged Italian Club 2-1 and Holiday Magic beat San Anselmo 8-4. Jerry White hit a two-run homer for Presidio, while Holiday Magic was led by Bruce DiAmbra's bases loaded triple.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Senators Blank Injuns For Nixon

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ted Williams summed it up after winning last night something like Richard Nixon must have after winning last November: "It's about time!"

"I've known him since 1950 and I've been a Nixon man all the time," Williams insisted after his Washington Senators blanked Cleveland 3-0 with the President in attendance. But Nixon's three previous trips to the ballpark this season meant nothing but grief—and losses—for the Senators.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City nipped Minnesota 4-3, the Chicago White Sox tripped Oakland 5-3, Baltimore edged the New York Yankees 6-5 in 10 innings, Detroit took Boston 6-5 and Seattle walloped California 8-0, then lost 5-0.

BLOOPER

The Senators, who had beaten Cleveland 10 to 12 without Nixon, took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Mike Epstein's bloop double. The President arrived an inning later with daughter Tricia and son-in-law David Eisenhower, just in time to see Del Unser single for one run and Frank Howard do the same for another.

Joe Coleman breezed with a four-hitter, struck out 11 and gave the President the final ball of the game when he stopped by the Washington clubhouse. Nixon wouldn't take it, though, until Coleman autographed it.

Ed Doherty, a Senators official, reported the President kept watching the scoreboard during the game, hoping Baltimore would lose so Washington could up ground.

"He was overjoyed when Dave McNally was knocked out," Doherty said. "And he kept rooting for Howard to hit a home run. Everytime Howard came up, he jumped up and shouted, 'Hondo, Hondo, hit one.'"

Lou Piniella, a season-long pest to Minnesota, drove home the tying run with a fifth-inning single and the winner with a grounder in the seventh as Kansas City snapped the Twins' five-game winning streak and kept them 3½ games ahead of Oakland.

The Yankees kayoed unbeaten Dave McNally, 12-0 for the second time in nine days but still lost when Boog Powell singled and scored all the way from first base when Bobby Murcer booted Brooks Robinson's double. It was the seventh time the Oriole s rallied after McNally left a game on the short end of the score and took him off the hook.

"When McNally went out, I knew that would be another one we could chalk up in the victory column," said Frank Robinson, who hit a two-run homer. Powell also homered for Baltimore.

Tom Matchick drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a single but Detroit needed Don Wert's sacrifice fly and Reggie Smith's throwing error in the fifth to edge Boston and move back into second place in the A.L. East, 12 games behind Baltimore.

Seattle's Fred Talbot hurled a three-hitter and socked a grand slam homer in the Pilots' opening game triumph, but California came back to win the nightcap as George Brunet pitched a seven-hitter, Sandy Alomar had three hits and Bill Voss collected a single and double and threw two runners out on the bases.

Laver Bids For U.S. Title

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Grass courts, clay courts, synthetic courts and, maybe, even on a rock pile, Australia's Rod Laver deserves his ranking as king of world tennis travelers.

The 30-year-old southpaw, fresh from winning his fourth Wimbledon title in England last weekend, made a quick adjustment and launched a bid for his fifth U.S. Pro Championship in impressive fashion yesterday at the Longwood Cricket Club.

The transition from fast green courts to a synthetic surface, with the trade name Uni-Turf, may have bothered some players, but certainly not Laver at the start of the $33,000 tournament. He was ready to go after a brisk one-hour workout in late afternoon.

FIRST ROUND

Playing under the lights and in chilly weather, Laver demolished South Africa's Ray Moore in a 6-2, 6-2 first-round victory.

"I think playing on this surface makes tennis more enjoyable," the freckled redhead said. "There aren't the worries about bad bounces you get on grass.

"The only problem now is that the ball has a tendency to stick. That should be easily overcome in the near future."

ADJUSTMENTS

Asked if he had made any major adjustments in switching quickly from grass to an artificial, green court, Laver smiled and replied:

"No, I just played back more, rather than moving up to the net. You can afford to stay back, without gambling, on such a court."

Laver, who is top-seeded in quest of a fourth straight American pro crown, led an Aussie advance through the first half of the opening round in the five-day tournament.

Second-seeded John Newcombe, runnerup here a year ago, defeated veteran Alex Olmedo 6-3, 7-5, while fourth-seeded Ken Rosewall, 34, a two-time U.S. pro champion, eliminated 48-year-old Pancho Segura 6-3, 6-3.

France's Pierre Barthes rallied for a 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 triumph over Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill.

Lou Spadia Enthused About Candlestick

Lou Spadia is enthused over the way plans are shaping up for modernization and expansion of Candlestick Park. There was a time not long ago when the president of the 49ers didn't feel that way. Indeed, it appeared that the professional football team would be stuck in Kezar Stadium for years to come.

Candlestick improvement plans were speeded up by putting first things first. The San Fancisco Board of Supervisors Finance Committee approved installation of artificial turf in Candlestick at the end of the current baseball season. It will cost $1.3 million.

DIGGING UP the natural grass in Candlestick and laying a good foundation for the artificial stuff can't begin until Oct. 3 because the baseball season doesn't end until Oct. 2. In fact, it may be mid-October before work on the artificial carpet can start if the Giants get in the National League divisional playoffs and hopefully the World Series.

That contingency is causing some concern to Shrine East-West officials. Indeed, even if work on the artificial grass installation begins on Oct. 3 it is doubtful the entire job could be completed in time for the 45th East-West game. There is a strong possibility the Shrine classic might have to be transferred for its 45th renewal back to Kezar Stadium.

HOWEVER, that is something which, while inconvenient, could be tolerated for one year by East-West officials in the same manner that the 49ers have been tolerant about delay after delay in the modernization and expansion of Candlestick.

"I am enthused about the whole thing," said Spadia who is looking forward to a move of the 49ers from Kezar to Candlestick next year provided firm plans are made by then for Candlestick's expansion, i.e., completion of a second deck from left field to right field, including wind baffles.

THESE PLANS already have been approved in principle. So, too, have $9.1 million financing plans.

Extension of Candlesticks second deck not only would increase present seating capacity from 42,500 to 60,000 plus but would create a barrier to the present left-to-right wind.

Neither the second deck nor baffles will ever eliminate the wind. But the second deck and baffles will eliminate gusts such as those that whipped Candlestick last Saturday during a Brave-Giant game and provoked Bob Bolin, a loser in the wind, to blast Candlestick verbally as Johnny Antonelli once blasted the wind in old Seals Stadium at 16th and Bryant streets.

"CERTAINLY," said Spadia, "we'll go to Candlestick on a one-year basis in 1970 with an artificial grass installation, 7,200 movable seats on the north side line (right field), provided the expansion plans are firmed up.

"National Football League rules prohibit playing league games in any stadia with less than 50,000 seating capacity.

"I'm enthused about things because it means a move from 14,000 sideline seats (Kezar) to an excess of 28,000 (Candlestick) which is more than any multi-purpose stadium in the country.

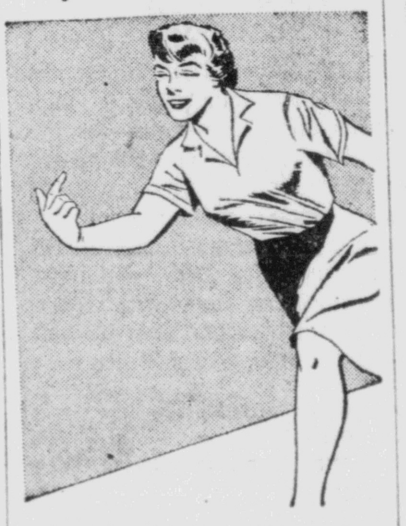
BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



The back-up ball, curving slightly from left to right for a right-hander, isn't the best delivery; but be consistent with it, and you can live with it. Today's illustrated bowler is backing it up—the palm of her hand is facing upward after release. Aim for a high 1-2 or 1-3 pocket hit.

Reds Make Room For New Pitcher

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds optioned rookie shortstop Darrell Chaney to Indianapolis of the American Association to make room on the roster for veteran right-hander Camilo Pascual.

The Reds purchased Pascual from Washington Monday for more than the $25,000 waiver price.

Chaney, sent out on 24-hour recall, had a .212 average in 68 games with the Reds.

TOURNEY OF CHAMPS

Culp Is Newcomer To Marin Golfdom

(Fourth in a series on entrants in Sunday's Marin County Golf Tournament of Champions.)

Jack Culp, the Peacock Gap representative, is no Marin County veteran nor is he a club champion but he could turn out to be trouble in the Marin County Golf Tournament of Champions.

Jack is a two-years-ago transplant from Chicago who has played golf for "some 40 years" which puts the 47-year-old advertising salesman out on the greens at age seven, fairly early even for early birds.

He doesn't play as much as he did in the Midwest, but still finds time to get out "at least once a week."

That may jelp in this tournament where competitors find very little time to go into year-round practice.

Culp, who was runner-up to Al Newman in the club tourney, is a four handicapper. Newman has since moved to Los Angeles. Culp has played in the National Amateur Tournament and in the Western Amateur six times.

"I guess I'm an iron player," he says. "My putting is average. If I'm down in two, I'm happy."

He calls Meadow Club, site of Sunday's tourney, "an excellent course, with good terrain, fine designs and some demanding holes, especially the seventh and sixth holes."

Culp, father of four, figures that a par score (71) should win the tournament.

"But if I come in with a 72, I'll be very happy with it," he said.

Bengal Roster Attracts Smith

CINCINNATI (AP) — Olympic champion Tommie Smith, who tried out with the Los Anfeles Rams recently but did not make the team, signed a contract today withm the Cincinnati Bengals.

Earlier it had been reported that Smith and Lee Evans, former teammates at San Jose State, would both tryout with the Oakland Raiders of the AFL.

But Smith said the Raiders were planning to make him tryout against Evans, world record holder for 400 meters, and that rather than do that he would attempt to make the Bengals.

Neither Smith nor Evans, who both won Gold Medals at the 1968 Olympic Games, played football in college. Smith earlier had a tryout with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, July 10, the 191st day of 1969 with 174 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1938 Howard Hughes and a crew of 4 flew around the world in 91 hours.

In 1953 Lavrenti Beria, Russian chief of Soviet internal security forces, was purged by the Communists on charges of "criminal anti-state activities."

In 1962 the Telstar satellite relayed television pictures from the United States to Europe—and Americans received clear pictures back from France and Britain.

In 1968 French President Charles de Gaulle appointed Maurice Couve de Murville premier of France, replacing Georges Pompidou who became president in June, 1969.

A thought for the day: Sir William Osler said: "Tact is the saving virtue without which no woman can be a success."

Remember, There's More Than One Way To Use The Trumps

No matter how careful you are, sooner or later somebody will tell you with a serious face that 10,000 men are walking the streets of London because they forgot to draw trumps. You can reply with an equally serious face that 83,000 men (the exact number is 93,237) are walking the streets of New York because they drew trumps too quickly.

HEART CAPTURES

South won the first trick with the ace of hearts and thought about the men in London. He drew three rounds of trumps and then started on the diamonds.

When two top diamonds and a diamond ruff failed to set up the suit, South had to get back to dummy with the queen of hearts and lead a club toward his king. The ace was behind the king of clubs, and the defenders defeated the contract with two club tricks. Another good hand down the drain, all because declarer didn't know which city to think about.

VITAL ENTRY

After drawing two rounds of trumps South should discontinue the suit. Mind you, he knows that one trump is still out, but he cannot afford to draw that trump at the moment. South must first cash the top diamonds and ruff a diamond with a top trump (to guard against an overruff).

Only now can South afford to lead a third trump. This not only draws West's last trump but also puts declarer in position to ruff a second low diamond. By this time dummy's jack of diamonds is good, and South can return to dummy with the queen of hearts to discard a club on the jack of diamonds.

SLIGHT RISK

There is a slight risk in leaving the last trump out because West might have had a singleton diamond, but it is foolish to consider only this risk and disregard all other risks. After all, South didn't accomplish very much with his cautious play of drawing all of the trumps.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one diamond, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ 6
♥ 8 7 3 2
♦ Q 10 9 3
♣ Q 9 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You have four points in high cards and three points for the singleton (when you have strong support for partner's suit). Since you can make only one response and intend to pass thereafter (unless forced), you must describe your hand with a diamond raise rather than by bidding the mangy heart suit.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Leukoplakia A Lesion On Mouth That Could Be Pre-Cancerous

VAN DELLEN

Leukoplakia is a white (leuko) plaque that develops in the oral cavity. The lesions are caused mainly by irritation and are seen on the inside of the cheeks, palate, tongue, and lips. Many are regarded as pre-cancerous because they undergo malignant changes when allowed to continue growing.

Common causes include irritation from the sharp edges of a dental cavity, poor restorations of teeth, dentures that do not fit, malocclusions, and bad oral habits. Tobacco also plays a role, including cigaret smoking, chewing, and the use of snuff. In India, the use of betel leaf, bidi, ganja, or khaini (raw slaked lime) is causative. Alcohol, and chemical or thermal irritants do the same.

THE PLAQUES usually begin as a sore spot in the mouth provoked by highly seasoned, very hot foods and certain drinks. Leukoplakia is more likely to develop in persons suffering from glandular problems and from nutritional deficiencies, including lack of vitamins and iron. Men over 40 are favored.

The relationship of these lesions to malignancy is more than coincidental. It is true that not many people with the usual forms of oral cancer tell of having a pre-existing leukoplakic lesion. In addition, a biopsy of the lesion usually shows cells that are associated with irritation.

OCCASIONALLY THERE IS definite evidence of pre-cancerous, or cancerous development. This is mentioned because it is impossible to tell whether the white plaque is dangerous or innocuous unless a piece is sent to the laboratory for study. In large lesions, several biopsies are done from different parts of the lesion because some areas may not show malignant change.

Biopsy determines the treatment. The benign plaque usually disappears when the local irritants are eliminated. Some of these lesions contain yeast organisms and respond to nystatin. Should malignancy exist, excision or radiation is needed.

RUPTURED DISK

C. W. writes: Is there a concrete way of determining whether a disk has slipped beyond the shadow of a doubt?

REPLY

Disks usually don't slip that far. Two tests are available—the myelogram and the diskogram. The latter particularly offers definite evidence that the protruding material is pressing against the spinal cord. For the record, we might add that disks do not slip. They rupture and protrude against the spinal cord or nearby nerves.

RECURRING WART

S. T. writes: I had a wart on my forefinger which previously disappeared. It came back on the same finger, except it is now on the other side. Please explain.

REPLY

Warts are contagious during the early stages and I assume that the causative virus came from the original wart or from another source. These lesions usually develop over an area where the skin has been injured.

KIDNEY X-RAY

W. B. writes: What is an IVP X-ray?

REPLY

A kidney X-ray. A special solution that is known to be excreted by the kidneys and that shows up under X-ray is injected into a vein of an arm. The solution gets into the urinary tract and outlines the kidneys, ureters, and bladder. From the films, the doctor is able to determine whether the kidneys are working properly or an obstruction exists.

STARS ABOVE

Corona Borealis Small But Delight To Viewer

By SHERMAN WALKER

Corona Borealis, the Northern Crown, is another one of the small and pretty constellations that is a delight to find and identify. It is squeezed in between two large figures, Ophiuchus and Bootes, and is just a little bit hard to find.

Once found, though, you will wonder how you could have missed it — and you can locate it on later nights with ease.

To find the Northern Crown, face southward at 10 p.m. Daylight Savings Time and look at the region of the sky that is a short distance south of the overhead point.

The brightest star of this figure, Alpha Coronae Borealis, is also known as Gemma (not to be confused with Gamma) because it is the Gem of the crown.

There is a variable star in this figure which doesn't seem to follow any of the rules that apply to the various kinds of standard variables. Astronomers call it R Coronae Borealis.

It shines at magnitude 5.5 for a long but unpredictable period. Then it will begin to fade, and in a short time it will be down to magnitude 12, requiring a powerful telescope to see it.

Almost immediately it will begin to brighten again and in a few months will be back to its original brilliance. No explanation is known for its action. This star is not in the chain of stars that make up the crown proper, but is in the region that is enclosed by them.

Ex-Convict Held In Co-Ed Killing

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A 28-year-old ex-convict has been held for trial in the slaying of a University of Michigan co-ed.

After a preliminary hearing yesterday, District Judge S. J. Elden ruled that Ernest R. Bishop must face a first degree murder charge in court July 25.

Miss Margaret Anne Phillips, 25, who had befriended the convicted rapist, was fatally shot last Saturday in her apartment. She was the seventh young woman, and the third University of Michigan coed, slain in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area in the last 23 months.

A co-ed who occupied a room next to that of Miss Phillips testified at the hearing she heard a man's voice and a series of shots. A police detective said he found Bishop's fingerprints on a coffee cup in the apartment.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Late Movies Keep Alive 'Real Stars'

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Televised movies have kept alive the memory of many a veteran actor who deserved praise for solid work, but might otherwise have been forgotten.

This is particularly true of some of the lesser leading men, who were overshadowed in the presence of stars.

Randolph Scott, for instance, was known pretty much as a B-Western star, and that's really what he was, of course, even if he did look great in white tie and tails.

But just because he appeared in B-Westerns, that doesn't mean he wasn't—and isn't—a pleasure to watch. He holds up well over the long haul, one of the more courtly and attractive headliners in pioneer epics.

George Raft really was terrific in a movie way that counts—nobody was ever like him. He represented a whole era and an entire milieu, and he is easy to take in reruns.

Victor Mature was known, through publicity, for his beefcake photos and his excellent build. But forget those epics he appeared in—biblical and the like—and get a load of him as a sympathetic tough guy in those earthy, wordly little dramas set in New York, in the Broadway scene of promoters, characters and caps. He was good. Plenty good.

Jack Oakie and Jack Carson were probably two of the most pleasant, and peculiarly American, performers ever to hit the screen. Both gregarious, both great bluffers, both eminently vulnerable, they were everybody's best friends.

When it came to accented character acting, Oscar Homolka and Akim Tamiroff and Gregory Ratoff picked up countless movies by the bootstraps and rescued them from the blandness of countless forgotten leading men.

John Wayne, well, he was a pretty underrated performer for years too, despite being a star. Just catch him on those countless reruns, and watch a pro at work. And if you want to see a piece of star-like character acting that rates with the most memorable in movie history, go see him in "True Grit." I mean, it is a beautiful sight to see what he does in this picture. I know three liberals who went to see it and came out a couple hours later as conservatives.

Art School's Founder Dies

PASADENA (AP) — Mrs. Nelbert M. Chouinard, founder of the famed Chouinard Art Shcool which groomed such talents as designer Edith Head, is dead at the age of 90.

Mrs. Chouinard, who died yesterday, after being in failing health, founded the school in 1921 in a three-room frame house. Her capital was a $75 monthly widow's pension from World War I and $200 cash.

More than 40,000 students had attended Chouinard on her retirement in 1961. Graduates included Miss Head; Millard Sheets, painter-designer; Mary Best, fashion designer; Charles Jones, director-producer, and cartoonist Virgil Partch.

She began art studies in her home town of Montevideo, Minn., and was graduated in 1904 from Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at St. James Episcopal Church, South Pasadena.

Attack Made On Medicine Labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-thirds of the medicines used by Americans are badly labeled and a large percentage are partly or totally ineffective, says a government-sponsored study.

The three-year $1 million study of 4,000 drug preparations — 85 per cent of them prescription, 15 per cent sold over the counter — was released yesterday by the Food and Drug Administration. The drugs represent 80 per cent of the total sold.

Seven per cent of the drugs were found totally ineffective "for all cited claims." Others were found effective for only some of the diseases for which effectiveness was claimed.

Two-thirds of the drugs were found to have labels that "were poorly organized, repetitive, out of date, evasive and promotionally oriented," the study said.

Closing Of Campsites On Tam Criticized

The Marin County Board of Supervisors was asked yesterday to reprimand the state Department of Parks and Recreation for closing parts of Mount Tamalpais State Park to campers while failing to provide replacement sites.

Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation, presented a letter to the parks and recreation commission from Robert B. Hatch, district superintendent of the state department, in which Hatch said the recent closing of the Pan Toll and Bootjack campgrounds to overnight camping was due to vandalism, thefts and loitering by undesirables.

"The closing is not so deplorable because of the problems," Joske said, "but the fact is that there are no plans for any new campsites in Marin."

A total of 25 campsites was closed as a result of the state's action.

Joske said he was concerned over an apparent shift away from development of camping facilities toward construction of regional day parks close to metropolitan areas.

He said also that "there were priorities in Sacramento, and obviously parks is not one of them."

Joske told the commission he had written a critical letter to William Penn Mott, state parks and recreation director, but the commission felt that the board of supervisors should write one, too.

Senior Citizen Picnic Slated

A picnic for senior citizens in Armstrong Grove State Park on the Russian River Wednesday, will be sponsored by the San Rafael Goldenaires.

Reservations will be taken at the community recreation center in San Rafael through tomorrow. A bus will leave the center at Second and Brooks streets at 10 a.m. and return at 5 p.m. for picnic riders.

Billed as an "old fashioned" picnic, Andrew J. Snyder, director of parks and recreation, said picnickers should bring their own lunches, wear walking shoes and "dress sporty."

A JUDICIAL GOOF

Percy Learns Not To Tackle Dirksen

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, the 73-year-old sonorously mellifluous Republican floor leader, is going out of his way these days to refer to his much younger Illinois GOP colleague with significant sardonic indulgence.

There is good reason for that.

Between Dirksen, a fourth-term veteran, and Sen. Charles Percy, 50-year-old first-termer, there has long been a barely concealed backstage feud. They have widely differed on issues, legislation, politics and patronage.

Currently, this last is now playing into Dirksen's hands.

A Percy choice for a prize appointment —a seat on the U.S. Court of Appeals — turned it down because of "pressing commitments to his law firm." But insiders attribute still another reason for the declination. They say Charles Bane, prominent Chicago lawyer, would have run head-on into torrid confirmation opposition due to a racial incident.

It involved the denial of an apartment to a Jewish family in the East Lakeshore Drive cooperative where Bane lives.

For public consumption, Percy is regretting Bane's withdrawal. In a press release, Percy characterized Bane as a distinguished lawyer who would have made "an outstanding judge." But privately, he is obviously embarrassed.

Before Percy can get approval for another selection for this patronage plum, he has to get Dirksen's nod. In other words, Dirksen now wields a veto over Percy.

That's a complete reversal in position.

A few months ago, Dirksen wanted another Chicago attorney, John Bickley, named U.S. attorney. Bickley belongs to the Dirksen wing of the Illinois GOP. Percy, who lists himself as a "liberal," let it be known he would vigorously oppose Bickley —if necessary would block him on the ground he was "personally obnoxious."

The White House immediately backed off. Not wanting to get involved in the acrimonious rowing between the two Illinoisans, it held up filling this job until they could get together on a selection.

When that will be is conjectural.

But Dirksen "has a hunch" it will be a lot sooner than it might have been before Percy's embarrassment over the Bane affair. As one Senate Republican, on good terms with both of them, chucklingly remarked, "Percy now has to do business with Ev, and he'll get around to doing it in short order. That's politics and he knows it. As the old saying goes, 'There are times when you have to rise above principle'."

Percy, politically ambitious (in 1968 he was an avowed vice presidential aspirant), differs with Dirksen on many major issues — the Vietnam War, anti-ballistic missiles, tough federal crackdown on campus disorders, which Percy opposes.

Percy also broke squarely with Dirksen over the selection of the Senate GOP whip. While Dirksen backed Sen. Roman Hruska, Neb., Percy voted for Sen. Hugh Scott, Pa., who won.

High noise levels affect the hearing of farmers as well as teen-agers addicted to "rock" music. Canadian research groups report that noisy farm tractors can cause permanent loss of hearing, and advise drivers to protect themselves with earmuffs or plugs.

Suisun Bay Gas Well Nod Sought

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — An application to construct a platform in Suisun Bay for gas well operation will be voted upon by the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission at 2 p.m. next Thursday in Room 1194 of the State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue.

The applicants, Standard Oil of California and Shell Oil Company, testified last month before the BCDC that an oil leak "cannot happen." The BCDC approved a similar platform last year before the leak in the Santa Barbara Channel, and commissioners made it clear last month that such applications no longer were routine.

The platform would be removed after the wells were depleted in about 15 years, according to the oil companies.

Radio Firm Not Eying Marin Job

Byron F. Bertram, vice president of Redwood Radio Telephone Corp., today said J. Mansfield Lewis, former head of the Marin County communications Department, was mistaken in implying Redwood would consider or might be considered for the job of providing communications service for the county.

Lewis, in Tuesday's Independent-Journal report on management-employee problems in the county department, said Redwood lacked the manpower to maintain the county communications system.

Redwood, Bertram said, provides only a mobile telephone service does no maintenance work and has no interest in the county system.

About half of the city of Bonn, Germany, was destroyed during World War II.

Happening Park Scene In New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—Those who know where the action is in New York on a Sunday afternoon make a beeline for Central Park's Bethesda Fountain, warm weather gathering spot of the young "in" crowd.

Hippies, yippies, teeny boppers, college students, dropouts, young professionals, and celebrities of every kind converge on the area from all directions for the weekly fun happening. It's the most colorful and zaniest summer scene in New York—and it's all free.

What attracts the people?

"The people, man, the people," sighed one bearded youth to no one in particular as he viewed the passing parade one recent weekend. "Wow, just look at all the groovy people."

The fountain area is located midway between Fifth Avenue and Central Park West at about 72nd Street. It began to come alive about four years ago when Mayor John V. Lindsay and then Parks Commissioner Thomas Hoving initiated programs to revive New Yorkers' interest in the park.

Cars were banned from the roadways on summer weekends and certain weekday evenings, and bicyclists were allowed to roam in their place. A colorful outdoor cafe was established near the fountain and the rowboat fleet on the nearby lake put in top shape. It wasn't long before people began to rediscover the area and they liked what they saw. News of the good relaxing spot spread by word of mouth and every summer since then more and more people have made it a weekend mecca.

"I wouldn't miss a Sunday here for anything," one high school student said. "I mean, there just isn't any other place that swings like this."

Now, almost everyone who is anyone makes the scene at the fountain on Sunday afternoon. The activity begins picking up at noon and by 3 p.m., it's standing room only in the area with barely enough elbow room to strum a guitar.

The scene is a natural for photographers—amateurs and professionals. Dozens of cameras dangle from necks and rise almost in unison to eye level when an especially pretty girl or unusual outfit appears on the scene.

Many of the girls are knockouts—professional models or actresses who know all the tricks of the trade to make themselves attractive. Each week they try to outdo each other, knowing that if they are especially photogenic their picture has a good chance of appearing in some newspaper or magazine or on television or in the movies.

An increasing number of producers and directors on the prowl for new faces make the fountain area one of their regular hunting grounds. The fountain is frequently used as background for motion picture location shooting.

The scene's impact on one's eyes is matched by its assault on one's ears. Transistor radios and—despite regulations banning them—a myriad of musical instruments, bongos, guitars, and flutes, account for most of the din.

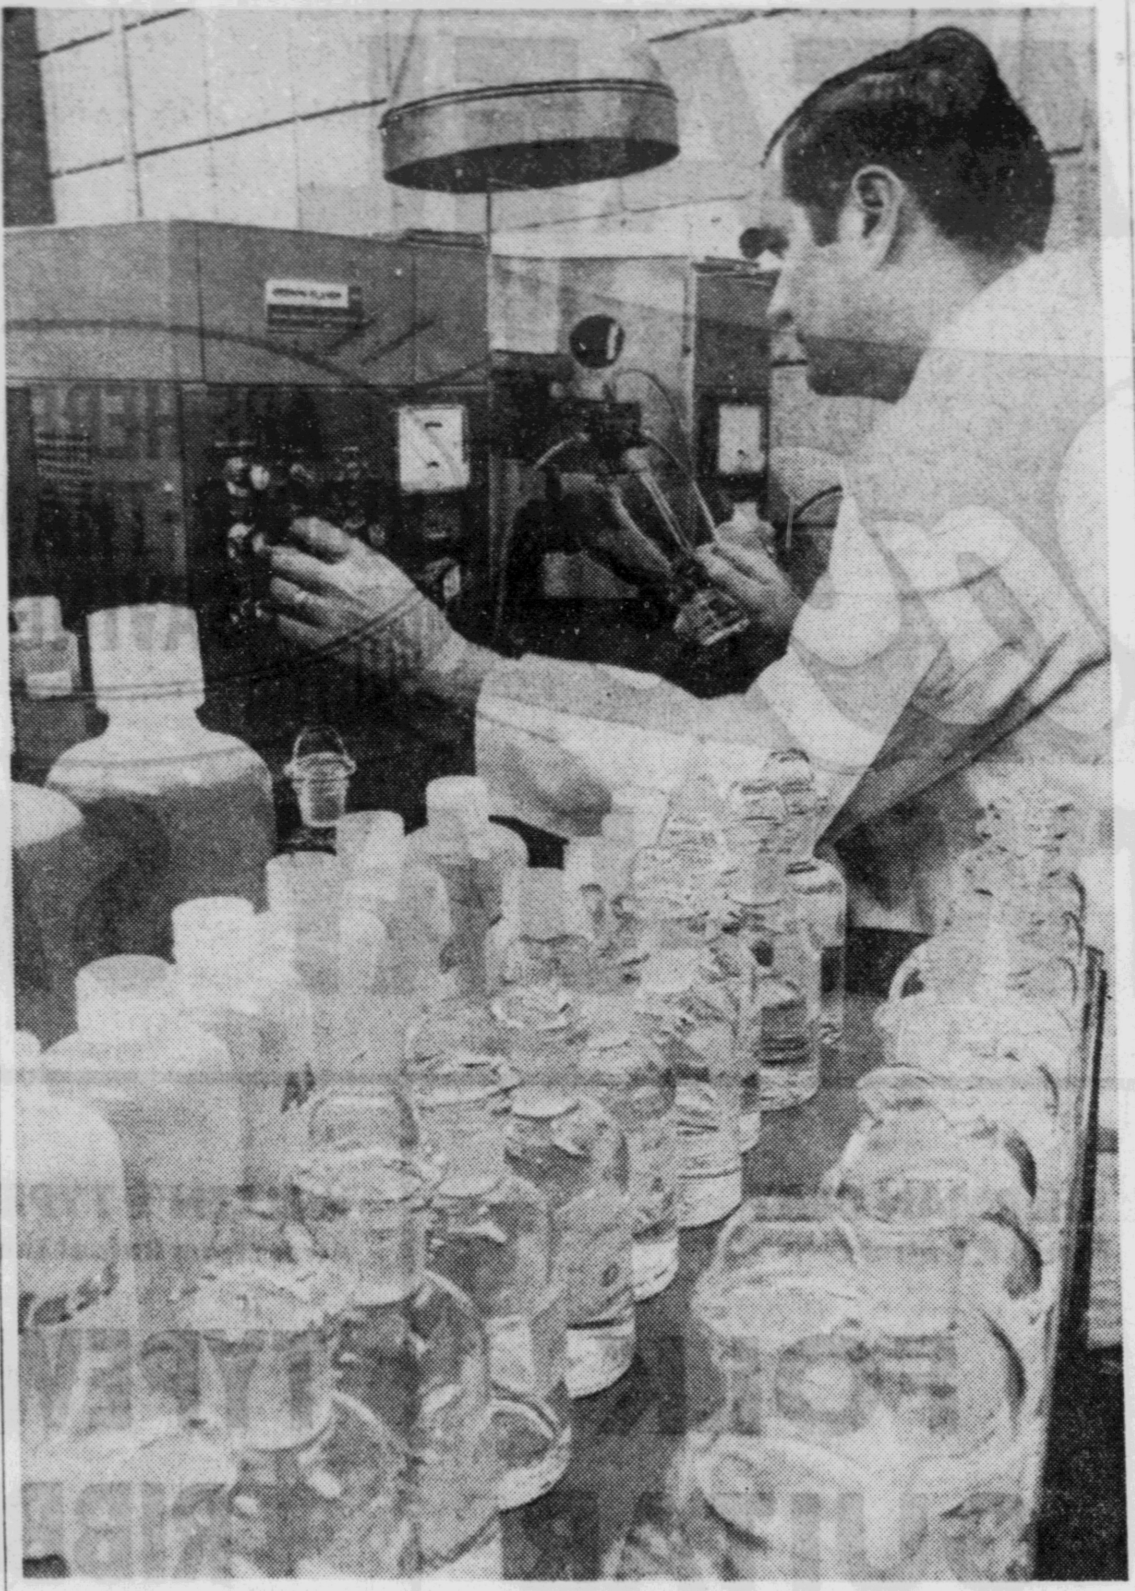
Around the edge of the area, people lounge on the hills, sleeping, sunbathing, talking, playing guitars and smoking. Some pot smoking does occur, but the ever-present four or five policemen generally discourage most people from openly turning on.

The water of the fountain is almost always dirty, littered with paper plates, cups and cigarette and gum wrappers.

Drop Birds And Bees Gimmick, Group Told

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The birds and the bees should be kept out of sex education, a symposium on "Sex and Marriage in the Permissive Society" was told here.

One of the speakers said humans have a special relationship distinct from the purely biological drives of animals. "By teaching children about sex using animals as examples, this special relationship in human behavior can be overlooked or missed by children."



ATOMIC SPECTROPHOTOMETER

Sylvania Electric Products Inc., has developed this sophisticated yardstick to measure metallic and semimetallic elements, detecting elements of fewer than one part per million. In the research laboratory, experiments are geared towards the physical and chemical properties, and electrical characteristics of metals, plastics, and other materials. (UPI Telephoto)

A Comeback For Zeppelins

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany (GF) — The last of Germany's once-famous zeppelin fleet will soon be taking to the airways again. Its owner, German salesman Siegfried Peters, has decided to make the cigar-shaped monster earn its keep via advertising.

The 163-foot-long ship "D-Lemo" was built here in 1958, and used by a chocolate manufacturer to advertise his products from the air.

With its skin badly dilapidated through service, the "D-Lemo" was put up for sale a year ago and Peters acquired it. He had the skin renovated and the ship filled with non-combustible helium instead of highly combustible hydrogen.

Numerous businesses have already announced their interest in using the "De-Lemo" for advertising purposes.

Peters, meanwhile, believes the airways will not long be reserved exclusively for his airship. He is convinced a new squadron is on the horizon.

Models have been designed that would be up to 980 feet long and atomic powered, able to handle tremendous freight loads or up to 500 passengers.

Interstate Highways Safest Road System

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The National Automobile Club reports statistics show auto travel on the interstate highway system is safer than other roads.

In 1967, 2.89 people died for each 100 million vehicle miles of travel on interstate highways, while other roads had a rate of 5.66 deaths.

Mighty Mississippi Poses Flood Threat

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—U.S. engineers say the Mississippi River could pump 3 million cubic feet of water at New Orleans during a flood period. That's more than double what the banks of the river could handle.

About 1,750,000 cubic feet of water per second would have to be diverted to one or more of the spillways located above New Orleans. The Bonnet Carre spillway immediately above the city has had to be opened three times—in 1937, 1945 and 1950.

New University Center To Probe Into The Mind

SAN DIEGO — Knowledge which will help man "to learn better, teach better, and think better" is the ultimate goal of University of California at San Diego's new Center for Human Information Processing.

The center's director, Dr. George Mandler, professor of psychology, says the new facility will operate as the psychology department's basic research arm, concentrating on such fundamental questions as:

How does the mind work?

How do we develop intellectual skills?

How does the mind receive and store information?

How is sensory information registered?

How does the mind recall data when needed?

How does it assemble bits of information in reaching a conclusion or making a decision?

Though the center has been in UCSD's plans for two years, it did not become a functioning reality until last month with receipt of a $91,000 grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to fund the first year of a projected five-year program.

Operating temporarily in Urey Hall, the center eventually will occupy 10,000 square feet of laboratory space on Muir Campus when Muir is completed in 1970.

An example of the phenomena to be explored, said Mandler, is the difference between short- and long-term memory.

"Experiments on short-term memory have shown that the average person cannot remember five items for more than 20 or 30 seconds, if his mind is immediately distracted by other problems," Mandler observed.

As for long-term memory, he said it is clear that man stores facts for future reference. "The problem is how to get them out."

"The mind's capacity for processing new information appears to be limited," he noted. "This limitation may be a protective mechanism. If man were to remember every sensory experience, his mind would be faced with an immense organizing task to which it might not prove equal. However, once stored, information is organized and seems to be available for long periods of time."

Mandler said the new UCSD facility will serve also as a clearing house for the findings of other investigators and institutions on information processing and as a conference site and workshop for investigators from other institutions.

Cigarettes And Fires

Special to the I-J

BERKELEY — Smoking is not only hazardous to health. It is often fatal to thousands of members of California's wildlife family, and adds to the destruction of nearly 40,000 acres of beautiful and valuable timber and wildland annually.

A look at the destructive power of forest fires and a study of forest fire loss figures reveal that smoking is the main cause of forest fires in the state, reports Ed Gilden, University of California Agricultural Extension forester, stationed at Berkeley, who suggests the following safety measures:

"1. When smoking in your automobile, camper, or truck, always use the ash tray. Never, but never, throw burning material out the window while you are traveling.

"2. In the woods or grassy areas, smoke only when stopping in a safe place. Clear a space free of flamable material, drop your ashes or cigaret butts there, and cover them with soil.

"3. Be sure your match is out. Then rub the match head between your fingers. It is safer to use a lighter, if you must smoke.

"4. Don't let your children play with matches."

In Gilden's words, "We have wildfires mainly because of people." Last year, in California, too many people took chances or were careless, and 7,200 fires resulted.

Japan Relays TV To Remote Areas

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan Broadcasting Company (NHK) has designed what it calls the smallest television relay station in the world. The station, about the size of a suitcase, automatically receives and retransmits television programs.

NHK will install the miniature relay stations in remote areas of Japan in order to reach more households. Engineers say NHK's 543 main television stations will reach 98 per cent of all television sets in the country when the small relay units are installed, an increase of 3 per cent.

U.S. Maintaining Over 2,000 Bases Overseas

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States now has 2,170 military bases overseas. Questions are being asked both in Congress and in the administration as to whether all of them are really needed.

The bases cover a total land area of 4,000 square miles. They are located in 29 foreign countries, the Panama Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Pacific Trust Territories and the Ryukyu Islands.

Last fiscal year they cost $13.5 billion to operate.

A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee headed by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., recently sent staff investigators to inspect U.S. bases in Europe and the Mediterranean.

"In almost every country visited, they found military facilities whose original mission had long since faded," Symington says.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., says much of the overseas base structure is a "hangover from World War II" which remains through "inertia."

According to the Pentagon, 343 of the bases are "major" and 1,927 are "minor." It had no precise definitions of these terms but said examples of "minor" bases would be navigational aids, small communication installations, missile sites, small housing compounds, remote training areas and small administrative buildings.

Examples of "major" bases are large air fields, shipyards and fleet facilities, principal headquarters and command complexes, and large communication, training and housing complexes.

The largest in area is Sondestrom Air Base, Greenland, 466,066 acres. One of the smaller ones is a radio relay at Donnersburg, Germany, one acre.

In addition to U.S. possessions, this country has bases in Australia, Bahamas, Barbados, Belgium, Bermuda, Canada, Cuba, Greenland (Denmark), Ethiopia, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Iran, Italy, Japan, Libya, Morocco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines, (Azores), Portugal, Taiwan, South Korea, South Vietnam, Spain, Thailand, Turkey and the United Kingdom.

In these countries the United States owns no land, but has agreements for shared or exclusive use of it.

A total of 1,074,983 U.S. military personnel are assigned to these countries and therefore are connected with these bases. This includes the 539,500 U.S. military men in South Vietnam.

U.S. civilians employed at the bases total 26,071; dependents 347,452; foreign nationals 256,383—a grand total of 1,704,889 military and assorted civilians.

Fifty-nine of the bases are in Vietnam.

Of the overall $13.5 billion annual operating cost, $2.6 billion is earmarked for Europe (excluding Greece, Turkey and the Sixth Fleet); $0.6 billion for Korea; $8.5 billion for Southeast Asia; and $1.8 billion elsewhere including Greece, Turkey and the Sixth Fleet.

Most of this money stays in America, because it is paid out to American-produced goods. But $4.5 billion of the total ends up in the hands of foreign countries or their nationals, and thus becomes a major item in the U.S. gold outflow or "balance of payments" problem.

Late in 1967 the Johnson administration ordered a joint State-Defense Department study of overseas bases. It was headed by retired Army Gen. Robert J. Wood and Robert McClintock, former U.S. ambassador to Argentina.

The Wood-McClintock group began work in March, 1968, and submitted on Dec. 19, 1968, a report which is now under review by the Nixon administration.

In essence, it says that the extent of U.S. bases abroad depends on what foreign policy this country chooses. It examines base requirements and costs of a range of alternative foreign policies — between "world policeman" and "fortress America." The report is still secret.

Further study has been done as part of a report by Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard to the National Security Council on non-nuclear forces at home and abroad. But officials say the investigation has a long way to go before major conclusions are reached.

Most of the U.S. base structure overseas has grown up since the beginning of World War II. It was nurtured by defense commitments the United States made in the late 1940s and 1950s with more than 40 countries.

At the heart of the bases problem are such policy questions as whether this country should reduce its defense commitments abroad, whether there are other military ways to provide security for the free world, and whether this country should rely more on non-military means to keep the peace.

New technology can reduce the need for bases. In-flight refueling has cut the need for fighter aircraft to make frequent stops along chains of bases across the Atlantic and Pacific on ferry flights. Technology also can create bases, such as listening posts.

Street Judge Role For Police

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A municipal advisory committee on crime and delinquency concludes that a policeman must be a careful arbitrator of social values.

"Law enforcement policy is made by the policeman," the committee reported.

"For policemen cannot and do not arrest all the offenders they encounter. It is doubtful they arrest most of them. A criminal code, in practice, is not a set of specific instructions to policemen, but a more or less rough map of the territory in which policemen work."

Merrie Olde England Ignores 20th Century

LONDON (UPI)—The 20th Century stops at the border of a 140-square mile wood area in southwest England.

It still is called the New Forest, although it was given its name by William the Conqueror nearly 900 years ago.

The 40,000 inhabitants of New Forest, under protection of the crown, have their own laws and their own names for things. For example, forest rangers are called "agisters," and laws are called "commons." They even have their own court and their own capital.

One particular law, called "The Common of Mast," gives New Forest dwellers the right to turn pigs loose to forage for acorns.

"The Commons of Estover" gives them the right to cut a specified quantity of wood from the forest. The wood, however, must be used at a house in the forest.

New Forest law allows anyone to take wood "by hook or by crook," meaning that one is entitled to any fallen wood that can be picked up or separated from trees without cutting. This right also applies to the picking of wild fruit and the use of running water.

"Rights of Turbary" permits the cutting of turf, for burning on the cottage hearth. Some cottages have a right to as many as 2,000 turves a year.

Another law gives a man the right to a home if he can build it in one day and have a fire in the hearth by the following morning.

The forest has hardly changed its appearance since the days of William the Conqueror, who turned it into his hunting ground and also gave it its name in 1079.

It was here in the glades, moors and marshes that his son, William Rufus, or William II, was killed by an assassin's arrow. Henry VIII used New Forest oak trees to build his navy, as did Queen Elizabeth I. New Forest timber carried Sir Francis Drake and Sir Walter Raleigh on their voyages of discovery and helped sink the Spanish Armada in 1588.

The forest is the home of the New Forest pony descendants of the original small hardy horses of ancient Britain.

Residents of the forest pay pony fees to an "agister" who tailmarks the animal and then gives the money to the clerk of the verderers.

Several times a year the forest verderers hold session in the 900-year-old court of Swainmote at Lyndhurst, the forest "capital." It is in this court, which once had powers of life and death, that all disputes between New Foresters are settled.

New Foresters are alarmed by enclosures which, they say, alter their way of life, though they cheerfully accepted at least one.

During the last war the army moved secretly into 8,000 sealed off acres to prepare the invasion of France in 1944.

Only recently were the last acres returned to the residents.

Woman Defies Armed Robber

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—Never underestimate the power of a woman—even when it comes to bank robberies.

Mrs. Rosemary Powers, 47, a bank teller, foiled an attempted stickup by diving on the floor and hitting the alarm button when a bandit stuck a gun in her face and said: "Give me your 50's, 20's and 10's."

The bandit said: "Get up off the floor," but Mrs. Powers stayed down. The gunman then fled empty-handed.

Foreman Finds New Tenants Already Nested

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Edward Swart, a foreman on the construction site of the highest building in Africa, now has two extra charges to watch over.

Swart discovered a pigeon nest in the completed 458-foot central tower of Johannesburg's new Standard Bank building, right inside a slot in which workmen were about to fit an 84-ton floor section. He had himself lowered to move the nest to another slot further down, only to repeat the tricky rescue operation as work proceeded from the top of the tower downwards.

Finally he made the two baby pigeons a home in the tower's storeroom, where he guards them and feeds them with seed. "I keep 20 pigeons at home and I've got what you call a soft spot for them," Swart explained.

Israeli Immigration

TEL AVIV (AP) — Immigration to Israel is expected to reach 40,000 in 1969, compared with 30,000 in 1968, the Jewish Agency said.

Wyoming Sharing Angling Area

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—The Wyoming Game and Fish Commission has agreed to swap fishing privileges in the Big Horn Canyon national recreation area between license holders of Montana and Wyoming.

Under the agreement, Wyoming fishermen will pay $3 for a stamp to fish the Montana portion of the lake and Montana anglers will pay $2 to fish in Wyoming.

The cost difference arises from the fact that Montana has more water on its side and Montana residents have to pay more for a fishing license.

New Type Of Sanitary Board

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—Expanding the Peace Corps into an International Volunteer Development Corps with volunteers from all nations has been suggested by a special U.S. government committee.

The committee recommended that "multinational teams of volunteers would work in the rural and urban ghettos of every nation in preserving pure water and air, eradicating illiteracy and ignorance, lessening disease, enhancing beauty..."

The committee, whose chairman was Dr. Paul R. Hanna, Stanford University professor of education, said the expanded corps might be organized through the United Nations.

Library Will 'Tape' History

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—First-hand accounts of important political events in California between the years 1925 and 1953 will be preserved on tape in a new five-year project by the Bancroft Library at the University of California.

The project calls for recording history "from those who were there" and will consist of verbatim accounts by those who can relate from first-hand knowledge exactly what happened and why.

Of special interest will be the California career of Earl Warren.

Saigon Redevelopment Funds From China

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Canadian Government will contribute about four-fifths of the cost of constructing a 152-unit housing complex in a suburb of Saigon devastated by the Tet offensive last year.

The South Vietnam government will finance the remainder. The Canadian government has already paid for rebuilding a 72-unit complex in the same area.

Stanford Students Invade Cliveden Home

MAIDENHEAD, England (UPI)—The new "Cliveden set" is made up of 80 Stanford University undergraduates.

At a cost of around $5,000 a year, Stanford has taken a 21-year lease on the very stately home of Cliveden beside the River Thames as an overseas campus.

The American youngsters live in the balustraded mansion where kings, queens and high society have gone before them. They study liberal arts in rooms where the Astor family held court. They hold discussions in others that echoed the talk of the weekend house parties of the famous "Cliveden set" of the 1930's, accused through their influence in politics and journalism of a hand in World War II because they supported the appeasement of Hitler.

USE KEELER POOL

And through the summer's warm weather, the younger Americans will use the swimming pool where Christine Keeler took a nude dip that fateful day of July 8, 1961, when a government scandal began over her acquaintance with John Profumo, then British war minister.

The new Cliveden set strolls over rolling lawns and sweeping drives where in the 18th Century the Duke of Buckingham duelled with the Duke of Shrewsbury; where a cricket ball killed Frederick, prince of Wales, in 1751.

The house, which burnt down and was rebuilt a century ago, was bought by William Waldorf Astor in 1893, who became a viscount when he gave up his American citizenship.

Several afternoons a week, the students share with tourists the gracious grounds and four main rooms of the house filled with suits of armor, tapestries on the walls, wood carvings on the ceiling and portraits of the Astor family.

A condition of the lease that the National Trust granted to Stanford was for the house to remain open to the public. The trust signed thankfully after taking three years to find a tenant that fulfilled the will of the 2nd Viscount Astor. In giving the house to the trust, he stipulated its use for 'Anglo-American purposes.

NEAR LONDON

The first batch of 52 boys and 28 girls at Cliveden are delighted to be only 25 miles from London, easy to reach for an evening's theater, instead of isolated 100 miles away at Harlaxton Manor which Stanford used until Easter.

They are less delighted with the British press for the impression given since they moved into Cliveden.

Lili Pratt, 20, of 910 Laythrop Ave., San Francisco, said, "The journalists tend to be very insulting and think we are rich Americans."

Cynthis Weber, 20, of 8125 Freedom Drive) El Paso, Tex., said, "they keep emphasizing how much money we are spending. They ask why we are studying here instead of back in the States. The thing is, you can study all you want. But until you experience another country, it's not the same.

"And there's something else—this stereotyped American image. One girl was chewing gum when she was going to be photographed by a newspaper. She wanted to take the gum out, but the photographer said: 'No. That would ruin the picture.'

"The thing is, the students do respect the building. We don't regard it as a playground."

Mike Duncheon, 20, of 22 Park St., Danville, Ill., said, "They have not made an unbiased effort to find out why we're here. In a way, it's understandable."

UNFORTUNATE

"I think the thing that really surprised me was that I had never thought of myself as being that much more wealthy than other people in the world. When America is spoken of, it is with the dollar sign. It's unfortunate but I guess it's true."

The students pay for a six-month spell in England exactly as much as they would in California: $2,040 for tuition, bed and board. These fees are considerably higher than those at English universities. The campus also advises students to bring $750 to cover a three-week vacation in Europe, two field trips to continental cities and spending money.

Cliveden is staffed by a British administrator, George Docker, two American professors in architecture and psychology, two English tutors in history and politics, plus visiting lecturers invited from British universities. They teach four days a week.

Illegitimacy Rate

CAPT TOWN, South Africa (AP) — More than one-third of all colored (mulatto) children born in South Africa are illegitimate, said Dr. Sally Woodrow, president of the National Council for Maternal and Family Welfare. The illegitimacy rate rises to eight out of 10 for colored teen-age mothers.

LEADING A HORSE'S LIFE

Gentle, a 7-year-old, 246-pound St. Bernard, gets the "mush!" signal whenever his master, 4-year-old Sean McGillen, wants to go for a ride. Sean's father, Dr. Frank L. McGillen of Grosse Point, Mich., has devised this special wagon hitch so Gentle can pull Sean around the yard.

TERRA LINDA COMPLAINTS

Teens Defend Park Gatherings; Deputies Deny Patrols Are Lax

By TOM COCKRELL

Unease over an alleged invasion of a Terra Linda neighborhood park by unruly teen-agers is putting residents on edge and posing problems for Marin County sheriff's officers.

It is fast becoming a community issue in the Orange Blossom Lane-Orris Terrace area where little Oleander Park is located.

"We've got a nasty situation here and its only a matter of time until a serious incident occurs," Cecelia Martz, vice chairman of the Terra Linda Recreation and Park District board, told the Independent-Journal.

"My phone has been ringing constantly," said John A. Colistra, chairman of the park board.

Phone calls from irate residents have reached sheriff's department switchboards at the rate of one every hour and a half for the past three nights, a department spokesman said.

Residents charge that gangs of 30 to 60 youths congregate nightly to hold impromptu boxing matches, drink wine, beer and "harder stuff" and drag race along Oleander Drive. Park watchers also hint at illicit sex taking place in dark corners of the park.

They say the situation is becoming intolerable and blame difficulties on failure of the sheriff's office to police the area adequately.

There are also charges of adults selling liquor to youths from trucks driven to the area at night.

But teen-agers in the park answer that they simply have no place else to go.

"We'd rather be anywhere than here. We just want something to do," said one Marinwood youth who hitchhikes to the park each night.

Marin County Juvenile Officer Harvey Teague places part of the blame for the problem on dissatisfaction of teen-agers with formal, structured recreation

Family, Friends Gather For Tom Cincotta Rites

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."
(from the Gospel of St. John, quoted in the eulogy to Pfc. Thomas Cincotta)

By LARRY D. HATFIELD

The three rifle salutes echoed back from the bare slopes of Quail Hill, muffled drumbeats of history.

A fleeting shiver touched the warm air as taps drifted down the hill, a requiem for yesterday's young men, a banshee for tomorrow's.

A Marine Corps major knelt before the solemn-faced boy and gave him the folded flag from his big brother's coffin near the grave at San Rafael's Mount Olivet cemetery.

The boy stood and handed the flag to his parents.

Pressing the flag to her, Mrs. Serge L. Cincotta stood and faced the relatives, friends — and some strangers — who had come to Mount Olivet to mourn her fallen son, Tom, killed in Vietnam 11 days before.

Mrs. Cincotta, in a simple white dress squared with red and blue lines, stood erect under the bright sky, turned blue now from the morning's earlier bullet gray.

Softly and eloquently, she said she prayed her son's death was not in vain. She spoke of the war that has divided the nation and begged her hushed listeners to understand that her son, who would have been 19 a week ago yesterday, died for what he believed in.

She and her family realized, she said, there were many who opposed the war and pleaded with those people to understand that Tom Cincotta believed he was fighting to defend their right to oppose it.

"We've got a great countey," she had said before the funeral. "He died for what he believed. He died for his country. We hope it was not in vain. We hope people will remember those boys who are still there."

Earlier, at the guitar mass at St. Raphael's Church, Betsy Chapman of San Rafael had sung words that echoed what Tom Cincotta's mother had been saying since she and her husband learned of his death from one of his Marine buddies in Vietnam:

"Whether I'm right or whether I'm wrong,

"I've got to believe . . .

"I can't be right for somebody else.

"If I'm not right for me . . .

"I've got to be free . . .

"Daring to try, to do or to die

"I've got to be me."

More than 600 persons attended the mass, including San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, a second cousin who

Nixon Issues Warning On Health Care Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon said today the nation faces "a massive crisis" in health care and placed his seal of approval on a collection of proposals to do something about it.

Nixon told newsmen that demand for health care is increasing so much faster than the supply of professionals and facilities available that there could be a national breakdown in the area unless action is taken within two to three years.

The President helped unveil an eight-page "Report on the Health of the Nation's Health Care System," signed by Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare and Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, assistant secretary-designate.

Finch and Egeberg listed a broad variety of concrete moves, proposals and ideas that, where not previously adopted, have at least been under wide discussion in Congress and within the HEW department.

Much of the report's emphasis was on spiraling costs of the medicaid program, which was described as "badly conceived and badly organized."

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance Committee searched for ways to stop the climbing costs of medicare and medicaid programs without extensive government intervention in fees charged by physicians and hospitals.

Medicare provides help for sick people 65 years of age and older. Medicaid is a joint federal-state program to provide medical care for needy persons.

President's Son, Herbert Hoover, Dies

PASADENA (AP) — Herbert Hoover Jr. shunned publicity most of his life and when he died at age 65 yesterday there were no press announcements of his passing.

The son of the late president served as the No. 2 man in the State Department from 1954 to 1957 under the late John Foster Dulles.

Hoover died in Huntington Community Hospital which said he had been hospitalized for about a week. Spokesman declined to name the illness or give the cause of death.

Hoover once said there were three ingredients that made life worth living for him—the outdoors, far away places and mining engineering.

Shunning politics most of his life, Hoover, an engineer like his father, made his professional mark as an inventor and administrator in the fields of mining, radio and electronic engineering.

It was his experience in oil mining that brought him reluctantly into public life. Serving as a trouble shooter for Dulles, Hoover was instrumental in healing the rift between the British and the Iranians over the nationalization of British-held oil concessions in 1954. Shortly after the success of his work in the oil dispute he was named undersecretary of state.

Two Senators Critical Of Save-Bay Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Proposals for a commission to preserve San Francisco Bay from filling and uncontrolled development encountered criticism today from two members of the Senate Finance Committee.

Sens. John Schmitz, R-Tustin, and Ralph Dills, D-Gardena raised objections as proponents of save-the-bay bills presented their measures before the committee.

Without passage of legislation this year, the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, which now controls filling of the bay, would die.

The committee is expected to take the measures under study and put together its own bill.

Some 500 people packed a hearing room and many of them applauded witnesses who spoke in favor of the bills.

Dills told Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-Atherton, one of the authors, that his bill could cost the state general fund money. He said the San Francisco Bay Commission created by the Dolwig measure might seek to condemn property, and the state would have to pay the costs.

Gromyko For Closer Tie To Washington

Red China Assailed In Speech

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko condemned Red China today and made a bid for developing friendly relations with the Unit? ed States.

Gromyko, in a major foreign policy speech before the Supreme Soviet—parliament—said the Kremlin favors talks with Washington "to find positions of agreement both on questions of bilateral relations and on unresolved international problems."

He warned Peking that attempts to use armed force against the Soviet Union "will be met with the necessary rebuff."

TALKS EYED

Despite the belligerent tone, he expressed readiness to hold talks with China "on a wide range of questions" but gave no indication that the Mao Tse-tung leadership had shown interest.

Gromyko's one-hour and 50-minute speech showed an increased Soviet willingness to deal with Washington and a hardening hostility toward China. It apparently reflected a pro-Western change in Kremlin foreign policy following a series of bloody incidents on the Soviet-Chinese border.

The Soviet foreign minister proposed talks on Berlin to prevent trouble from flaring up there again. The Kremlin attitude toward the divided city has been considered a barometer of its interest in getting along with the West.

ASIAN SYSTEM

Gromyko, after assailing China, spoke favorably of the possibilities of a Soviet-inspired collective security system in Asia. The Soviet Communist Party general secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, proposed this June 7 at the world Communist conference, obviously meaning it as a device to contain China.

Gromyko claimed the proposal had aroused widespread interest in Asia.

His bitter criticism of Peking contrasted with marked mildness toward the United States. He passed lightly over Vietnam, which used to rate long diatribes here, and used a conciliatory tone in other references to

TRUSTEES' ACTION

Hayakawa Now Permanent Boss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — S.I. Hayakawa advanced from temporary to permanent president of troubled San Francisco State College today with blessings from Gov. Ronald Reagan and criticism from faculty.

But Hayakawa, a jaunty, soft-voiced language expert from Mill Valley, left the door open "slightly" that he might seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate next year. (See another trustees story, page 19.)

Republican Reagan said of the 63-year-old campus leader, "He is an example throughout the country of the relatively small group that have stood firm" in college disruptions.

Reagan and other state college trustees voted 16-2 yesterday to name Hayakawa permanent San Francisco State president.

As acting president since last fall, Hayakawa called in hundreds of police to keep the campus open through four months of violence, bombings, charges of police brutality and student vandalism.

He promised yesterday to work "quietly" to improve the campus, peaceful since strikes by students and faculty ended earlier this year.

Hayakawa's critics called him a poor administrator, "a master dramatist," and an ambitious seeker of political office.

Regarding rumors he may seek a U.S. Senate seat, Hayakawa said: "The door is still slightly open but I haven't got much time to think about it."

Reagan and Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the 19-campus college system smiled and shook Hayakawa's hand after his appointment was announced.

Hayakawa moved last fall from a part-time job on the San Francisco State faculty to the president's chair after appeals for a firm stand against striking students impressed Dumke and other college trustees.

The strike involved student demands for a black studies department and additional programs for minority group students.

Hayakawa's appointments as acting and permanent president bypassed a regular faculty committee named to search for a campus president.

The committee suggested that San Francisco faculty give Hayakawa a vote of no confidence. But Dumke and Reagan said the appointment followed regular procedure.

Trustee Edward O. Lee of Oakland, a Negro, said of Hayakawa, "He spent more time building his image than building a college."

McInnis Explains Why Upton Was Replaced

John F. McInnis, chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, declared today he refused to renominate Dr. William F. Upton for appointment to the county planning commission because he "totally ignored" criticism of planning operations.

In a press statement he said was intended to "summarize my views . . . now that a little time has passed and possibly some perspective gained," McInnis said.

"During a period of over two years . . . I voiced loud and clear criticism and complaints of our planning operation. I had no desire to dictate to the commission, but I believe that I am obliged to raise pertinent criticism as I see it and I believe that the commission is obliged to consider criticism arising from responsible persons or agencies. . . .

"My questions and criticism were totally ignored by the man holding the position which I was to fill by appointment. If he would not respond to me, how could I expect him to respond to the public which we both served. . . ."

Under a system through which supervisors have largely unchallenged powers to appoint planning commissioners from their districts, McInnis chose Marinwood insurance man Jack G. Nixon to replace Upton, a San Rafael dentist and a conservationist. McInnis said at the time of Nixon's unanimous appointment June 17 that he was not voting against Upton, but that "I wish to bring a younger person for a perhaps more vigorous approach and in my opinion representative of the newer element of Marin County."

Upton had served on the commission for 16 years, but McInnis said in his statement that the commission "is not a private club in which time-in-service generates a proprietary membership."

Nixon was one of McInnis's key campaign leaders when he was elected to the board of supervisors in 1966.

"Jack nixon was one of the first names suggested to me by various others," McInnis said. "Several others were proposed and given serious consideration, but Mr. Nixon stayed in the category of 'most desirable.' Far from it being a 'political payoff' as some have suggested, at various times he indicated to me that he would prefer that I not ask him to take the appointment."

McInnis said that, on Nixon's recommendation, he asked management counsultant Edward M. Lewis of Los Ranchitos to take the post, but "it developed that Mr. Lewis' work simply would not permit the planning commission activity and I then directly asked Jack Nixon to accept the appointment. I know that many others had urged him to do so and he accepted."

Fying Lessons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pat Nixon says she once took flying lessons from a boyfriend while in college, but never got a pilot's license because the romantic attachment didn't last long enough.

The President's wife made the disclosure at a White House party for some 200 woman pilots who have flown in the Powder Puff Derby, a transcontinental air race for women.

Winner of this year's derby was Mrs. Mara Culp, 27, who comes from the President's hometown of Whittier.

Eye Surgery

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Tran Van Huong of South Vietnam was reported recovering from eye surgery and resuming work today at his official residence.

Huong, 65, left his office a week ago to undergo treatment for his eyes. Informants said he had been operated on by American doctors and that the surgery apparently corrected his ailment, glaucoma.

Trial Begins

ALGIERS (AP) — A trial of 182 officers and men of the Algerian army, accused of an attempted coup d'etat in December 1967, opened today in Oran, western Algeria.

The allged leader of the coup was being tried in absentia. Former Col. Tahar Zbiri, once army chief of staff, fled the country after the coup failed.

The majority of the accused are officers and noncommissioned officers. Civilian figures included Laroussi Khelifa, a minister under former President Ahmed Ben Bella.

At An 'End'

LONDON (AP) — A man rare coin dealers called the world's greatest counterfeiter was sentenced to two years in prison yesterday. His comment: "All good things must come to an end."

Dealers had said there was no such thing as a rare coin counterfeiter — but that was before Anthony Dennington, 33, began flooding the world's coin markets with pieces fashioned from old jewelry. Police said he used moulds made of denture powder.

Noticing the glut, British and American dealers asked Scotland Yard to investigate. When detectives raided Dennington's Chelsea apartment they found 2,000 coins and 500 moulds.

Syria Given Arms By Red Chinese?

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria has received $15 million in weapons as a gift from Communist China in the past few days Al Sayyad magazine reported here today.

These arms have already been deployed on the cease-fire line with Israel, the weekly claimed, without giving details on the weapons.

Al Sayyad's report appeared speculative in view of Syrian President Noureddin Atassi's current visit to the Soviet Union.

SITTING ON REPORT?

Wisconsin Demo Blasts Agency Over DDT Paper

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gaylord A. Nelson has charged the Department of Agriculture with sitting on a report condemning the general use of DDT.

Agriculture officials denied any such report exists, but did announce yesterday the department had ordered a temporary halt in the use of nine persistent or long-lasting pesticides including DDT — in government pest control programs.

The Wisconsin Democrat called on Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin to ban use of the toxic pesticide altogether.

Nelson said the department has kept the report quiet because "they haven't done anything about it."

Dr. G. W. Irving Jr., administrator of the USDA's agricultural research service, and Harry W. Hays, director of the pesticides regulation division, said no such recommendations have been made to Hardin.

"If there had been a report I would have known about it," Irving said.

Nelson acknowledged the report may not yet have reached Hardin's desk. But he added: "There is no doubt in my mind the report exists."

He contended the department's temporary halt to use of DDT in its own programs was a "ridiculous palliative" designed to assuage public opinion.

"The Department of Agriculture is America's worst offender," Nelson asserted. "It is locked in with the agricultural interests that use DDT."

Nelson said Hardin set up a special intradepartmental committee to study the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council Report On Persistent Pesticides.

The USDA committee recommended a ban on aerial dusting with DDT and use of the pesticide in "aquatic areas"—near lakes, rivers and streams, he said.

Bobby Baker Is Now Facing Fraud, Antikickback Counts

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Baker, once a protege of Lyndon B. Johnson and secretary to the Democratic Majority in the Senate, will be charged next week with violations of civil fraud and antikickback statutes, says an assistant attorney general.

William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Department of Justice civil division, said Baker was never indicted "under any antikickback statutes. When the Nixon administration entered office we decided to review the case."

Ruckelshaus added yesterday that the government will ask for triple damages. "We are trying to recover some of the money," he said, declining further comment until the suit "is reviewed in its final version by Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and filed early next week."

Baker, now 39, is free on bond pending his appeal on his 1967 conviction on seven counts of theft, income tax evasion and conspiracy. At last report he was deep into several successful business ventures.

Baker was accused of stealing most of the $96,600 he received from California savings and loan executives who thought they were making political contributions, evading $23,000 in income taxes, and conspiring to write off some of this money on the tax returns of a Washington lobbyist.

Ruckelshaus talked about the suit while in Chicago yesterday for a speech at the national convention of the Young Republicans.

A Justice Department spokesman, asked for comment on Ruckelshaus remarks declined, indicating that too much might have been said already. "There's no precedent for this sort of thing around here."

Egypt Says Israeli Suez Camp Is Held

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt claimed its forces sneaked across the Suez Canal today and held an Israeli position north of Ismailia for three hours without any Israeli interference. Israel denied it.

Maj. Tibor Yonash, an Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv, said: "Up to now there have been no Egyptian attacks. No damage was discovered and no signs of enemy action were found."

An Egyptian military communique said two infantry detachments supported by military engineers, "planted explosive charges and blew up all fortifications and equipment in the position."

"The surprise attack paralyzed all precautionary counter measures taken by the enemy and he could not interfere in any way for nearly three hours," it continued. "Our force returned to base without suffering any casualties."

Herbert Hoover Jr. Dies; Shunned Political Spotlight

when things are put to you as a matter of duty to serve your country, it is extraordinarily difficult to say 'no'," Hoover said of his duties as undersecretary.

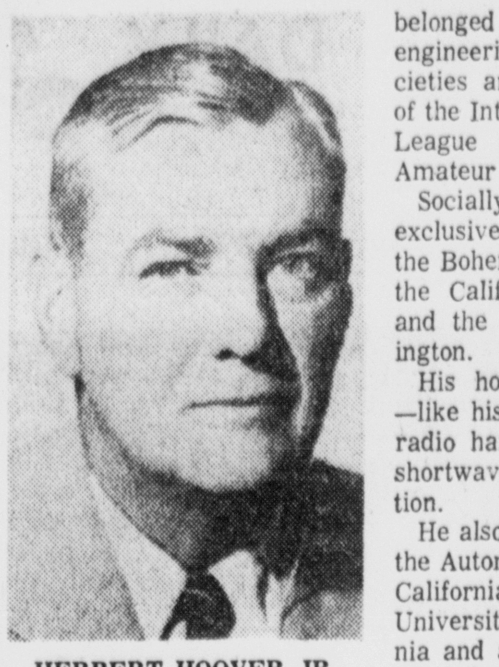
He was said to be upset when rumors circulated early in 1956 that he might replace then Vice President Nixon as President Dwight D. Eisenhower's running mate.

"I do not wish to be disrespectful," he said at the time, "but I have not the slightest interest in politics."

Hoover said his fondest memories were of far off places where he mined for gold and explored for oil and not of the years his father spent in the White House as the 31st president. He was 25 when his father became president in 1929. Already married, he busied himself in research and engineering positions at Harvard Business School, Western Air Express, and Transcontinental and Western Air during his father's four-year term.

Born in London in 1903, he earned a bachelor's degree at Stanford and then went on to get a master's from Harvard.

In his mid twenties Hoover suffered a two-year bout with tuberculosis. He wore a hearing aid from age 14 when a severe case of influenza left him deaf in his left ear.



HERBERT HOOVER JR.
Engineering, not politics

Survivors include his widow, Margaret Watson Hoover, a brother Allan, 62, Greenwich, Conn.; two sons, Herbert Hoover III, San Marino, and William Bowles Hoover, Sunnyvale, and a daughter, Mrs. Richard Brigham, West Chester, Pa., and 11 grandchildren.

Hoover listed himself as a Republican but his hobbies and professional interests seemed to outstrip his political nature. He belonged to many professional engineering and petroleum societies and had been president of the International Radio Relay League and the International Amateur Radio Union.

Socially he was a member of exclusive clubs that included the Bohemian in San Francisco, the California in Los Angeles and the Metropolitan in Washington.

His hobbies included fishing —like his father—and he was a radio ham at 12 with his own shortwave radio amateur station.

He also served as president of the Automobile Club of Southern California, as a trustee of the University of Southern California and as a board member of several corporations.

As an oil-exploration engineer and geologist he worked at various times for the governments of Iran, Peru, Venezuela, Chile and Brazil.

The family requested that contributions be made to the Patient Assistance Fund of the Huntington Memorial Hospital.

There was no press announcement of the death and newsmen learned of it from a paid classified in a newspaper.

A private funeral will be held at Pasadena's All-Saints Episcopal Church at 2 p.m. Monday.

Astromonk's Temperature Death Cause

HONOLULU (AP) — Bonny, the astromonk, died of a heart attack probably brought on by his lowered body temperature, says a preliminary report issued following a six-hour autopsy by a dozen scientists.

A final autopsy report on the monkey which died 12 hours after returning to earth is not expected for months, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said yesterday.

Dr. W. Ross Adey, the space project's chief investigator said the fatal drop in Bonny's temperature may have been due to his immobilization in weightlessness and a too-cool capsule during the nearly nine-day flight.

Temperatures in the tiny spaceship ranged from 68 to 70 degrees, but Adey said astronauts have complained of being too chilly when their capsule was kept at 70 degrees.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched satellite No. 289 in the unmanned Cosmos series today, Tass news agency said, adding that it was operating normally. The satellite is orbiting at a maximum distance of 210 miles from the earth and a minimum of 120 miles, Tass said.

Thai Leader Denies Defense Pact Secret

BANGKOK (AP) — Thai Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn admitted today the United States and Thailand signed an apparently unpublicized mutual defense agreement "three or four years ago," but denied it was secret.

"Call it what you will," Thanom said, "but it is not a secret agreement."

The existence of the pact was revealed in Washington by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the foreign relations committee. They claimed the United States had secretly broadened its commitment to Thailand during the Johnson administration.

Thanom told newsmen he signed the agreement with Lt. Gen. Richard G. Stilwell, then a major general and chief of the Joint U.S. Military Assistance Group in Bangkok. Stilwell now is in Vietnam.

The prime minister said the agreement was in accordance with the 1954 Southeast Asia Treaty Organization agreement but emphasized that the United States would send American troops to participate in "joint operations" with the Thais in defense against Communist aggression.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman refused to comment on either the existence of the agreement or on Thanom's statement. Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman, said: "I don't know what they are talking about."

Greyhound Tells Charter Swaps

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) Greyhound Lines Inc. says it has switched most of its charter business to other carriers, but not because of a strike by mechanics.

A spokesman, Kenneth Satron, declared yesterday that "every year about this time, our long lines business reaches a summer peak and we have to use all available buses to accommodate traveling vacationers."

Previously the firm said it had abandoned 17 commuter runs in the San Francisco Bay Area, but only because of a decline in passengers brought about by a vacation lull.

Fred Martin, an International Association of Machinists business agent, contended that both curtailments resulted from equipment breaking down during the walkout.

Blaze Destroys Yosemite Hotel

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (UPI)—Fire destroyed the famed Glacier Point hotel and adjacent Mountain House in Yosemite National Park last night. There were no injuries.

The 45-room hotel had been closed since winter when heavy snows left it heavily damaged. The management had started extensive remodeling and it was believed the fire started in the area under construction.

The Mountain House, which housed a dozen employees, a snack bar and a souvenir shop, sustained about $150,000 damage. The employees were not injured.

The fire damage was severe mainly because fire equipment had to come over 28 winding backcountry miles to get to the hotel.

An estimated 20,000 persons observed the blaze from the valley floor.

Bear Strikes Again In Yellowstone Park

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — Two tourists were attacked by a bear yesterday as they lay in their sleeping bags in Yellowstone National Park.

Neither of the victims, David Lou, 22, of Los Angeles, and Michael Rock, 23, of Carnegie, Pa., was injured seriously. Both suffered minor head wounds in the attacks and were in satisfactory condition.

Park rangers were mystified by the attacks, the second and third in the park this summer. All three attacks have been at the fishing bridge campground.

Last June 10, Daphne Jax, 5, of St. Paul, Minn., was mauled by an aging grizzly bear but she has recovered.

"From the description of the bear," Park Supt. Jack Anderson said of Wednesday's attacks, "we believe it is the same animal."

Anderson said the bear had not been captured. Rangers and others were searching the campground area. He said the bear was "large and brown".

Anderson said Lou was sleeping in a tent about 3 a.m. when the bear walked in and attacked him. About 30 minutes later and a quarter of a mile away, Rock was attacked as he lay in his sleeping bag outside his car.

Last Charges Dismissed In People's Park Mass Arrest

BERKELEY (UPI)—Charges have been dropped against 55 persons arrested during the battle over the People's Park, the last to be cleared of 432 picked up in a mass arrest on May 22.

There were no convictions in the 432 cases stemming from the mass arrest, which represented less than half of more than 900 arrests made during three weeks of sporadic violence.

After the first arraignments, Municipal Court Judge Floyd Talbot ruled that fingerprints and photographs obtained by booking officers at the mass arrest were inadmissable as evidence. He said such evidence was insufficient to prove those arrested were not just bystanders.

"The previous ruling leaves me little alternative," Municipal Court Judge George Brunn said yesterday when the last 55 cases came up. "In order to be consistent, I will dismiss the charges."

Of the 432 arrests, more than 80 were dropped without filing any charges.

IT'S WESTWARD HO, FOR BOTH THE AMERICAS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — North and South America are drifting westward over the Pacific Ocean at a rate of from one to six centimeters a year, says a scientist from the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

The speaker, Dr. N. Terence Edgar, was in San Francisco with engineers and scientists to report on the Glomar Challenger, a ship that can drill far into the earth's crust through 20,000 feet of ocean.

Cores taken from the Atlantic Ocean back a nine-year theory that huge underwater ridges are rising in oceans and pushing continents farther apart, he said.

The Americas, he continued, may be moving as much as six feet in a man's lifetime.

Finch Aide Going Back To Paper

WASHINGTON (UPI)—George L. Brand of San Luis Obispo has resigned as director of information in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Brand, a close friend of HEW Secretary Robert Finch who named him to the $28,976 post earlier this year, will return to the San Luis Obispo Telegram-Tribune as editor on Aug. 1 after taking a leave of absence from the paper Feb. 1.

Finch said yesterday he had noted Brand's efforts in HEW with "deep satisfaction." A successor has not been named.

Army Criticized Over Battle Tank Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major tank shortage may be developing because of the Army's preoccupation with the new, sophisticated and trouble-ridden Sheridan weapon system, says a House armed services investigating subcommittee.

"We need more tanks. I am not at all happy about our tank combat situation in Europe," said subcommittee Chairman Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., yesterday, in releasing a report on the Sheridan.

Further, the subcommittee accused the Army of trumping up a need for the Sheridan in 1959, pushing it into production before testing was complete, and covering up difficulties to keep budget funds flowing.

The tank strength in Europe has been sapped because the Army stopped making the mainstay M60 tank in 1967 while at the same time it was selling an unspecified number of the same model to Iran, Austria and Italy, the subcommittee said.

"Not only did the Army fail to maintain an adequate production rate of M60's during the 1960's, but they slowed down the production line and even closed it in 1967 to produce the M60E2, which still cannot be deployed because of deficiencies," the report said.

The E2 modification is an M60 tank fitted with a special turret that allows conventional shells and Shillelagh missiles to be fired from the same barrel.

The special turret is an offshoot of the Sheridan tank, which has been plagued by electronic difficulties, faulty ammunition, and mechanical breakdowns.

"Ten years of effort and some $1.2 billion have now been committed to the Sheridan-Shillelagh effort," the report said.

"Yet there is no convincing evidence that the system represents enough of an improvement in combat capability over existing weapons (used in a proper mix, or appropriately modified) to justify any such expenditures of time and money," it said.

Separately, Army spokesmen said the subcommittee did not give "full weight" to the combat performance of the Sheridan in Vietnam, where few have been deployed.

The Army said the Sheridan has increased fire power, mobility and over-all combat capability of armored cavalry units in the war zone. Problems "can be expected with the introduction of any new weapons system in combat situations."

Auto Damaged By Fire, Crash

A Sausalito man escaped uninjured yesterday when his car caught fire, but the car was a casualty, firemen said.

Firemen reported Ferdinand A. Gnau of 25 Spencer Court was warming up his car at 3:10 p.m. when a broken fuel line ignited.

Gnau leaped from the car as flames licked up, and the unattended car rolled downhill to Spencer Avenue and slammed to a stop against a utility pole.

Firemen said fire damage was an estimated $100, but damage from the crash was more extensive.

Five To Life For Slaying Of Sheriff

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two San Quentin escapees, convicted of killing a deputy sheriff during an attempt to break out of the Lake County Courthouse, were sentenced yesterday to prison terms of from five years to life.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh also handed down sentences of from one year to life for Larry Taylor and John Lynn, both 24, because of the escape attempt.

Karesh said both attempted escape terms would be served after Lynn and Taylor complete current sentences being served for robbery and forgery, respectively.

Then, under the law, the second degree murder terms would be served when the attempted escape terms are completed.

Taylor and Lynn were captured after escaping from a San Quentin forestry camp and taken to Lakeport. They were convicted of killing Deputy William Hoyt in the courthouse during a struggle on Oct. 11, 1967, as the defendants were being moved from jail to a courtroom for arraignment. They had escaped six days earlier.

In passing sentence Wednesday, Judge Karesh said:

"Taylor is not a man of violence, but it is clear he is easily led and therefore a danger to society. Lynn, however, has a tremendous potential for violence. With these sentences both men will be in prison for a long, long time."

Britain Offers Treaty On Bacterial Arms

GENEVA (AP) — Britain presented a draft treaty at the 19-nation disarmament conference today to ban the manufacture and use of bacteriological weapons.

But sources said the proposal, presented by Minister of State Fred Mulley, was not expected to draw support from the Soviet Union or its Communist allies at the talks.

The Soviets have argued that there is no need for a new treaty and have called on all nations to adhere to the Geneva protocol of 1925 banning chemical and bacteriological weapons. This is partly to embarrass the United States, which has not signed it.

In a message to the conference last week, President Richard M. Nixon said the U.S. delegation "is prepared to examine carefully together with other delegations, any approaches that offer the prospect of reliable arms control in this field."

Inverness Utility Budget Approved

A budget for 1969-70 was approved last night by the Inverness Public Utility District board.

William H. Thompson, a director, said the budget total was "substantially the same" as last year's, which amounted to $6,800. Thompson was not able to produce the exact figure.

The board also decided to hold its regularly scheduled meeting on the second Wednesday of each month, rather than the second Tuesday.

GOP Back In Fold, Reverse School Fund

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Republicans, seizing on a Democratic foulup, suddenly returned to Gov. Ronald Reagan's fold today and reversed house approval of a $372 million school aid measure.

Democrats and dissident Republicans had defied the governor yesterday by voting to increase a school aid bill from $200 million to $372 million.

They ignored Reagan's promise to cut down the money to the $120 million in the state budget.

But today, Republicans pointed out Democrats actually had placed the wrong amendments across the Assembly desk—amendments which did not include $57 million for city schools as thought.

"These amendments totally make the bill unsuable," said Assemblyman Victor Veysey, the reluctant author. He called the situation "hilarious."

Democratic Assemblyman Mike Cullen of Long Beach told Republicans "unfortunately the newspapers carried headlines of the Assembly defying the governor." But he said "if this house wants to send something to the governor he wants to veto, it's this house's privilege."

The vote to rescind the money boost amendments was a straight partyline 41-35—with all Republicans voting for the reversal.

The full bill will be taken up later.

Meanwhile, Sen. Stephen P. Teale, author of another school bill in the Senate, disclosed he will prune his $211 million measure down to the $120 million.

cently resigned at San Francisco State, and Hayakawa still is faced with setting up an ethnic studies department promised as a settlement to the student strike.

Trustees also announced other major appointments, including Ellis McCune as permanent president of Hayward State College; Hobart W. Burns, acting president of San Jose State College, and Carl Gatlin, from the Drexel Institute of Technology in Pennsylvania, president of Stanislaus State College.

Trustees also named Alvin Marks, an educator and recent head of Skymark Airlines, as dean of student affairs for the college system and Lee R. Kerschner, a political scientist, as dean of faculty affairs.

The board of trustees formally approved a student fee increase of about $6 a school year. It also adopted new rules spelling out college presidents' power to declare emergencies and suspend students without hearings.

The board approved a construction budget request of $172 million for 1970-71. The final figure will be decided by Reagan and the Legislature next year.

Trustees also listened to a report on problems at Sacramento State College in the wake of the resignation last May of President Robert Johns.

College officials reported that they will work with the State finance department on a study of Sacramento State expenditures. A state auditor general's report had criticized Johns' handling of out-of-state travel and campus expenses for bleachers and food service contracts.

Dumke said the auditor general's office "was trying to smear us," adding that his own office also was making an investigation.

After an audit committee meeting earlier yesterday, trustee George Hart of Ross issued a strong statement about Dumke's administration.

Reporters asked Hart later if he was asking for Dumke's resignation.

"No," Hart replied.

His statement read, that "the stewardship of the chancellor together with certain members of his staff should be critically reviewed by the trustees at an early date with the view of making some long overdue changes in personnel."

But Hart said he was not planning on asking for such a review until sometime next fall.

He also said that the colleges' file on president Johns should be given to the Sacramento County district attorney.

Afterwards, Dumke refused to comment on Hart's blast.

Gromyko made no effort to disguise the importance the Kremlin attaches to China, whose 700 million people and turbulent society are removed from this country only by a disputed border more than 4,000 miles long.

"The situation in Asia and elsewhere in the world depends to a considerable extent on what aims China will serve and the way its foreign policy will be oriented," the foreign minister told parliament.

"The leaders of the Chinese People's Republic have done everything in their power to unsettle relations that developed between our countries in the first years after the victory of the revolution and the establishment of People's China.

But Dolwig replied the commission would have no power to condemn land and if it sought to do it "it would be an illegal act."

Schmitz objected to provisions that would allow the commission to zone some areas for wildlife refuges or recreation, saying it could cause economic harm to property owners who might want to use the land for commercial purposes.

But William Siri, University of California professor and a famed mountaineer who has climbed Mount Everest, said:

"It's never been an anticlimax to return to the Bay Area — not even from Mount Everest. I hope it stays that way."

Before the committee were bills by Dolwig, Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco; Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland and Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

All the measures are supported by the present Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission.

All but Dolwig's would continue the commission. Dolwig proposed a new commission, with the same powers, and supervision over pollution control.

The Knox and Petris bills give the commission the power to control development in a band extending 500 feet inland. The Dolwig and Marks bills cover a 100-foot-wide band.

Firemen Ask Higher Wage In Novato

Novato firemen, stating that they were paid less than four other fire departments in Marin County, last night asked for an unspecified increase in wages, according to Assistant Fire Chief Alvin S. Butti.

Lt. Raymond E. Dougherty gave the comparison of Novato, $770 monthly pay with top firemen's wages in San Rafael at $896.50, Mill Valley at $849.45, San Anselmo, $831.10, and Sausalito, $820.37.

No comparison was made with other departments in Marin County.

Novato firemen work 73 hours per week compared to an average of 66 in the four other departments, he said.

The Novato fire commissioners wanted more information on the step programs of other departments and the differences between firemen, lieutenants, captains, assistant chiefs and chiefs in wages and fringe benefits, Butti said.

The board set 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday at the main fire station to get the additional information and continue the discussion of salaries and fringe benefits, Butti said.

MASS

occasionally dabbed at his eyes. There were many nuns, some of whom had taught Tom in school, and many of his classmates from Marin Catholic High School, where he graduated a little more than a year ago.

Seated with his parents, brothers and sisters in the first pew was Linda Scatena who wore Tom's Marine Corps ring.

During the ceremony, Mrs. Cincotta was given support by her husband, who took her arm occasionally.

The clothing of many of the women mourners followed Mrs. Cincotta's red, white and blue color theme. The concelebrants of the mass — Msgrs. James E. Cain of Stockton and Edward Dullea of Marin Catholic and Rev. John P. Tierney of St. Sylvester's parish — wore white vestments.

"Tom hated black," his mother said. "Our faith believes that death is not the end, but the beginning of something new."

Among the mourners were some who had not known the dead Marine. One of them, a 19-year-old who has avoided the draft (Tom volunteered last August), said before the mass: "I think it's a dirty, rotten war and this country is wrong. But this guy believed he was right. I don't agree, but I respect him for that. It takes a lot of guts to be willing to die for what you believe."

A girl classmate said, "I don't believe in the war and I wouldn't have gone. But that's easy for a girl to say, isn't it? Tom believed and now he's dead. His death has to mean something. I hope it means we will all start to see how crazy it is to go on sacrificing our young men."

In his eulogy, Bishop Mark Hurley of San Francisco, who had baptized Tom and all but one of his brothers and sisters, spoke of what young Cincotta's death meant:

"It would be sheer folly to make any attempt to explain what has happened or to pretend that we can know the reasons why. Life is full of mysteries and our Catholic faith defines a mystery as a truth which we cannot fully understand . . .

". . . There is no mystery, there is no question at all that a young man has offered his life in a pure oblation and sacrifice for his friends. Some people may be tempted to hide behind a worn-out cliche that 'war is hell' — as indeed it is — or 'youth is impetuous' or some other arbitrary supposition.

"But the stark ineluctable fact stands out in bold relief: this young man did not travel to a faraway jungle as a private citizen; he bore no personal grudge or grievance against the enemy; he had no quarrel with the men he faced across no-man's land.

"No, he left his native soil as a public person, dressed in the official uniform of his country, and he risked his life in the name of each and every citizen of the United States."

Looking at the grieving parents and grandparents, Hurley said it is more natural for sons to bury parents and grandparents than for them to bury sons. "Could we be blamed if we protest that the angel of death has made a mistake, that the angel of death is in error, has confused spring with autumn?"

Ironically, Cincotta had been given a chance to come home after being wounded in April. He passed it up because, a friend wrote, he didn't want to "lie his way out."

Another irony was that Tom would have been among the first 25,000 American fighting men to be withdrawn from Vietnam. The first contingent arrived in the United States just two days ago.

The last letter he had written home, told of the impending withdrawal and commented wryly, "If I don't get a 'basket-leave,' we will see each other in 1970."

The last sentence in that last letter said:

"Tonight we will be nice and warm. Love, Tom."

Louisiana produces more sweet potatoes than any other state.

PARK

programs in general and lack of interest in the Terra Linda Center program in particular. "It just fell apart last year," he said.

Colistra, who said he has approached both the Marin County Recreation Commission and San Rafael High School District for funds this spring, admits the teen program at the Terra Linda center is "limited."

"I ran around like crazy looking for money. I got none. We forewarned the county this would happen if we couldn't put on a teen program."

The problem is complex. Mrs. Martz says many incidents are in direct violation of the park board's Ordinance No. 1. It specifically prohibits loitering, "riotous, boisterous, threatening, indecent, immoral or abusive behavior, or use of profane language . . ."

Moreover, the ordinance prohibits gatherings of more than 20 persons without prior written permission of park directors.

Terra Linda parks are governed under community service district provisions which place police responsibility in the hands of the sheriff's office.

Lieutenant Thomas Lightfoot, night watch commander in the sheriff's department, says his men regularly patrol the area. They cannot roust the youths without legal cause.

"We go by the book. We have to follow rules of evidence," he said.

"We're not trying to dodge our obligation, but we are frustrated unless we have something to work with."

Lightfoot said complaining residents can help by making a citizen's arrest if they see a youth violating the law. But he said most residents, when approached by deputies, say they do not want to appear in court.

He also suggested a chain link fence built around the park and a sunset curfew might solve park problems.

"If a boy climbs that fence after dark, we can arrest him."

But deputies don't want to provoke a repeat performance of a July 1 fracas in Tiburon's Paradise Park in which deputies and highway patrolmen clashed with 100 rock and bottle throwing youths, resulting in 9 arrests.

"It's a can of worms," admits Sergeant George Reuss.

Meanwhile, Terra Linda park directors are faced with a growing problem and a possible citizen protest at tonight's 8 p.m. meeting in the Terra Linda Community Center at 670 Del Ganado Road.

And teen-agers, many sons and daughters of neighborhood residents, want to know where they can go without fear of being rousted.

Cooperating with sheriff's deputies who cruised the park area last night, they dispersed promptly at 11 p.m., stacking cans and bottles in park trash containers. But, said the youths, "We'll be back."

Senate Committee Endorses Egeberg

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Labor Committee approved today the nomination of Dr. Roger O. Egeberg to be assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs in the Welfare Department.

Egeberg, dean of medicine at the University of Southern California, was named after President Richard M. Nixon decided not to appoint Dr. John H. Knowles of Massachusetts to the post.

Three Youths Arrested In Mill Valley

Three youths were arrested yesterday by Mill Valley police for investigation of possession of stolen property and petty theft after they allegedly were caught rifling coin boxes at a drive-in auto wash.

Larry James Stover, 18, of E36 Hilarita Housing, Tiburon, and Curtis Price Jr., 18, of 710 Drake Avenue, Marin City, were booked into Marin County Jail with bail set at $315 to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

The third youth, Robert Donzill Price, 17, of 72 Cole Drive, Marin City, was booked into Juvenile Hall.

Police said officers became suspicious when they saw the youths parked in a car wash stall at Ashford Street and Lomita Drive at 10:30 p.m. but not washing their car. When officers checked, they found two of the coin machines had been emptied and a third, they said, in the process of being pried open.

Also, police said, property identified as having been taken from the City of Mill Valley's corporation yard in a May burglary was found in the car.

Twin Heiresses To Juvenile Court

The cases of twin heiresses who are accused of growing marijuana at a rented Kentfield home were certified yesterday to Marin Juvenile Court from adult court.

Deborah Wadsworth Prentice Ettinger and Pamela Prentice Ettinger, 19, were arrested June 13. According to probation officers, they are no longer living alone in Kentfield but have gone back to their parents.

They are the granddaughters of the co-founder of Prentice-Hall Inc., New York publishing firm.

10 Persons Perish In Farmhouse Fire

POSEN, Mich. (AP) — Ten persons died today in a roaring farmhouse fire outside this Polish, potato-growing community in northeastern Lower Michigan, firemen said.

All who died were related. Seven were children ranging in age from 15 months to 16 years.

The toll was the highest in recent Michigan history. Twice since 1950, eight died in two separate fires.

Of 12 who normally lived in the two-story home, only two survived. One escaped. Another was visiting in nearby Alpena.

Edward Gralewicz, 48, who escaped, said the fire broke out in the first-floor laundry room about 1:30 a.m. and spread with incredible speed. Fire Chief Ray Wosniak said it may have been caused by faulty wiring.

Dead are Anthony Gralewicz, 85, Edward's father; Theresa Bonin, 39, Anthony's daughter; her husband, Wallace, 45, and seven of the Bonin's eight children: Victor, 16; Barbara Ann, 15; Kenneth, 13; Julie Ann, 11, Gregory, 8; Marcia, 5, and Robert, 15 months.

Edward Gralewicz told Presque Isle County sheriff's deputies that he came home from his job as a laborer in nearby Stoneport about midnight and went to bed.

At about 1:30 a.m., Edward, awakened by the family dog's barking outside, said he smelled smoke. He said he then went to the laundryroom at the rear of the four bedroom, two-story frame house and as he opened the door, fire and smoke billowed out, driving him back.

Edward said he shouted upstairs to warn the others, but that flames drove him out before he could effect any rescue.

Carol Bonin, 17, whose parents perished, was away visiting in Alpena.

Neighbors who saw the flames called Posen's volunteer Fire Department, but intense heat and smoke prevented entry by firemen and the walls collapsed soon after their arrival, fire officials said.

The Gralewicz family worked a 120-acre farm, raising grain and potatoes, in this agricultural area on the Lake Huron shore.

Douglas Stays Death Row Date

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas yesterday issued a stay of execution for Denis C. McGautha, a San Quentin Death Row inmate who had been scheduled to die Aug. 13 in the gas chamber.

The stay will be in effect at least until the fall when the Supreme Court reconvenes after its summer recess to consider an appeal of McGautha's conviction.

McGautha, 43, was brought to Death Row Oct. 5, 1967 following his conviction of the fatal shooting of a Los Angeles market owner during a robbery.

Agnew Could Hold Key To ABM Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today Vice President Spiro T. Agnew may get his first opportunity to vote in Congress when the Senate finally acts on the Safeguard program.

Mansfield told newsmen senators already have "made up their minds" on the antimissile question and he doubts whether any votes will be affected by the debate that began Tuesday and which may last three weeks.

"It looks like a 50-50 proposition," he said. "Maybe Agnew will be the deciding factor."

The vice president, although president of the Senate, can vote only to break a tie. He would be expected to support the Nixon administration's Safeguard plans.

The Montana Democrat said the twice-postponed secret Senate session would not be held this week. "When we do have it," he said, "we ought to give the Senate plenty of notice."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, asked about White House efforts to use a soft-sell approach in trying to sway GOP senators to back the program, replied: "You don't sell something by going into a room with a baseball bat."

Meanwhile Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy says it is "pure hogwash" to argue the program is needed to strengthen President Richard M. Nixon's hand for U.S.-Soviet disarmament talks.

First Marine Unit Leaves War; New Low In Deaths

SAIGON (AP) — The first contingent of U.S. Marines to be withdrawn from Vietnam flew to Okinawa today as military spokesmen reported the lowest weekly number of American battle deaths in almost six months.

The Marines left with none of the fanfare accorded departing U.S. infantrymen three days ago. An advance party of 120 Leathernecks of the Ninth Regiment departed from Quang Tri, a base 20 miles south of the demilitarized zone, in two four-engined transports.

They included 60 combat troops of the 1st Battalion and the rest payroll and administrative personnel who will prepare for arrival of the main body of the 8,000-man regiment expected in Okinawa within the next few weeks. The rest of the First Battalion will leave in a few days, spokesmen said.

U.S. headquarters said 153 Americans were killed in action last week, the lowest death toll since the week ending Jan. 11 when 151 U.S. personnel were killed.

Spokesmen said the relative lull in combat activity accounted for the marked decrease from the preceding week's toll of 241 Americans, and from the weekly average of 243 American dead in the first 26 weeks this year.

Another 1,548 Americans were wounded last week—772 of them hospitalized—compared to 1,674 the previous week.

South Vietnamese casualties and the number of enemy dead reflected similar drops—274 government troops killed and 586 wounded last week compared with 446 killed and 804 wounded the previous week, and 2,381 enemy killed compared with 3,485 the previous week.

The new casualty reports raised to 37,019 the number of Americans killed in action in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961, 238,147 wounded and 1,325 listed as missing, captured or interned. For the same period the U.S. Command lists 526,085 enemy dead.

Bolinas Utility Budget Adopted

A 1969-70 budget of $96.657 was approved last night by the Bolinas Community Public Utility District, an increase of $2,092 over last year. No tax rate increase is likely, secretary Jane Phillips reported. The current rate is $1.785 per $100 assessed valuation.

The budget includes $69,657 to be raised from property taxes, an increase of $1,809, and $27,000 to be raised by other revenues such as water bills and connection charges.

Comparable figures last year were $67,848 from taxes and $26,717 from other revenues.

The board also reelected Jose A. Silva chairman and Manuel S. Peters vice chairman.

$200 Sword Stolen

Ruth Edin of 16 Ross Drive, Sausalito, reported to the sheriff's department Tuesday that someone had pried open the door of her apartment and had stolen a $200 sword, an attache case and $3 in change, officers said today.

Reagan Eyes Income Tax Hike—25 Pct.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan is considering both a one cent sales tax increase and an average 25 per cent personal income tax hike in a proposed revision of his property tax relief plan.

This was disclosed today by Finance Director Caspar Weinberger, who told a reporter the administration is rewriting the plan the governor proposed earlier in the year.

If the revisions are accepted, it would be a sharp departure from what the Republican governor first sought. But his original plan has encountered opposition from Assembly Republicans, including Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael.

Reagan originally asked for an average 50 per cent personal income tax increase by imposing a new one per cent tax on gross personal income.

The sales tax — now five per cent — would not have gone up, although it would have been extended to repair services, magazines and newspapers and other categories.

The new state funds are to go to local government to finance a massive reduction in local property taxes, averaging 50 per cent.

The final result: shifting much of the burden of local schools and other services from the property tax to the income tax, which hits many more people.

Toronto was the first North American city to adopt the metro type of government for the whole area.

Lodge To Hanoi, Cong: U.S. Will Not Capitulate

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told the 25th session of the Vietnam peace talks today the United States is ready to negotiate and compromise, but declared: "We shall not capitulate."

Lodge said North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government constantly demand the withdrawal of allied forces while rejecting all proposals for mutual withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops.

"To hold such a position is to demand capitulation by our side," he said. "This is unreasonable. We shall not capitulate. No negotiated settlement of the war in Vietnam is possible until you modify that demand.

"We are prepared to negotiate and compromise. While you refuse to join us in negotiation and compromise, the tragedy of war continues."

Lodge said the other side's reaction to President Richard M. Nixon's May 14 peace proposals has been negative, and he repeated Nixon's warning that "our fighting men are not going to be worn down, our negotiators are not going to be talked down and our allies are not going to be let down."

The meeting brought little more than the now familiar accusations between the two sides, each blaming the other for the continuing deadlock.

South Vietnamese delegate Pham Dang Lam declared: "You are trying to influence world public opinion and American public opinion to force the U.S. and allied troops to withdraw from South Vietnam and, on the other hand, you are avoiding the question of withdrawing back to the North your own troops, cadres and subversive forces present in the South."

Fair Director Facing IRS Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Harrison F. Cutler, managing director of the California Exposition, was charged yesterday with failure to file federal income tax returns for a three-year period.

The Internal Revenue Service, in a suit filed in federal court, said Cutler did not file a return or pay taxes for the years 1963, 1964 and 1965. It said his total income for the three years was $37,030.

Cutler, an Elk Grove bachelor, was summoned to appear in court Aug. 8. Conviction on the three counts would bring a sentence of three years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Prior to taking over as managing director of the exposition and fair in Sacramento, Cutler was manager of the state fair and of numerous county fairs and horse shows.

Water District Eyes Marincello 'De-Annex'

Marin Municipal Water District which spent months working on annexing Marincello in 1967 yesterday decided to investigate de-annexing.

"I'm very curious about Marincello," said board president Robert G. Anderson after the board wearily agreed to try to collect $24,305 in overdue fees.

Anderson asked Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger for a report on the status of the 1,692-acre area above Sausalito — long slated for development as a planned community.

"It doesn't look like it's going to be developed," said Anderson. "Could we de-annex?"

Seeger said he has been in contact with Gulf Oil Corp. which owns most of the property. "They still say it's going — manana."

Meanwhile, the board approved a resolution to levy a special tax within the Marincello zone to cover delinquent annexation fees. The landowners had agreed to pay $51,000 in annexation fees, with $10,000 in advance. The $10,000 is all that's been received.

Seeger reported yesterday that Gulf has indicated it doesn't want to go on the tax rolls. "They may pay it up before it does," he said.

Marin Municipal Water District Also:

SPECIAL FEES — Agreed to pay the district's attorney, Robert W. Elliott $420 in extra fees for his work on two cases — one of them involving violations of the district's prohibition of nudity. Elliott said the case involved hippie-type persons who apparently tried to scare off other citizens who came to picnic at Kent Lake. The offenders took off their clothes, he said.

CONSTRUCTION — Approved relocation of water mains in connection with widening of Highway 101 at a total cost of $34,800, with the state to pay 53.6 per cent.

PIPELINE — Authorized a pipe line extension for a four-lot subdivision at Shady Lane and Lagunitas Road in Ross with costs of $7,578 to be borne by the owner, A. Crawford Greene Jr.

FIRELINES — Approved fireline extension agreements on Summit Drive ($5,218) and Spring Trail ($5,458) in Corte Madera and on Morning Sun Avenue ($5,545) in the Tamalpais Fire Protection District with costs to be split between the district and the jurisdictions involved.

OVERTIME — Learned 124 hours in overtime had been spent selling fishing permits. A total of 2,867 permits, with proceeds ot $13,071 have been issued so far.

IDENTIFICATION — Authorized spending $150 to provide all employees with standard identification cards.

Pontiff Flees Roman Summer

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI left the summer heat of Rome today and headed for his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo in the cool Alban Hills. But it is no vacation for the Pontiff.

The Pope, 71, will work on speeches and details for his July 31 trip to Uganda in East Africa.

The Pope will stay at Castel Gandolfo until he leaves for Uganda then is expected to return to Castel Gandolfo for a few more weeks. Even then he will be busy preparing for a synod of Roman Catholic bishops from throughout the world Oct. 11 at the Vatican.

Castel Gandolfo has served as a summer Vatican since Pope Gregory XV's first visit there in a horse-drawn carriage in 1626. The town has a population of 3,000 and is 1,000 feet above Lake Albany. It is usually considerably cooler than Rome in the summer, although only 17 miles away. fp735apd

Youngster Is Fair From Ladder Mishap

A 4-year-old San Francisco boy was reported in fair condition today with a fractured skull at Marin General Hospital after he slipped and fell from the ladder of the high diving board yesterday at Corte Madera's Edgewater Inn, police reported.

Scott Johnson, son of Mrs. Virginia Johnson, was climbing the ladder to the 10-foot board at 12:52 p.m. when he fell to the concrete deck, police said.

Shopping Center Plans Approved

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee last night approved a plan for the enlargement of the north end of the Red Hill Shopping Center building to allow for a Sears Roebuck and Co. display room and warehouse. Applicants for the plan are Grubb and Ellis Co., San Rafael.

An application by Mel R. Westenberg to roof his carport at 36 Sunview Avenue was approved by a 3-2 vote, committee members James G. McDonald and James Frankopf voting "no" because they felt the roof would extend into public right-of-way and Warren R. Perry abstaining.

The committee approved landscape plans for St. Nicholas Church at 102 Ross Avenue and an application to remodel the exterior of the Kientz Bakery at 625 San Anselmo Avenue.

Bicyclist Hurt In Crosswalk

An 11-year-old San Rafael boy suffered scrapes of his right elbow and right knee yesterday when he was struck by a car driven by Harriet Levine, 46, of 425 Mission Avenue, San Rafael.

Michael C. Swanfeldt of 119 Greenfield Avenue was treated at Marin General Hospital after the accident which occurred at 1:23 p.m.

Police said the boy was walking his bicycle across the street and was in the crosswalk when the accident occurred at the intersection of Fourth Street and Greenfield Avenue.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Militant Student Punishment Urged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly education subcommittee has endorsed a resolution urging the University of California, state colleges and junior colleges to act immediately to punish disruptive students.

The measure by Sen. Walter W. Stiern, D-Bakersfield, called on the university regents, state college trustees and junior college governing boards to "take immediate action, including filing criminal charges and instituting disciplinary proceedings...against those individuals who aid, abet or participate in campus disorders."

The resolution was sent to the full education committee yesterday with a recommendation for approval.

The subcommittee on education environment also held for further study bills to:

Permit dismissal of an elementary, secondary or junior college teacher who was absent without leave for five consecutive working days. Such a law already applies to university and state college instructors.

Prohibit reemployment for two years of a teacher on the college and university level who is absent for five or more days.

Require the university and state colleges to set up rules and regulations for student conduct and notify the students of the requirements.

TAX DATE

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate has voted to set a Jan. 1, 1970, starting date for the one-half cent sales tax increase in the three counties of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

The BART bill by Sen. Lewis Sherman, R-Berkeley, was approved by the Senate Wednesday on a 30-0 vote and sent to the Assembly.

The one-half-cent boost was authorized earlier by the Legislature to pay off the $146 million BART debt.

Sherman said the levy had been scheduled to go into effect 90 days after the Legislature adjourns.

AUTHORITY

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill prohibiting the state college trustees and junior college governing boards from delegating policymaking or administrative authority to the academic senate was approved by the Senate yesterday and sent to the Assembly.

Sen. John G. Schmitz, R-Tustin, said decentralization of authority adds to the problem of campus unrest.

The vote on Schmitz' measure was 22-2.

FOOD PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill that in effect increases the purchasing power of families receiving welfare assistance was approved last night by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The measure by Assemblyman Gordon W. Duffy, R-Hanford, won bipartisan support. It permits persons to use federal food stamps to increase their subsistence level with the stamps.

Under present requirements, food stamps must be purchased with dollars.

ASSAULT

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill setting a minimum five-year prison term for assaulting a policeman or fireman with a deadly weapon was approved by the Senate yesterday on a 24-6 vote and sent to the Assembly.

Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-Atherton, said his bill also prohibits a person convicted of assault on an officer or fireman for the first time from receiving a suspended sentence or probation.

Recreation Topics

The teen-age summer recreation program and Ayala Day ceremonies will be discussed by the Tiburon Parks and Recreation commission at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

State's Job Roll Over 4 Million

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Employment in California last month surpassed the 8 million mark for the first time in history, the state Departments of Employment and Industrial Relations reported today.

A total of 8,047,000 held jobs during the month, 92,000 higher than in May and 255,000 higher than June last year. The figure was beefed up by the influx of summer job hunters.

Meantime, unemployment totaled 386,000, an increase of 59,000 over May but 7,000 below the level for June 1968. Labor disputes and continued layoffs in the aerospace industry was blamed for the increase.

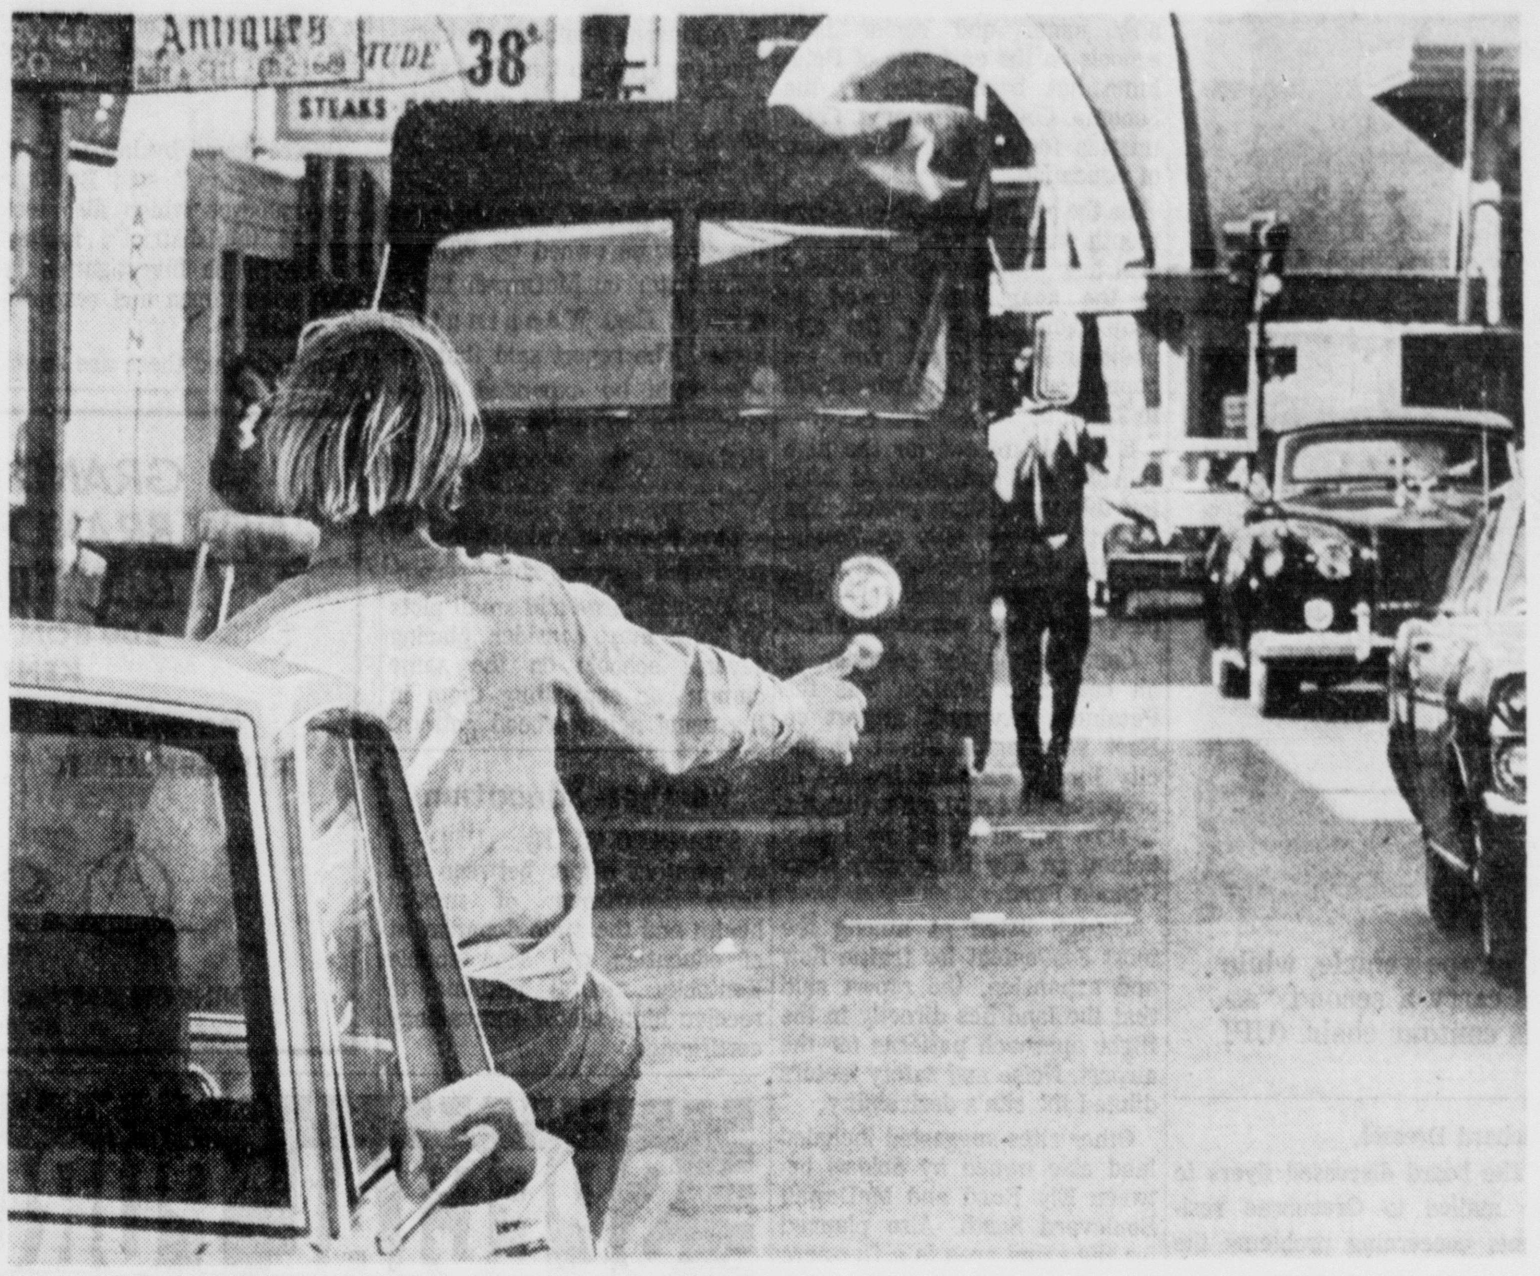
HITCHHIKERS EVERYWHERE

How Else To Get Anywhere?

By PATRICK SULLIVAN
(second of two articles)



THE CASUAL WAY — Sausalito, too, has a good share of hitchhikers. Both the young man in the foreground, leaning against an auto, and the one in the background next to the truck are violating the vehicle code ordinance prohibiting hitchhiking on a roadway. They got rides from passing motorists on Bridgeway — and no citations.

In the limited effort they have made to keep widespread hitchhiking in Marin under some kind of control, police and other authorities have realized little success.

Nowhere is the futility of the present 20-word law governing hitchhiking shown more dramatically than in Sausalito, where police several months ago launched a crackdown on illegal hitchhiking.

Their tool in the sweep was California Vehicle Code section 21957. It reads: "No person shall stand in a roadway for the purpose of soliciting a ride from the driver of any vehicle."

The primary target area for the get-tough policy was the Gate 6 area leading out of Sausalito toward Highway 101.

Warnings were issued. Citations were handed out to the more flagrant violators and those who had previously been warned about the statute and its key words: "... stand in a roadway..." Persons cited were usually slapped with $14 to $19 fines.

"We got them pretty well trained," said Inspector Robert Glynn.

But "trained" evidently means merely trained to keep clear of the roadway while soliciting a ride.

And late in June an 18-year-old Sausalito girl, presumably waving her thumb legally, was picked up by a man in a purple sports car and driven to an isolated spot behind a bait shop, where the man began to paw her. After a struggle she was able to escape from the car.

Authorities cite what they believe to be several contributing factors to the growth of hitchhiking. Some linked it with an influx of hip, free-thinking persons about the time the Haight-Ashbury district began to resemble a jungle two years ago.

One said the same attitudes that go with pot smoking seem to lend themselves to hitchhiking.

But ovrwhelmingly, police and other officials laid the hitchhiking explosion to the lack of a regular, reliable, reasonably-priced public transportation system throughout the county.

"We have beautiful beaches out at the coast but there's no way for kids to get there except in car pools — or by hitchhiking," said Sgt. Al Howenstein of San Anselmo

"Now we've come to accept it in lieu of public transportation," he said.

Two Redwood High School students, Tim Hilton and Dan McClennan, both 15, hitchhike regularly. They said they have had only one "bum ride," when a man picked them up on the Tuburon Peninsula and drove aimlessly "asking if we had ever had an experience with God and preaching from the Bible"

McClellan said he hitchhiked almost daily to and from school. During the summer months the two find hitchhiking is the only way to visit friends.

"I have a friend who lives about four miles away in Tiburon," said Hilton.

Both boys, too young to obtain driver's licenses, said even if they were limited to coping with existing bus service, "there still is the problem of getting the money."

Sometimes, McClellan admitted, if he has the money he still travels by hitchhiking because it is easier and there are things he would rather spend the money on than bus fare.

The two boys can plan on no relief in the dismal public transportation picture this summer. The plan being bandied about by county officials that would take only 90 days to get buses on the road would not become a reality until October even if it were suddenly given full approval tomorrow.

Thus, it seems, young hitchhikers will be populating Marin roadsides well into the coming months. While police and others are anxious to break up what they see as an inducement to various crimes, they have not been armed with an equitable law to do so.

A countywide ordinance, prohibiting hitchhiking from any place near a road, has been proposed by Ross Town Councilman Roy Farrington Jones and stirred interest among some law enforcement authorities.

But it might turn out to be unfair to thousands of the county's stranded youths.

"If you are going to ban hitchhiking, realistically you would have the obligation to provide something suitable as an alternative," said Juvenile Inspector Gerald R. Green of San Rafael.

In the meantime, police fall back on placing the responsibility for hitchhiking youths in the hands of parents, and calling for understanding of the dangers by hitchhikers themselves.

But if, the only interim solution is to convince teen-agers of the dangers they face, one thing is clear: scare tactics probably won't work.

Statistics on juvenile drug offenses bear out that crude propaganda films, sensational pamphlets and other such approaches to dissuade youths from drug use have largely failed.

Another campaign of that sort, this time regarding hitchhiking, might result only in driving another wedge into the chasm separating the generations.

Yet it is also a tragedy, as one officer said, that the only way some young hitchhikers now get the message is when they find themselves trapped in a seat next to someone with a knife.

Gunshot Fatal To Housewife

A San Anselmo woman died yesterday in Marin General Hospital of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Mrs. Velma Stack, 40, the wife of a San Francisco police sergeant, was wounded in the head about 2 p.m. at her home at 846 Butterfield Road by a single gunshot.

Her husband, Thomas, was asleep in the house at the time, according to Deputy Sheriff Denny Shine, who said Mrs. Stack left a note indicating she was in poor health.

Wife Is Refused Lowered Bail

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court yesterday refused to reduce bail from $12,250 for Constance Abercrombie, 55, Novato housewife accused of shooting her husband Saturday.

Mrs. Abercrombie, who remained in jail in lieu of bail, entered an innocent plea to the charge of assault with intent to commit murder. A preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Her husband, Robert, a retired Army major, was reported in "generally good condition" at Letterman General Hospital.

Silverthorne's Son Takes Witness Stand

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Don Carlos Silverthorne Jr. has taken the witness stand in the second trial of his father.

The elder Silverthorne, 69, of Tiburon, is charged by the U.S. some $200,000 in funds from his San Francisco National Bank before it was closed down in 1965.

The younger Silverthorne, 44, testified yesterday he took a pay cut to come to work for his father's bank in April 1963. He said he was making between $1,100 and $1,200 a month as a clinical laboratory technician — his current occupation — and received $1,000 a month at the bank.

He said his father made him a vice president and director, that he served as loan officer and assistant to the operations officer, and was in charge of janitors.

Silverthorne Jr. testified that a federal bank examiner, Victor Del Trebici, had told him his father ran the bank in an unorthodox manner. He said he knew about gifts his father purchased for clients, and had accompanied him on several shopping trips.

The witness testified about tallying by himself and another bank officer of some $300,000 in loan fee transmittal letters and being told there should have been $800,000 in fees.

Cross-examination brought out that the elder Silverthorne had testified before a Senate committee in Washington that total loan fees of the bank amounted to $205,000.

The government contends that parts of loan fees given money brokers for obtaining deposits were diverted to the elder Silverthorne's personal accounts.

The defense sought a continuance because one witness, Virginia Richards, a former bank vice president, had recently undergone surgery. Another, William S. Bennett, could not be located, the defense said. The request was denied.

Bennett was a loan broker who did considerable business with the bank.

Later, defense attorney George Martinez tried to get Mrs. Richards' testimony from Silverthorne's first trial, in February 1966, entered as evidence.

U.S. District Court Judge Albert C. Wollenberg turned him down but agreed to hear arguments on admitting testimony given by Bennett in the earlier trial.

Silverthorne was convicted and sentenced to 60 years in prison, but won a reversal on grounds that publicity surrounding his trial made a fair verdict impossible.

Workers Strike Nickel Plants

TORONTO (AP) — More than 17,200 members of the United Steelworkers of America began a work stoppage today at the two main Ontario plants of the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

As bargaining for a new three-year contract and higher wages continued in a Toronto hotel, workers did not show up for the day shift at Sudbury and Port Colborne Inco plants. A total of 15,500 are employed by Inco in Sudbury and 1,700 at Port Colborne.

A company spokesman said picket lines were set up.

The company is the world's largest supplier of nickel. The strike would dry up production and cripple the steel industry on three continents.

Auto Stereo Taken

An auto stereo and 10 tapes, valued at a total of $168 were taken from his locked car at his home at 30 Novato Street, San Rafael, sometime Monday, Donald Allen Smith reported to police yesterday.

More than 150,000 acres of asparagus are planted each year in the United States.

READY FOR TROULBE — Rescuers in fireproof suits practice saving astronauts in case trouble develops on the launching pad. Yesterday's rehearsal saw first aid being administered to an "astronaut" inside a special escape vehicle, while other launch crew members carry a second "astronaut" still strapped in his contour chair. Leak May Delay Beginning Of Apollo 11 Countdown

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A leak developed in pressurization system of the Apollo 11 rocket today and a crew rushed in to find it, raising the possibility of a delay in tonight's scheduled start of the final countdown for the moon landing mission.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the leak was in the helium gas system used to pressurize fuel tanks in the first stage of the 36-story Saturn 5 rocket.

The helium is stored in bottles in the liquid oxygen propellant tank.

The exact location of the leak was not known and access doors were opened to permit a crew of technicians to enter the tank, which holds 334,000 gallons of liquid oxygen.

"We don't know where the leak is or how serious it is," a NASA spokesman said.

If not found and corrected, the start of the final countdown, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. tonight, aiming for a liftoff at 9:32 a.m. next Wednesday.

As the technicians troubleshot the problem, the Apollo 11 astronauts, Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins climbed into the command ship trainer to practice the engine maneuver that will shoot them out of earth orbit and set them on a quarter-million-mile course to the moon.

They are to orbit the moon July 19, and the next day Armstrong and Aldrin are to fly a fragile lunar module (LM) to man's first landing on the lunar surface.

Early on July 21, first Armstrong, then Aldrin are to step outside for an exploration period scheduled to last about two and one-half hours.

The countdown is 93 hours, but it is spread over five and one-half days. This allows for several planned holds to give the crew rest and time to correct any problems that might arise.

Greenbrae Group Discusses Picnic

Plans for a family picnic tentatively set for Sept. 28 in San Anselmo's Memorial Park were discussed last night by the Greenbrae Property Owners Association board, then the board continued discussion to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Richard Dressel.

The board discussed flyers to be mailed to Greenbrae residents concerning problems the board has been working on this year. Board members discussed, but set no date, for proposed meeting with County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni on the proposed Marin County transit system, secretary Beth Reilly reported.

East Petaluma School Sites Eyed In Report

A report on possible sites for new junior and senior high schools on the east side of Petaluma has been issued by the Sonoma County Planning Commission for study by the board of education.

In the report, result of a five month study, it is said that several new schools will be needed in the near future based on projections made by the city planning department that the population will jump from 22,500 to 32,000 by 1975.

Enrollment for the high schools was estimated at 2,240 for the same time period. The report centered only on Petaluma and did not include Rohnert Park or Cotati which are also part of the high school district.

Complicating the selection of an east side location was the Petaluma Skyranch airport on East Washington Street at the city limits. First on the list of proposed locations was the 50-acre parcel owned by Henry Soldati on Ely Road near Casa Grande Road.

Though listed as among the most convenient for traffic flow and expansion, the report said that the land lies directly in the flight approach patterns for the airport. Noise and safety factors diluted the site's desirability.

Other sites suggested included land also owned by Soldati between Ely Road and McDowell Boulevard South. Also planned for the same area is a five-acre city park site and 10 acres owned by the Old Adobe School District for its fourth elementary school.

The county planners also recommended consideration of a 98-acre parcel on Ely Road, a quarter of a mile south of East Washington Street, owned by R. E. Atkinson. Another consideration was given to land just south of the Atkinson property that includes 104 acres owned by E. L. Thompson.

Also mentioned favorably was the 40 acres owned by William Millmeister on McDowell Lane, north of East Washington Street. The report said that the site could be expanded to include the 96 acres owned by Richard Gray directly to the west.

The board of education had requested that the study recommend both large and small plots so they may consider placing several schools on the same campus or separating them in the usual neighborhood pattern.

Further Education

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI)—A cooperative effort between the state department of mental health and the state department of education will soon enable Kentucky mental patients to receive high school equivalency certificates.

Grand Jury Cites Law On Secrecy

A question from the Sausalito School District on the possibility of its being under investigation by the Marin County Grand Jury can't be answered, foreman Alfred W. Bowman said today.

"We're bound by law to operate in secrecy," said Bowman — an answer which also took care of the district's request that any such investigation be done in an "open and responsible manner."

Bowman said there are several matters currently being investigated by the grand jury but what they are will not be divulged until official reports are issued.

Supt. Phillip W. Schneider had written to Bowman at the unanimous request of the school board to put at rest rumors that the district is being ivestigated.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Don't Give Up A Growing Stock For Volatility

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a stockholder of Genuine Parts Co., but in spite of steady growth in sales and earnings the price of the common stock has traded in a narrow range. Do you think it would be advisable to switch to a more volatile issue? — J. B.

A. Genuine Parts' shares have moved, in about two years, from a low of 14 to a high of 41⅝ for a gain of close to 200 per cent. Although the shares have since trended lower, this is primarily in response to a declining market. Unless you are interested in trading in-and-out of the market, I see no justification for a switch to another stock, on the basis of volatility.

Earnings have increased an average of 12 per cent year-to-year since 1960 while sales gains outpaced this rate. Not only has the dividend been raised annually during that same period but it has been increased in two of the last three quarters. As a distributor of automotive replacement parts, your company services about 2,700 independent jobbers in 43 states. Two recent acquisitions will add over $35 million annually to sales.

Your own shares in a strong growth issue; with patience your investment should work out well.

Q. Would you please give me your opinion of AMREP Corp? — G. B.

A. The company has estimated earnings will be between $1.95 and $2.05 a share for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1969. A 55,000-acre site in New Mexico, now 60 per cent paid for, has been developed into a balanced community by the company. Two residential developments in Florida are in various stages of completion. AMREP's oil and gas operations include a 15 per cent interest in a potentially important discovery which is awaiting additional drilling for a more accurate appraisal of its value.

Hayakawa Appointment Fitting, Well-Deserved

The California State College Board of Trustees gave Dr. S. I. Hayakawa a vote of confidence by installing him as president of San Francisco State College.

It was a fitting and deserving appointment for the courageous semanticist from Mill Valley who refused to bow to a show of force by dissidents and managed to keep the riot-torn campus from a complete shutdown last winter and spring.

His critics contend that his promotion will only lead to more strife. Dissident students are reported to be organizing even now for a renewed attack against the Hayakawa administration this fall.

In seeking the permanent appointment, Dr. Hayakawa appears determined to see through the unenviable job he took over last fall when he was picked as acting president.

OF THE MANY ordeals that he has had to endure, several stand out in sharp relief — the man in a tam-o-shanter leaping on a sound truck and pulling wires from a loudspeaker and then lunging to retrieve his hat which was knocked off in the scuffle; the man on the speaker's platform refusing to yield in the face of angry militants crowding around and onto the stage.

From the outset, Dr. Hayakawa announced publicly that he would listen to requests such as for improved black studies and ethnic studies programs. Had it not been for the strikers, he said that a black studies program would have started in the spring semester and an ethnic studies curriculum in the fall. We are convinced he will continue to press for these programs.

ON ONE POINT, he has remained steadfast—There can be no negotiations and no deals under duress.

It is probably no coincidence that this firmness was one of the points stressed in a report from eight college presidents who surveyed campus disorders nationwide and released their findings last month.

The report concluded that there should be no negotiations of demands under duress; that is, when personnel are detained or buildings occupied. It must be made clear that there can be no amnesty for civil or criminal lawbreakers, the college presidents declared.

The decision by the state college trustees to continue the firm leadership exemplified by Dr. Hayakawa is a logical one.

Dr. Hayakawa needs this vote of confidence and the continued backing of the community and moderates on the campus as he faces another trying year.

Acorn For Supper?

If we had to revert back to the primitive ways of the Indians, many of us will probably die from hunger, exposure or both.

They had to live off the "fat of the land," which would provide slim pickings under today's standards.

Edward K. Balls, in his "Early Uses of California Plants," notes that the oak was one of the principal providers for inhabitants of the Sierra foothills and in the central valleys.

On the deserts, the main food sources were the mesquite and mescal (century plant). These foods were supplemented by dry seeds from grasses and annuals, the few native wild fruits, various other nutlike seeds, and by the leafy parts of numerous plants.

Along the coast, such as in Marin, large amounts of shellfish were consumed, together with fish, game and birds.

Can Private Operator Rescue Cal-Expo From Financial Woe?

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — One of the many attempts of the state Legislature to resolve the difficulties of Cal Expo, the virtually defunct all-year, state-wide exposition planned some years ago, is AB 2006, by Assemblyman Peter F. Schabarum, R-Covina, before the Assembly ways and means committee.

The $34 million extravaganza is completely bogged down with financial difficulties, and doubts exist as to whether it can ever be revived either by private or public capital, although the state does plan to hold a "state fair" this year on the new fair site.

Many explanations are given for this failure to perform on schedule, but when they are all boiled down, the one really valid explanation is the lack of money to complete the exposition, and get it going as originally envisioned. And the lack of money results from two sources — first the lack of revenue, and second, the reluctance of the Legislature to provide additional funds for the exposition. Many members feel as though further appropriations would be tossing good money after bad.

THE SCHABARUM measure is an attempt to revise the law to permit private enterprise to take over the exposition and fair, but as it is written, would appear to drive private enterprise away from the venture rather than encouraging a responsible corporation from taking it over and making it the "showplace" of the state, which it was intended to be in the first place.

The bill in the first place creates an "executive committee" designating the director of finance, the state controller, and the secretary for agriculture and services as the three members, none of whom are elected or appointed on the basis of their particular knowledge of dictating the operation of an exposition.

The bill further lodges virtually all of the authority of operating the exposition in the hands of the secretary of agriculture and services, who is an appointee of the governor.

UNDER THIS executive committee, which is charged with providing for and supervising the operations, would be a private corporation, somewhat similar to the one that was junked previously, to handle operations, but under such restrictive measures, it would be tremendously handicapped in providing a suitable exposition and fair.

The bill also demands another two-year "study" of the feasibility of carrying on the project, and the bill states expressly that "the Legislature does not intend to invest additional funds in the exposition until a complete and thorough study is made of the economic feasibility of the exposition, and that the government entities benefitted most be willing to make a financial commitment to its future."

THIS PRESAGES participation by the city and county of Sacramento, which has been viewed coldly by the local governments concerned.

In effect, the proposal does little, if anything, in promoting the future of the California Exposition and Fair, except to make it more difficult to find private enterprise which will take the white elephant off the hands of the state.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Facts Support God's Existence

In the Word of God we read, "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." Psalm 53:1.

Those of us who are referred to as the "mindless majority" by Mr. Brewer in a recent "Readers Say" find it very amusing to hear such men declare Someone doesn't exist, simply because they have never known Him or His Presence or seen His miracles. It is rather like the child-like mind who says, "I can't see the wind or the air — therefore they so not exist." Even more amusing are the attempts of those who sit in judgment upon the existence of God to couch their opinions in an attempt to sound ultra-intellectual.

Although facts supporting the existence of God from a scholarly, scientific and human viewpoint far outweigh the futile attempts of the creatures He created to prove His non-existence, let me say it simply in a way which even the foolish ought to be able to understand: If you are right, Mr. Brewer, we who believe in God have lost nothing but have gained what Christ promised and what the world seeks after; freedom from guilt, peace of heart and mind, a meaningful purpose for living plus myriad other benefits, while you have gained cynicism, negativism and a license for sin.

However, if we are right, we have gained as well, eternal life in paradise, and you — you have lost everything.

Alternatives To Concrete Channel

Your article of July 3, "Ross Citizens Seek Delay In Creek Nod" referred to the general meeting of the Town of Ross Property Owners, held on July 2, in connection with the Corte Madera Creek Project. In view of the emphasis on one particular afternative, and omissions of certain other points, there may be some who will be offended . . .

Under the extreme pressure to accept construction through the town, or have an unseemly diversionary drainage ditch and dike constructed at the southern boundary of Ross, we supported the Council when they resolved to join the Marin County Flood Control Zone in February, 1967. In so doing, Ross accepted the Corps of Engineers' sterile concrete liner plan, in principle, subject to review and written approval of the detailed construction plans.

In order to assist in the preparation of detailed plans of Ross portion by the Corps of Engineers, our town engineer, Mr. Phillip Lygren, has conducted meticulous studies which define the requirements for preserving existing trees wherever possible. These final plans cannot be fully resolved until channel walls are staked or otherwise defined . . .

The property owners affected must be involved . . .

Mr. Lygren and ourselves, with the Ross Citizens Committee and advisory engineers, are sure that this work cannot be done in time to permit bids for the construction of the entire portion of Phase 3 to be let in time for construction to start in the spring of 1970 . . .

The basic point that relieves many people is that there is time to constructively develop alternatives to the sterile concrete ditch through Ross. Phase 3 cannot be prepared for and completed in less than two years from the spring of 1970. We believe that there are alternatives which can be constructed within the framework of this two year project schedule, and which will be far more pleasing than the sterile ditch, and which will be acceptable in total project cost.

The citizens at our meeting unanimously resolved to have attorney Mr. William Bricca request the board of supervisors to divide Phase 3 into two parts, so as to provide time for alternatives to the sterile ditch in the Ross portion to be developed, and cost estimated . . .

Tiburon Fire Chief Grateful For Help

On July 4, a 23-acre grass fire burned from Del Mar Estates to Paradise Drive in Tiburon and threatened several homes.

The fire spread rapidly beyond the initial attack units of the Tiburon Fire Department, and mutual aid apparatus and personnel was requested from five Marin County fire departments.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Marin County, Sausalito, Belvedere, Alto-Richardson Bay and Kentfield fire departments for their valuable assistance. Many of these men, including Tiburon's paid and volunteers, worked long hours during and after the fire, some not receiving compensation for their efforts.

My thanks to the Tiburon Police Department and California Highway Patrol for traffic and crowd control, and last but not least the local citizens including the rarely praised teen-agers who worked diligently assisting with hose lines, hand tools and back packs.

It is gratifying to know that when a serious fire threatens, so many persons can work together effectively.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

One night two safe-crackers invaded a Maryland bank.

One sat down, removed his socks and shoes, and began turning the dial of the vault door with his toes. "Boy!" he exulted, "will this drive those fingerprint experts nuts!"

A bug on statistics and mathematical problems was bent over a mess of figures one afternoon with a particularly blissful expression on his face. "What's so wonderful?" asked a fellow-worker. 'Unless these figures deceive me," chirped the exuberant one, "I'm home free. My wife's on some crazy new diet and claims she's losing four pounds a week. She was 160 pounds when she started, and if my calculations are correct, I'll be rid of her entirely in 39 weeks!"

QUICKIES:

Charles, a leading tonsorial artist at the Waldorf barber shop, has found a new way of entertaining customers while he's shaving them. He sings softly into their sometimes-nicked ears, "Nobody Knows the Stubble I've Seen."

Russell Miles was spotted by his wife attempting to stop a water leak by pressing very hard on the spigot. Cautioned his wife, "For goodness sakes, Russell, if the spigot won't work, don't faucet!"

Melvin Laird Faces Stiff Test In Ballistic Missiles Debate

WASHINGTON — As background for the antiballistic missile debate in the Senate is the record of one of the most curious confrontations in the history of a body that has seen so much of human squalor and human nobility. That record is now in the Pentagon being sanitized, which means often that only the blanks are left in a puzzle to be solved by a few specialists with inside knowledge.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird became acutely sensitive, as he carried the administration load in the ABM controversy, at the suggestion that his estimate of the Soviet missile threat differed from that of Richard Helms, director of the Central Intelligence Agency. Laird told Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he would like to appear with Helms to show there was no real difference between them.

Fulbright after consulting committee members proposed that the confrontation be in open rather than closed session. This was, of course, impossible, since the CIA director never testifies in public. It was extraordinary enough that he should appear with a high-ranking cabinet officer who had challenged the committee to prove any disagreement between them. For those who have labored to make the CIA a strictly professional, nonpolitical organization this seemed above and beyond the call of duty.

SOME MONTHS earlier Helms had given the committee a professional estimate — the agreed estimate of the intelligence community — of what the Soviets were doing to build a defensive wall with antiballistic missiles. Helm's careful appraisal, in the top-secret category, was very much in the minds of committee members as the two men faced them. The extent of the Soviets' ABM defense relates directly to Laird's main argument — that the Russians are building a first-strike capability which would wipe out America's Minutemen and make a retaliatory strike impossible.

Helms had testified that the Soviet military planned a city-wide defense of Moscow with their ABMs, known in the Pentagon code as Galosh. They had planned to install more than 100 launchers.

But then, and this was the dramatic thrust of Helms' testimony, after 60 to 65 launchers were put in place, a halt was called. The best evidence was that doubts had increased about Galosh's effectiveness. The development was stopped so that with further research a breakthrough might result in a truly defensive weapon. This is the case made by many opponents of the Nixon Administration's Safeguard ABM, who argue against spending $7 to $11 billion to deploy two missiles when so much doubt still exists as to their capability.

As to the Talinn Line around Leningrad, Helms' testimony was similar, although with rather less supporting evidence. Talinn had also been planned as a city-wide defense, using the same, in effect, experimental launchers.

WITH THE confrontation continuing hour after hour tensions built upon in the committee room. Helms squirmed, as one senator put it later, but he did not back down. His original estimate of Soviet ABM capability stood for the record. For a civil servant who has tried with some success to keep out of public controversy it was an extremely difficult position.

After six months in a post as demanding as any in government Laird is the supersalesman. Even those most strongly opposed to his views on ABM and the testing of the multiple-warhead missile, MIRV, take a charitable view of his role. That is what he has been told to do in a position he certainly did not seek. If he pushes too hard at times — his mother is reported to have said, "Mel, you sound as though you're trying to scare people" — it is the zeal of the earnest, small-town advocate weighted down with a responsibility almost too much for any solitary human being.

Middle East On Brink Of Full-Scale Fighting

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

At the United Nations, the Big Four recessed their Mideast peace talks indefinitely. And in the Middle East, the fighting edged up another notch toward full-scale resumption of the 1967 war.

Actually, the situation is not quite so bad as such a bare summary would suggest.

U.S.-Soviet talks on the Mideast will continue and a certain amount of agreement has been reached between the two powers in a position to influence Mideast affairs.

The Soviets, who no longer insist on an Israeli withdrawal from its forward positions as a first condition of peace, have indicated they would participate in any international police force that might be assigned to the area. And they seemingly are slowing down the flow of arms to the Arab nations.

A final communique issued after Soviet-Syrian talks in Moscow put more emphasis on agricultural and cultural programs than it did on military hardware.

THERE ARE frustrations on all sides.

In attempting to persuade the Arabs to accept the reality of Israel's existence, the Russians are running into the same frustrations as did the United States in the 1950s.

To forestall any Big Four or Big Two attempt at an imposed settlement and in the face of United Nations condemnation, the Israelis abandoned any pretext of a negotiable position in Jerusalem and declared they were taking over the whole city permanently.

They also declared they would keep the Golan Heights of Syria, the Gaza strip, notwithstanding its hostile Arab population, and Sharm el Sheik at the mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba.

ON THE OTHER hand, while the Israelis remained confident of their ability to deal with the Arabs militarily, the last thing they wanted was more Arab territory and the burdens of policing it.

And despite increasing Arab confidence in their ability to handle their new Russian weapons, the Arabs also had their problems.

One of these was the Palestinian commandos operating independently of governments and rejecting any but a military settlement of the war with Israel.

Despite a reported withdrawal of Palestinian forces from Lebanon, a government crisis brought on by their presence there persisted.

JORDAN, WITH an estimated 15,000 of the commandos on its soil, had felt the repeated stings of Israeli retaliation and also was trying to bring the commandos under control before they toppled King Hussein's government.

But the problem facing the rest of the world, and particularly the United States and Russia, was that the fighting was spreading from air and artillery duels to quick thrusts on the ground by regular army forces on both sides. Continuation could tempt either side to a quick settlement.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By BRUCE COLEMAN

No Trouble With Any Mashers Says Pretty Young Hitchhiker

They say part of where it's at is in the streets. It's true.

We picked up Alice Lucas, attractive, 22-year-old blonde hitchhiker, the other day on College Avenue in Kentfield and transported her to Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur.

She was vivacious in her striped, bibbed overalls, tennis shoes and yellow T-shirt and — apparently — as clean as a whistle.

Why does she hitchhike? To save money and because buses are so far apart.

But things have changed, said Alice. "When I started four years ago, it was easy to get rides. Not from old ladies — but young boys. They would stop just like that," she said, snapping her fingers.

ALICE HAS never had any trouble with mashers, she related, because she first asks where the driver is going and, she added, "I really look at them carefully.

"I act really naive if they start to give me any trouble and I tell them I'm only 14. If they hand me any lines, I ignore them."

Talking about her adventures, she said, "I got a ride with an old man once who was in love with a donkey. And I got a ride with an old man who told me he was once a eunuch. One of my boy friends I met hitchhiking. He was my boy friend seven months.

"I get lectures from ladies: 'Oh, dear, don't you know what can happen to you. You must be 12 years old and here you are hitchhiking. I just hate to see this.'

"ONE WOMAN told me, 'My daughter hitchhikes and the only reason I picked you up is because I figure someone else will give my daughter a ride.'

"The first time I ever hitchhiked I was stranded in Petaluma. I had seven miles to go.

"I couldn't walk seven miles. The people who gave me a ride were so nice. Then I started doing it and it was fun.

"Once I was trying to get a ride and I couldn't because a highway patrolman was parked nearby. I asked him, 'Why are you in my way? No one will stop when you're here.' He got so embarrassed that he gave me a ride all the way to my door."

Miss Lucas is working in Ross but living in Larkspur and says: "I'm earning money to buy a car."

We let her out in front of St. Patrick's Church, wearing the overalls she said she had traded for a sweater which wasn't even hers. She danced off up the hillside, her hair flying.

CORTE MADERA patrolman Gerald Fries tells the story about a Fourth of July happening that left a man up in the air on a "Tilt-a-thing" for 45 minutes.

The man went up in the machine at the carnival, was held in his seat for 45 minutes during a breakdown and, when he came down, said: "I want my quarter back." The carnival man looked at the man who had been tilted much more than most customers, refused him the rebate and said: "You had your ride."

The reason Corte Madera whipped Larkspur in the annual volunteer firemen's ball game, said Fire Lt. Lee Larson, is because of Harold Kelly's "superlative" coaching and no errors. "Larkspur shoulda stayed home and fought fires," said Larson.

WE ASKED Henry Muller, Kentfield Hardware proprietor, why the Kentfield Corners were so haunted looking. Muller, who said the old building all covered with vines used to be his store and before that an inn, said the owner likes it that way.

Bargemen used to come up Corte Madera Creek — pre-flood control — and turn about in a turning basin on what is now college property. "They came on one tide, remained overnight and went out with the next tide," Muller added. Now the two corner buildings, plus a tiny gold mining-type hut on the off lane, snooze in the sun, the stories of the bargemen gone with the tide.

ART BUCHWALD

Conduct Diplomacy In The Nude; It May Prove Quite Revealing

WASHINGTON — There is so much nudity in the arts these days that it's losing its shock value. I predict that if the trend continues, we're all going to take nudity for granted, and no one is going to get too excited about it any more.

Rather than fight it, I believe we should figure out ways of adapting nudity to other spheres of our society, such as politics and diplomacy.

For a start, I think it would be a good idea for the Soviet-American disarmament talks to be held in the nude, with all participants sitting around the table unclothed.

Now, before you start writing letters to your editor, let me explain the advantages of holding the disarmament conferences in the nude.

FIRST, IT WOULD show that both parties have nothing to hide and are willing to negotiate in good faith. When you're talking to someone with no clothes on and you have none on yourself, it's almost impossible to lie.

Another reason why nudity could work at a disarmament conference is that without any clothes, the conferees would soon forget that they were Russians and Americans and would start thinking of themselves as members of the same human race.

One of the more obvious arguments in favor of a nude disarmament conference is that neither side could accuse the other of having something up its sleeves.

Nor would there be any danger of the parties carrying bugging devices on them (providing no one with a hearing aid would be permitted to be a delegate).

At the beginning, when the delegates arrive and leave the conference hall, they could cover themselves with their brief cases, but I'm sure that after a few days they'll be less self-conscious and this won't be necessary.

IF THE IDEA works and we have a good disarmament conference, it is my feeling that the principle could be adapted in other areas.

For example, if all military officers were made to discard their uniforms and ribbons and appear in the nude, I doubt if anybody — Russians, Americans, Chinese or anyone else — would have much interest in military matters.

Whether we like it or not, the uniform is one of the big attractions in waging wars, and without clothes, it would be very difficult for someone to give orders without the subordinate breaking up in laughter.

After the military, the next step would be to force all our politicians to take off their clothes before going about the government's business. In this way the public would see their politicians for what they really are, and congressional debates between Everett Dirksen and William Fulbright would be more revealing.

HAD GOV. Nelson A Rockefeller gone nude to South America, I am certain he would have been cheered everywhere he went.

The big question is, should the President of the United States also disrobe in public, or would this be demeaning the office?

I don't think he should at the beginning. But as time goes on and the people get more adjusted to it, I don't see any reason why he can't meet with other world leaders in the nude. There may be some smart-alec kid who yells, "The President has no clothes on," but the Gallup Poll will probably disclose that 65 per cent of the people think he's doing the right thing.

$1.5 Million Suit In Garrison Probe

LOS ANGELES (API) — Edgar Eugene Bradley, once charged by New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison with conspiracy in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, has filed a $1.5 libel suit.

Bradley, 50, a West Coast representative for radio evangelist Dr. Carl McIntire, successfully fought extradition to Luisiana to testify at Garrison's proceedings.

Bradley charged that the numerous defendants in his suit had either placed him in Dallas at the time of the assassination or made statements indicating he was involved in the murder.

As a result, Bradley charged, Garrison issued a warrant for his arrest and the long legal battle that ensued cost him a considerable amount of money.

The suit filed yesterday in superior court named as defendants Mark Lane, author of "Whitewash," a book critical of the Warren Commission report on the assassination; Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. and its radio and television stations in San Francisco; the Los Angeles Free Press and its editor and publisher; the New York Free Press and its copublishers and a reporter, Jay Singer.

The suit also was filed against "The Assassination Inquiry Committee," four of its members and 50 "John Does."

Garrison sought Bradley's extradition in December 1967. After a fight of more than a year, Gov. Ronald Reagan ruled there was insufficient evidence to extradite him.

Bradley sought $1 million general damages and $500,000 punitive damages.

Youth Activity Gets Sympathy, No Money

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission offered moral — but unhappily no financial — support yesterday to a Sausalito woman seeking funds for a Southern Marin drop-in house for young people.

The commission said it had no funds for youth activities programs.

"Moral support we'd be glad to give you — that's all we can do," Commission Chairman Lothar Salin told the applicant, Gretchen Hoskins.

Mrs. Hoskins said a group of students, parents and teachers in the Tamalpais High School attendance area planned a Mill Valley drop-in house. The purpose would not be recreational, but to help young persons with drug, personal and parental problems, she said.

Mrs. Hospkins reported the group was looking for a house to occupy. She said the facility would be staffed round-the-clock by married couples and estimated monthly operation costs at $800.

The commission asked Mrs. Hoskins to return at its Aug. 13 meeting after it had time to review her proposal. The commission had sought $10,000 under the 1969-70 county budget for youth activities, but this was cut by County Administrator Alan Bruce on the ground that such programs should not be funded until a county youth commission was formed to review such requests.

"I think that once the youth commission is established we should get out of this ball game," said Salin.

Commissioner Helen Newman said the roles of the youth and park and recreation commissions in approving youth activity funds should be clarified before formation of the youth group in September.

The commission yesterday named a member, Albert J. Boro, to the 11-member youth group, with Salin as alternate.

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission also:

PER DIEM — Voted 4-1, Salin dissenting, to ask the board of supervisors for a $25 per diem for time spent at meetings. Salin said he would not accept the money because it did not represent a true value of service.

PLANNERS — Asked Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, to invite members of the county planning department to a commission meeting to explain plans for recreational facilities in various county master plans.

PARADISE PARK — Was told by Joske that efforts were underway to reduce vandalism and noise at Paradise Park and to make certain that a neighborhood woman was not affected by the park's sprinklers when she took a shower.

Single Test Case Planned On Flood Control Protest

Both the Marin County District Attorney's office and attorneys for 37 conservationists and college students arrested during a protest of flood control work at Tamalpais Creek have agreed to try one test case.

Mary Kent Schardt of Kentfield was the person chosen to go on trial in Marin Municipal Court July 21 on charges of disturbing the peace and refusing to disperse after being ordered to do so.

Mrs. Schardt is the daughter of Roger Kent of Kent Woodlands and the cousin of Marty Kent Jones, who has been the leader of the movement to halt flood control work.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Michael Anthony said yesterday that the case will be tried on the legal question of whether a criminal trespass occurred or not.

Charles W. Pierce, attorney for Mrs. Schardt and many of the others in the case, agreed that this would be the battleground.

Both Pierce and Anthony theorized that if Mrs. Schardt is found guilty, many of the defendants will enter no-contest pleas to the charges.

Kent, an attorney, will assist Pierce in the defense of his daughter.

Fog Tail Light Urgency Sounded

BERKELEY (AP) — High intensity tail lights would make safe driving in fog possible, a research engineer has told a symposium on visibility and driving.

Dr. Dan M. Finch of the University of California Institute of Transportation and Traffic Engineering said yesterday, studies indicate the need for three levels of intensity for tail lights: the lowest for normal night driving, another 10 times brighter for daytime driving and a third several thousand times brighter for fog.

Other experts stated new types of high intensity lights can be adapted to provide 60,000 candlepower.

Auditions Slated

Auditions for a melodrama to be presented in August by the Mill Valley Performing Art Center will be Monday and next Thursday at 8 p.m. at the center. Interested persons may contact Mona Horwitz, producer, in Sausalito.

Utah Governor Decries Warning

SALT LAKE CI (AP) — Gov. Calvin L. Rampton says the handbills are distorted.

The pamphlets turning up on car windshields say, "Caution. Travel in Utah may be extremely hazardous to your health."

"Beware of taking your family vacationing in Salt Lake City, which is downwind from the Army's million-acre Dugway Proving Ground. This is where deadly nerve gas and biological weapons are being tested," the handbills say, and refer to the incident last year in which 6,400 Skull Valley sheep died following an accident in a nerve gas test at Dugway.

Rampton said, "This is obviously someone or group distorting the facts to carry foward an attack on the morality of nerve gas testing even at the expense of the economy of the state."

The United States uses an average 150 gallons of water a day for each man, woman and child. In 1920 the per capita daily consumption was about 115 gallons.

Marin Women

AN HEIRLOOM memento prized by Florette White Pomeroy is this bell pull telling the story of her mother's life in petit point. She shows the point marking her birth where she is shown as a baby in her mother's arms. The work has the maximum number of stitches per inch ever done. Designed by her mother and made in Austria, it was publicized as an example of the restoration of the petit point industry in Vienna.

Some Facts About Women And Alcohol

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

"The women of this nation can, if they will, do more to change public attitudes about alcoholism than any other single force — provided they are able to understand this illness."

In an interview at her home in Sausalito this was the point strongly emphasized by Florette White Pomeroy, chosen last year as one of the 10 women of the year in the Bay Area.

Mrs. Pomeroy is an authority on the subject, for she is the executive director of the National Council on Alcoholism, San Francisco area, and she frankly admits, "Alcoholism is an illness, and I suffered from it.

"It is a combination of physical, emotional and psychological factors. It is a physical allergy to some component in alcohol, and a lot of research is going on to discover what the chemical X factor is that makes some people alcoholics and others not. Some doctors think it has to do with the manner in which the liver metabolizes alcohol."

MRS. POMEROY HAD just returned from attending a week-long school of alcohol studies at Utah University, where every facet of alcoholism was studied and in which her particular part was lecturing and leading group discussions concerning philosophy and action of voluntary citizens groups concerned with the problem.

A slim and striking white-haired woman, Mrs. Pomeroy went on to explain why she believes women should be so vitally concerned with the problem.

"Women and their families suffer from this problem even if they are not alcoholics themselves," she says, "and a study shows that 15 years ago the sex ratio among alcoholics was 20 per cent women and 80 per cent men, whereas now it is 40 per cent women and 60 per cent men.

"MANY WOMEN ARE hidden alcoholics in the home," she says. "The woman who is bored at home is increasingly becoming a victim of this illness, but she is often able to mask it until she is in its grip.

"The important thing is to recognize the early signs while she still has the mental capacity to recognize what is happening. Any changes in drinking habits are danger signs. Getting drunk more than once ought to be of concern, not morally, but as a first sign she may have a problem.

"IN MANY WAYS women suffer more acutely than men because they are supposed to be held in esteem, and when they become victims, their behavior affects their families and their sense of resentment against themselves is enormous.

"I think women can do a great deal to help because women banded together have brought about many changes in other fields, but they must be concerned and better informed, especially about early detection and prevention. There isn't a cure for alcoholism. You arrest the disease by not drinking."

The National Council on Alcoholism is the voluntary health agency dealing with the nation's fourth major health problem. Mrs. Pomeroy stressed that the council, which is involved in educating the public on alcoholism as well as in helping alcoholics, is not against the use of alcohol.

"For 85 per cent of users there is no difficulty," she says. "The council is neither for nor against alcohol. It is concerned only with abuses.

"ALCOHOLISM MUST be recognized as a very complex illness," she continued. "Hampering progress are beliefs that it is a moral issue or a matter of will power. Both of these myths have been exploded in the work that has been done during the past 25 years. The climate in which the alcoholic suffers must be changed. So long as a majority of people hold to the view that the alcoholic is hopeless, he is going to see himself in this light."

Mrs. Pomeroy also operates the San Francisco municipal court school for prevention of alcoholism.

She explained, "A judge has the option when people are brought before him on drunk charges of giving them probation subject to attendance at four sessions of this school designed to bring them information about the disease. About 10 per cent of them are identified as having problems that could lead to alcoholism."

Mrs. Pomeroy's personal story shows that her prominence in her present position is not the only reason for her selection as a woman of the year.

Born in Seattle in 1910, she was graduated from the Loyola University College of Law in Los Angeles just before the great depression. Instead of practicing law she became involved in the emergency relief programs in the 1930s. She was director of the state relief administration for Sacramento County from 1937 to 1939. Then, after two years with the California Physicians Service in San Francisco, she went to Washington, D.C., where she was on the national staff of the Works Progress Administration (WPA).

During World War II she was with the National Housing Administration (NHA) in Washington. In 1945 she went to Europe, and her work in the displaced persons program of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration (UNRA) took her to many cities before she settled four and a half years in Vienna.

FOR A YEAR and a half there she was director of the UNRA tracing bureau, involved with the many details of locating missing persons and re-uniting families. When this work was turned over to the Austrian Red Cross, she became deputy chief of the International Refugee Organization, the successor agency to UNRA.

In 1951 she returned to her mother's home in Hollywood, and after investigating various job possibilities became a regional welfare officer in the regional office of the Federal Civil Defense Administration in San Francisco.

It was at this time when her work involved too much travel for two years that her drinking problem became serious. Fortunately, she says, she got help and was actually not working only two months.

After that she got a job with the San Francisco Federated Fund or United Crusade from 1952 to 1958, and from 1958 to 1966 was director of the San Francisco United Community Fund, a distinguished national first for a woman.

WHEN IN 1966 the five united funds, including Marin, merged into the United Bay Area Crusade, she became director of agency relations and held this position until January, 1968, when she began her present work as executive director of the National Council on Alcoholism. She had worked with it as a volunteer for ten years before that.

A brief marriage in 1955 accounts for her name as Mrs. Pomeroy.

Somehow this busy woman finds time for other interests.

"Golf is No. 1 on my hit parade," she says. "I have played since 1950 but have a 36 handicap and still take lessons. I am a member of the Oakmont Golf and Country Club and play every weekend.

"I grew up learning to cook and started collecting recipes years ago. When I lived in Europe, I developed an interest in foods of other countries. I collect china and have a melange, including some Meissen.

"I enjoy bridge and love going to the theater and listening to my record collection that includes all kinds of music."

Mrs. Pomeroy bought her house in 1956 and has lived there since 1957. She enjoys

Families Play Host To Tennis Youth

By MOLLY MARIN

Young tennis players have virtually taken over the Belvedere-Tiburon area this week. The youthful competitors, 9 to 18 years of age, are participating in the Belvedere Tennis Club's annual Junior Tennis Tournament which will continue through Friday.

Final event will be "Mixed Doubles 27" — when partners ages are added and must total 27 — a popular fun-finale after a week of intensive play.

Homes throughout the Tiburon Peninsula have been opened to the youngsters. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bolcom, who are tournament co-chairmen, have as their guests Tim Russell and Dick Maguire of Albuquerque, N. M., and Marcy and Kelly O'Keefe and Chip Hooper of Los Altos. The John Hoefers welcomed Rodney Kwan and Mike Choy of Honolulu. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Barber have Clarence Kelly of Hawaii staying in their home. CARDIN LOOK FOR MEN

Among the new major looks for men by designer Pierre Cardin that will reach the American market this fall are a two button business suit in a new tubular shape, left, with wide lapels, and, right, a leather-belted thigh-high tunic, worn here with a turtleneck shirt.

Women Amused As Men Fret About Fat

By JANE ROGERS
London Express Service

LONDON — Go anywhere the men are and you'll find that the conversation will inevitably turn to dieting. Quite suddenly the men in our lives have started to worry about exactly how they figure on the fashion charts.

At one time the classic suit covered a multitude of shapes and sizes and was, more often than not, specially tailor-made to disguise its wearer's defects.

A suit jacket left unbuttoned acts almost like a maternity top, especially if it is aided by a long flapping tie. It disguises the fact that the male underneath has a large bulging midriff, and it's only when he takes the jacket off that you can see the true size of the situation.

Suddenly men's clothes have shape. Many of them have close-fitting slinky waistlines, and would-be wearers are now beginning to panic when they find that they don't measure up to the new look. Some of them are even finding the newer slim-fitting shirts difficult to button. And the women in their lives, naturally, are having a quiet chuckle to see a man faced with the kind of problem they've been living with for years.

WHAT CAN BE done for a bulging male midriff? Well excessive beer-drinking has often been blamed for this, so that Sunday pint will have to go. He'll have to cut down on his consumption of bread and pastries, of course, and go on a high protein diet instead. But that's not the whole answer to the problem. His muscles need tautening up and that means a session of exercises too.

A good one for a large tummy whatever your sex, is quite simple. You lie on the floor and tuck your feet under some large inanimate object like a bed or a settee (something that won't move easily) then, with your feet imprisoned that way, you attempt to sit up without using your elbows for help. It's hell while it lasts, but it definitely tautens those tummy muscles.

Having got his shape right, the now-trendy newly-slim man can take his pick from a range of play clothes that are just as pretty as those worn by his better half. There's a wet look suit in cire nylon, for instance, in bright canary yellow. It consists of brief boxer shorts and a skinny, waist-fitting top with big patch pockets designed on tone-up boy lines.

Or he can zip himself into a short-legged jump suit in a thick-ribbed fabric that looks like a type of towelling corduroy, is in fact a mixture of cotton and nylon. You have to be really slender to get away with this one, and if he's really worried he can always hide way under the shortie towelling topcoat that tones in with it.

FOR THE MAN with the right shape — broad shoulders, slim waist and respectable legs, there are a whole series of skinny fitting beach sets with ultra-short pants and a bare midriff — they are good for girls too.

What about the man who hasn't been able to make the grade?

Specially for the man with an ample middle comes a white cotton canvas coat from Sweden reaching well down to thigh level. Looks good on the beach or boat.

This is liberation.

Most people call it the bra dress. We call it liberation. Because that's exactly what it does. Liberates you from wearing things over things over things. From wearing anything but it and a pair of bikini pants. The bra dress ends forever unnecessary constraint and false modesty and all that stuff that used to be. The bra dress is the perfect statement of now—young, unencumbered, free. Which is why we have it all kinds of ways in all kinds of colors and prints and fabrics. If you'd like to climb out of your underwear and into the bra dress, see us. We're very freethinking.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl's Dresses Look Better On Friend Than On Owner

DEAR HELEN:

I don't want to seem mean or selfish. Honest, I don't mind my girl friend borrowing my clothes, if only she didn't look twice as good in them as I do!

She has style. On her, my dresses get compliments ; on me, they just hang there and look stupid. She fills them in the right places .

Same thing, when I borrow something of hers. I put it on, and it dies.

I'm beginning to hate all my nice clothes because after my friend wears them, I know I'll never feel the same in them again.

Should I stop lending and taking trades — and how to do it without hurting her feelings? — DUD

DEAR DUD:

Why not instead ask for tips on how to make clothes do the most for you? If you two are the same size, then what you probably need is flair, poise, better posture; perhaps, a change in the way you walk.

Learn her tricks, and you'll both wear well. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Not long ago a "Sad Little Sister" really tore into her big sister. Well, I'm a kid brother, and I don't feel that way. This is what a Big Sister is to me:

She is someone who is first to keep you out of a fight, but if you fight and win, she is first to congratulate you.

She is the one who likes to blackmail you, but never tells a soul what you did.

She always says, "You're not going to the game with me when I drive," but she lets you go anyway.

Even when you're sick, she tries hard to cheer you up, though you are real grouchy and don't deserve it.

Before your voice changes, she tells you to answer the phone and impersonate her to find out if it's the kid she can't stand.

If you get in trouble she is the first to comfort you and try to fix things up.

She is the best person in the world, even when she yells at you.

— A YOUNGER BROTHER

DEAR HELEN:

Sisters don't get much praise from younger sisters. Here's mine:

What is my big sister to me?

She is the one who pays you lots of money to clean her room and sew for her. She brings you home a new blouse when you call her at the office and cry because you lost your boy friend.

She comes to your pajama party to eat all your food and goof around with kids five years younger — and she makes them feel very important.

She tells you that you are pretty when you feel ugly, and then lets you wear anything she owns, even if it's brand new and she hasn't worn it yet.

She is a person who shares your secrets and lets you mess around with her eye makeup. She sets your hair and does your fingernails when you have a special date: So you don't get upset when she expects you to vanish two minutes after her boy friend rings the doorbell.

She even helps you with your algebra!

What is my big sister? Everything anyone could ask for! — LITTLE SISTY

TO ADD SOME variety of interests she has accepted appointments as a member of the board of trustees of the California College of Podiatric Medicine and as a member of the State Board of Consumer Councils of California.

Nixon's Voter Rights Bill Is Bypassed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House judiciary subcommittee today bypassed President Richard M. Nixon's proposed voting rights legislation and approved a five-year extension of the existing law.

The administration proposal to shift the focus of the act from the South to the nation at large was never even offered during the brief subcommittee session.

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said approval of the 1965 act extension was by "overwhelming" voice vote. The full Judiciary Committee is also expected to approve the bill when it considers it next week.

Meanwhile, a Negro leader told the Senate constitutional rights subcommittee that the administration's proposed legislation could tie Congress up in a struggle lasting beyond the expiration of the present law.

"That's why the administration's action can be diversionary, disruptive and destructive," Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington office of the NAACP, told the Senate group.

He said the administration is saying that Congress has the power to prohibit voter literacy tests by the states even where racial discrimination is not a factor. Mitchell said he is delighted that the administration is "thinking along these lines," but he said it departs from what is settled law and thus opens up a whole new battle front.

He added that it could bring on a struggle in Congress that would last beyond the Aug. 6, 1970 expiration date of the present voting rights law.

In the House, the full Judiciary Committee will take up the legislation next Tuesday.

Tune's The Same Again On Sausalito Waterfront

Long-standing complaints — unrealistic parking, bulkhead, pierhead and density requirements — were heard again last night by the Sausalito Planning Commission in the third public hearing on the latest central waterfront proposal.

The commission continued the public hearing to 8 p.m. Wednesday in city hall without taking action of any of last night's discussion.

However, the commission did ask planning director H. Eric Borgwardt to prepare comments on the plan with particular thought to complaints raised by property owners involved.

Borgwardt said he would have the report ready "by the time the commission is ready to make recommendations to the council — in a few weeks."

Property owners unanimously decried planning consultant William E. Spangle's recommendations, presented in May, for densities which would limit the total commercial space in the plan area — downtown the waterfront and Caledonia Street — to approximately 900,000 square feet of useable space.

Since most of the downtown area is already highly developed, the limitation would particularly hit the relatively undeveloped waterfront area.

Architect Rene L. Cardinaux, representing Sam Zakasian. said, once again, that such strict densities would cause a quality development to be economically unfeasible thus forcing cheap construction with no amenities for the city.

Spangle said the densities had been revised to half of some suggested earlier in the year "because when we studied it further we discovered we had made a mistake with the higher densities."

He said limited parking and traffic congestion made the lower densities necessary.

Cardinaux and attorney Hugh G. Lawrence, representing Madden and Lewis and the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, both questioned the accuracy of Spangle's parking allocations.

In particular, Lawrence said that out of 1,500 parking spaces required for Madden properties by Spangle, only 650 would be necessary based on actual plans for the area.

Spangle conceded that in particular instances, motels for example, the parking requirements might be less but noted that the general formula of one space for each 300 feet of useable floor area had been used, "as an average."

"If traffic is so bad," Lawrence said, "perhaps Humboldt Street ought to be developed to provide some relief."

Lawrence asked the commission to "seriously consider" the question of whether Humboldt should be developed, noting that the street would bring those driving through the city "back down to the shoreline" in a manner similar to the south end of Bridgeway.

Property owners, to a man, also complained they had not received copies of Spangle's reports enough in advance of the public hearings to study them properly. Chairman Robert L. Nissen promised it wouldn't happen again.

This commission agreed to discuss the proposed expansion of Vina Del Mar Park, and statements on street rights-of-way and public buildings at next week's meeting.

Garage Fire; Owner Saves Two Autos

Fire ruined the garage of a Marinwood home today after the occupant drove two cars parked inside to safety.

Marinwood Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield estimated damage to the garage and contents at 2595 Heatherstone Drive at $10,000 to $12,000.

Bonfield said resident Howard Simmons was in the kitchen shortly after 1 a.m. when he heard a crackling noise in the garage, looked out and saw fire. He drove his two cars out of the garage.

Bonfield said the cause of the blaze was undetermined.

ULTIMATE WEAPON

Do Police Really Need Shotguns?

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- Police surround a Burbank bar. When a burglary suspect tries to escape through a window, an officer fires. The man falls dead...

A 17-year-old, running down a suburban street after wounding a housewife with a pistol, ignores an order to halt and a patrolman shoots. The youth is killed...

A young mother, after going berserk and slaying two children, runs from a Cudahy home and points a gun at a sheriff's deputy. He shoots her dead...

The incidents, all in this area this year, have one thing in common: In each case the weapon was a shotgun.

ULTIMATE WEAPON

The shotgun loaded with buckshot, with firepower likened to that of a machinegun, has become the ultimate weapon in the arsenal of peace officers. Like the Colt .45 of frontier days, it's the "equalizer."

A decade ago few departments had shotguns as standard equipment in squad cars. Now they're common. And being used. Some jurisdictions even employ sawed-off models, deadlier due to wider spread of pellets.

What is the shotgun's role in law enforcement? Most departments say they should be used only when an officer feels his life, or the life of an innocent person, is threatened. Some agencies have detailed shotgun manuals. Others leave use to the discretion of the officer.

In the Burbank bar shooting the suspect was unarmed. A coroner's jury called the shotgun death justifiable homicide.

Because the weapon is so awesome, there can be strong reaction to its use in some situations.

DEATH, OUTCRY

After a sheriff's deputy killed with buckshot a "People's Park" demonstrator during rioting at Berkeley there were protests and demonstrations from groups across the country. The deputy said the young man was throwing objects into a crowd from atop a building. There were protests too over use of birdshot for crowd control in the same riot. The lighter weight pellets wounded scores and one youth was blinded.

The California Highway Patrol's 33-page Shotgun Training Manual says, after noting that an officer's pistol is primarily for defense: "The shotgun is primarily a weapon of offense... only brought into use in situations where its imminent use is anticipated.

"The shotgun has a distinct psychological effect on persons who believe it may be used against them. The muzzle of the weapon, when viewed in the hands of a police officer, may look as big as the open end of an empty oil drum. This psychological effect can, in many instances, be used to good advantage without need of actual firing."

The manual says the shotgun finds its best use in such situations as roadblocks, prison escapes and searches for known felons.

The standard weapon is 12 gauge, carried in patrol cars with four rounds in the magazine and the chamber empty. Each round contains nine pea-size lead pellets, any of which can kill.

"When used as an anti-personnel weapon, the 12 gauge shotgun with buckshot is a sure hitter and an effective man-stopper as compared with other police firearms," says the California manual.

"At close range no other police arm matches its shocking power...It need not be precisely aimed, but may be only pointed ...The shotgun has a dangerous range of ½ mile. The shot pattern at this range can cover an area up to 200 yards in width. For this reason, extreme caution must be used in populated areas."

The manual warns, too, of firing at a felon in an automobile — "buckshot can smash through an automobile body... and cause injury or death to all occupants."

The manual adds: "Another common misconception is that projectiles come out of the muzzle in a spray without direction. On the contrary, the 12 gauge shotgun is an extremely accurate and dependable weapon at close range with buckshot."

Some peace officers favor the weapons as much for their reputation as their firepower.

'GREAT FEAR'

"The sound of a shotgun being cocked," says Sgt. Don McClelland, training officer at the Los Angeles Police Academy, "can inspire great fear."

Says Police Chief Elmer Briscoe of Reno, Nev., where they use the sawed-off models: "If you show a shotgun to a person he generally comes to a screeching halt. You can miss with a handgun, but you don't miss with shotguns. A shotgun is a lot more effective weapon, if you have to use a weapon."

Carson County, Nev., Sheriff Robert Humphrey comments: "My own preference is the shotgun, simply because psychologically it has a tremendous effect. Everybody knows what a 12 gauge will do. Also, it doesn't take a whole lot of sophisticated training for a man to be able to use it with a fair degree of accuracy."

Oakland Police Chief Charles R. Gain says most squad cars in his city are manned by one officer, and one man with a shotgun is two or three times as effective as one man with a handgun.

In San Diego, shotguns are available, but only supervisors can determine whether an emergency is serious enough so they should be carried. In San Diego County, undersheriff Bill Woods says, "We don't pull a shotgun unless they are thugs who really mean to kill you." He recalls deputies once killed with shotguns two men who burst from a hotel after an armed robbery, guns blazing.

USE SPREADS

In Los Angeles County, there's a shotgun under the front seat in every sheriff's patrol car. In rural Hemet, there's a shotgun in the trunk of each of the town's two squad cars. In posh Beverly Hills, new police chief Joseph Kimble has recommended shotguns for patrol cars, but finances are holding him up.

"The increasing violence everywhere has splashed over into Beverly Hills," he says.

Even fire departments pack shotguns in some cities, particularly those where rioting has occurred. San Bernardino Mayor Al C. Ballard says: "We haven't had a bit of trouble since we equipped the Fire Department with them three years ago, and that speaks for itself."

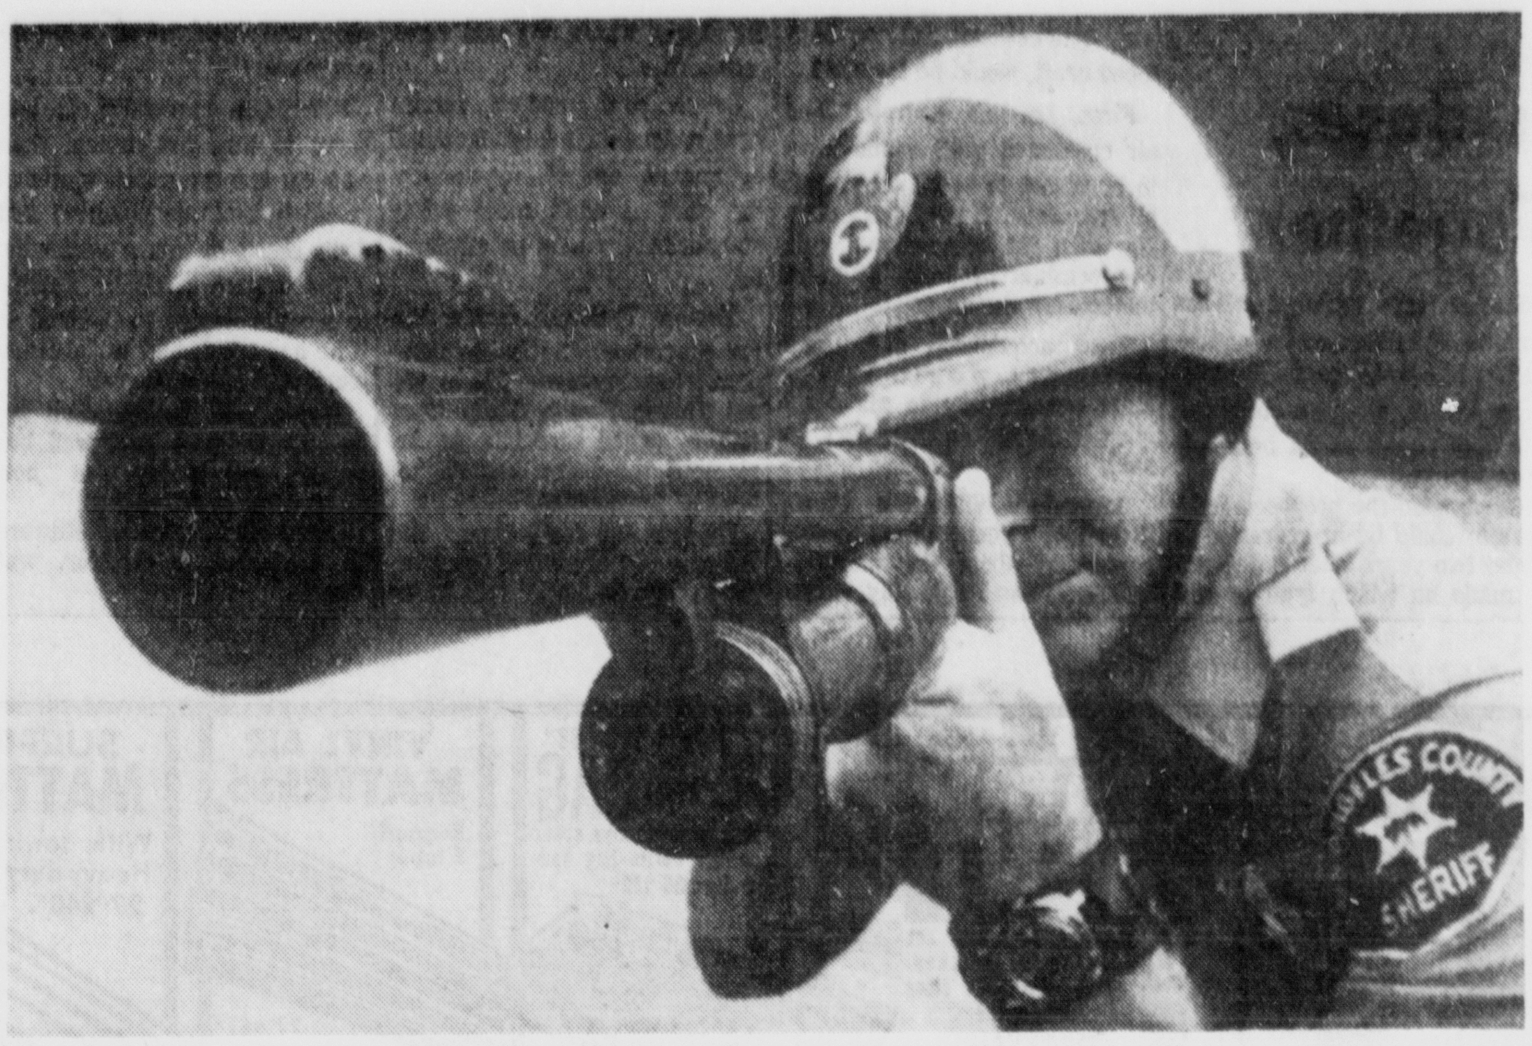
The guns aren't carried on rigs, however, and Ballard says they might be used only in cases where firemen were fired upon or stoned. He has been criticized by professional fire fighter associations, Ballard says, "but they're not running the city, I am."

In the city of Los Angeles, a proposal to equip firemen with shotguns died after being criticized by various officials.

Even security guards use shotguns. At Pepperdine College in Los Angeles a guard shot and killed a teen-ager this year during a night campus confrontation with a group of young basketball players. The case is in the courts. And the school has now outlawed shotguns for its small security staff.

There are times when a shotgun is out of place, says Capt. Paul Bratsch of the Los Angeles sheriff's training academy. "You wouldn't want it in a supermarket or a crowded place where some innocent bystander could get hurt."

And, observes a highway patrolman, "I don't think the public would stand for an officer getting out of his car armed with a shotgun to write out a speeding ticket."



POLICE ARSENAL — Police departments around the country are arming their patrolmen with, among other new weapons, 12-gauge shotguns. Law officers say its mere presence can be a disarming factor when confronting threatening or escaping suspects, and try to discourage its actual use. However, a number of people have already been killed by police shotguns this year. Deputy Sheriff Richard D. Willey of Los Angeles poses with the deadly weapon for wide-angle lens photo. Ghetto Murders: Life Sentence

BOCHUM, Germany (UPI)— A West German court today sentenced a tax official to life in prison for murdering 47 Jews in wartime Poland.

The court found Karl Oppermann, a 61-year-old former Nazi SS sergeant, guilty of shooting 47 Jews in the ghetto at Tarnow during World War II.

Another defendant, Gerhard Gaa, 63, was acquitted of charges of complicity in murder. The court said since Gaa had not acted with malicious intent he could go free under a recently revised law.

Bormans End Tour Of Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Astronaut Frank Borman left the Soviet Union for home today after a goodwill visit he called a "complete success and a personal pleasure."

Borman and his family were seen off at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport by Soviet officials, cosmonauts and their wives. He blew them a kiss just before entering the Soviet commercial airliner taking him to New York via a brief stop in London.

"I am leaving today with a very fine memory of a wonderful 10 days," Borman told an airport news conference. "Everywhere we went we were received with warmth and friendship from Russians in all walks of life."

Diploma Ceremonies Inside San Quentin

With the prison chapel as a backdrop, 336 inmates at San Quentin last night were handed diplomas and certificates marking completion of hours of study behind the high walls.

It was the prison's regular graduation exercises. Dr. Berkeley Johnson, assistant dean of instruction at the College of Marin, was there to deliver the main speech.

Seated in the audience were about 30 wives and relatives of some of the graduates.

Donald Walter, 30, serving a term for burglary and manslaughter in Los Angeles, received an Associate of Arts degree for work under a special program established in cooperation with the College of Marin. Thirty-seven other men completed extension courses given by the college.

Literacy certificates were won by 56 inmates. Elementary school diplomas were conferred on 111 prisoners while 137 received high school diplomas and 31 others certificates of completion of vocational courses.

One of those receiving a high school diploma was Walter C. Hines, 30, imprisoned for the robbery and shooting of a liquor store clerk in Los Angeles. Hines is a resident of Death Row.

Afterward there was a reception with coffee and cake, a chance for brief exchanges between the relatives who came and their loved ones. And then the men were returned to their cells.

Firemen Plan Recruiting Fete

The Belvedere volunteer firemen's annual beer bust will be held at 7 p.m. July 18 at the firehouse to meet personnel and inspect equipment, according to president Tom H. Eubanks.

The free beer bust is open to all men of the community with the only stipulation being those who attend must bring their own beer mugs, Eubanks said.

Firemen, meeting last night, also agreed to hold the annual firemen's ball on Aug. 22 at the San Francisco Yacht Club.

Houseboat Residents Ask PG&E Injunction

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday toured houseboats at Gate Five near Sausalito and then took under submission the questions of electricity in the area and the county's right to clear underwater streets.

Judge E. Warren McGuire indicated that he will rule next week on two requests for preliminary injunctions by landscaper Piro Caro, leader of the houseboat residents who lives on the ferryboat San Rafael.

One injunction asks that the county and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. be restrained from shutting off electricity to the houseboats and the other that the county be stopped from removing debris from rights-of-way on the Arques property.

Judge McGuire, who was accompanied on his tour by attorneys for the county and Caro, said that he spent about two hours looking at the wiring which the county maintains is unsafe and touring houseboats, including Caro's ferry.

Caro has claimed that his ferryboat is an "antique with historical interest" and that the county plans to remove it to clear rights of way through the Arques property.

Judge McGuire said that he was not offered refreshments on his visit but that he did hear "some live music."

Trustees Take No Action On Sonoma State Election

COMBINED AP & UPI

The trustees made no direct move against President Ambrose Nichols Jr., who upheld a student committee's ruling validating Gillete's election after three earlier elections, won by John Owen of Novato, were declared invalid by the committee.

However, the prolonged issue at the college this past semester led the trustees to adopt a resolution calling for creation of a special committee to prepare recommendations for a uniform code throughout the state college system outlining student election procedures and qualifications for student officers.

Gillete, a Cotati resident, is a Black Students Union leader at the Sonoma campus. He has served a jail term following a conviction for importing marijuana into the state.

Color TV Stolen

Consultant Certain Both Buses, Ferryboats Can Work Together

Ferries and improved bus transit from Marin to San Francisco can operate together.

Claude Gruen, head of a study recommending restoration of ferry service, gave this assurance last night to the Marin County Transit District board.

Gruen of Arthur D. Little Inc. consultants presented the firm's study of the feasibility of ferryboat service from Marin to San Francisco.

(On Tuesday, Gruen told the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee, for which his firm's $45,000 study was made , that there should be a halt to almost all plans to improve bus service between San Francisco and Marin for at least two years.

(The time, he said,was needed to test new kinds of vessels and there was danger improved bus service would attract patrons needed to make ferryboats financially feasible.

(The only exception to the two-year moratorium on improving bus service, Gruen said, should be between North Marin and San Francisco's civic center, routes that would not be replaced by ferry service.)

The public would best be served by an integrated system of bridge, bus and ferryboat, Gruen last night told the transit district directors, who did not question him on the proposed moratorium.

Directors accepted the report for study, but wondered what effect a bus system, whenever improved, would have on the feasibility of ferries.

According to the report there could be either:

A system using four conventional hull ferryboats, 1,000 to 1,500 persons capacity, operating from a central terminal in Corte Madera or:

A ssytem using 11 hydrofoil or air-cushion supported craft with 250-persons capacity, from terminals in North Sausalito, Corte Madera, and at Gallinas Creek.

Gruen said that an improved bus system would mean that fewer present bus riders would switch to ferries, but it probably wouldn't cut down on the prospective number of drivers who would leave their cars for ferries.

Nita J. Gruen, sociologist for the study, said "for many people the ferry is a more pleasurable prospect than a bus."

If improved bus service lowered the number of prospective ferry riders, the number of boats could be reduced, but "the feasibility wouldn't be imparired," Gruen contended.

Director Dean N. Meyer, a member of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board, said the board district has asked its manager Dale W. Luehring to pursue an integrated transportation system.

The Arthur D. Little study suggested the bridge district oversee the ferry project, with support from San Francisco and Marin County Transit District.

The transit district is awaiting a final report from its manager, Seymour Kashin, on a proposed transportation system from Marin to San Francisco.

Kashin reported that the Arthur D. Little findings will be included in his study. His report will include recommendations "dealing with both an all-bus commuter system and a combination bus-ferry system," Kashin reported. He expected that his final report would be ready in two weeks.

Gruen said the proposed ferry system could be in operation in about two years after a decision is made on which type of system, conventional hull or high speed craft, would be installed.

First, he said hydrofoil and air cushioned craft would have to be tested to see if they meet all standards. If they don't qualify, then the conventional hull, one-terminal program could be undertaken, he asserted.

Land acquisision and street development would have to start immediately to make the start of service in two years, he said.

Supervisor William A. Gnoss, a district director, said he was concerned about the safety of ferries in San Pablo Bay, noting the strong winds, fog and wave action there.

Gruen said modern ferries have advanced navigational equipment, and if any particular craft couldn't meet safety standards, it would be eliminated.

Thomas T. Storer, former Marin supervisor and co-chairman of the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee, urged directors to implement the ferry system "as soon as practicable."

He said the Little report was the only one of several transportation reports that "went to the community and asked 'what do you want?' "

Ferries, he contended, do less harm to the environment than other transportation systems, result in less air pollution and don't result in injury accidents.

The system could be flexible to provide service to Oakland or Richmond, and would bring tourists to Marin, he said.

Meyer said the question before directors on improved bus service and ferries was "how much of each do we buy?"

Corte Madera Mayor Edward W. Colthurst, a director, was absent.

Motel Sought On Waterfront

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Dillingham Land Corp. spokesman told the San Francisco Port Commission yesterday his firm is negotiating with the city planning commission for permission to build a 450-room hotel over water near Fisherman's Wharf.

Hugh Scott, the representative, said the firm had not yet made a permanent application for a building permit but thinks "it can get along with" the 40-foot height limitation for the area.

Scott was before the port commission because his firm would have to lease Pier 37 for the structure which would sit on piling over San Francisco Bay.

Power Failure

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The failure of a 12,000-volt distribution line yesterday shut off electrical power to some 3,000 persons living just west of downtown San Francisco, the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said.

U.S. Condemns Hanoi On Prisoner Secrecy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A Defense Department official says the U.S. knows very little about the 1,340 American soldiers missing in Vietnam, because the North Vietnamese are guilty of "bad faith" in all efforts to exchange prisoner information.

Two of the missing men are from Marin, according to a Hamilton Air Force Base spokesman, who declined to identify them "for sake of their families."

Richard G. Capen Jr., deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, told newsmen yesterday the government does not know whether the men listed as missing are, or have been, in prison camps — or whether any of them are dead.

Capen said only 345 of the missing men are known to be prisoners of the North Vietnamese. More than half of these are Air Force men.

The Defense Department official said information is so sketchy on the captive airmen that a fuzzy photograph of one was shown to wives of missing men—and 20 of them identified the picture as being of their husbands.

Capen, who later briefed families of missing men, said only about 100 families have received only 700 letters in the past years from North Vietnam captives.

The United States holds no North Vietnamese prisoners, Capen said. Instead, they are turned over to the South Vietnamese government.

Although the Communists have shown little concern about passing along information on prisoners, Capen said "We do believe" they will honor a promise to release three Americans.

The promised release was for July 4, but the three captives have not yet been heard from. Speaking of the missing, Capen said, "These men have not been forgotten."

Mao's Favorite Blasts Conclave

TOKYO (AP) — Red Chinese Defense Minister Lin Piao, Chairman Mao Tse-tung's heir designate, has denounced the recent Moscow world Communist conference as a "sinister anti-Communist, antipopular and counterrevolutionary" gathering.

It was the first statement made by a Red Chinese official on the Moscow conference which China boycotted.

The statement, broadcast yesterday by Peking's New China News Agency, was contained in a congratulatory message to Albania on the 26th anniversary of the founding of the Albanian Communist party.

San Anselmo Home Burglary Discovered

A portable television set, a floor polisher and a tool box, valued at a total of $185, were stolen from the home of James J. McDonald of 16 Florence Avenue, San Anselmo, he reported to police yesterday.

Entry was made through an open window between 4 p.m. Monday, and 8 a.m. yesterday, police said.

Beethoven Shirts Creator Howard Gossage Succumbs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — White-haired Howard Luck Gossage, whose imaginative advertising copy dealt with Anguillan independence, paper airplanes, Beethoven sweatshirts and Irish whisky, is dead of leukemia at 51.

Gossage died yesterday in Presbyterian Hospital, which he entered June 30. His funeral will be private.

He brought an offbeat and often crusading approach to his work at the San Francisco advertising firm of Freeman, Mander and Gossage, which he founded in 1957.

His associate, Jerry Mander, with whom he co-authored the best-selling book "The Great International Airplane Book," said of Gossage:

"He felt that advertising should propagate meaningful ideas . . . not just sell products."

Born Aug. 30, 1917 in Chicago, Gossage was graduated from the University of Kansas City. He was a Navy pilot in World War II and advertising manager of radio station KCBS here before entering agency work.

In addition to writing numerous articles for magazines and lecturing, he was a visiting professor in advertising at Pennsylvania State University.

Married three times and twice divorced, he leaves his widow, former Broadway actress Sarah Kemp, and their 3-year-old daughter, Sarah Luck. His second wife was Mrs. Mary Baty Gossage who lives in San Francisco with their two children, Eben, 15, and Amelia, 13. Mrs. Page Steele of Thousand Oaks was his first wife.

Bids Opened On Island Marina

James Marsh Co. of San Carlos, San Mateo County, with a bid of $229,935, was lowest of seven bidders on construction of marina facilities at Ayala Cove, Angel Island, the state Office of Architecture and Construction has reported.

The new facilities will consist of 40 boat moorings, a 36-foot extension of the pier, two floats and a launching ramp.

The project is one of the first steps in a long range plan by the state Parks and Recreation Commission to expand development of Angel Island State Park.

Health Report Errs: 53 Strep Infections

There were 53 cases of streptococcus infection and no cases of syphilis reported last week in Marin County.

The report which appeared in yesterday's paper as 53 cases of syphilis was incorrectly given to the Independent Journal by the Marin County Department of Public Health.

On July 24 the musical comedy "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" will be presented by the Repertory West, a new Sonoma County little theater group.

Commercial and community exhibits are planned as well as livestock, poultry and horses. Also on the schedule are a carnival, free circus, rodeo, roller derby, a destruction derby and a junior livestock auction.

Gates open at 10 a.m. and close at 10 p.m. with the midway remaining open until midnight. The fairgrounds is located on Bennet and Brookwood avenues east of Highway 101.

Three Drinking Drivers Fined

Three men have been sentenced by Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving. All were placed on one year probation.

Geogre Allen Coppage, 30, of the Presidio of San Fancisco, who was arrested last Wednesday in Sausalito, was fined $150.

Jack L. Powell, 22, of 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was fined $100. He was arrested Sunday on Highway 101.

Donald Dale Robinson, 25, of 15 Roy Court, Novato, who was arrested June 14 in San Rafael, was fined $240.

Persons needing minifilms should try to get their chest X-ray before Aug. 25, Dr. Albrecht advised.

Casper Vaults Into Contention In British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Steady Bill Casper put himself in strong contention in the British Open Golf Championship today by firing another two-under-par 70 for a two-round total of 140. But Jack Nicklaus's failure to conquer the back nine may have put him out of reach of the title.

Nicklaus, who shot an opening round 75, went out determined to gain ground and fired a 33 for the first nine holes. Then he ran into trouble coming home and took a 37.

The blonde belter from Columbus, Ohio, also had difficulty on the same stretch in the opening round yesterday — the same one that cost him the 1963 championship here.

Although his 70 duplicated Casper's, Nicklaus was much further back with a 145 total, seven strokes behind the early leaders, Tony Jacklin and Alex Caygill.

Casper, of San Diego, also went out in 33 and came home in 37, but finished just two strokes back of the leading British pair with first-round leader Bob Charles of New Zealand scheduled to start later in the day. Charles had an opening 66.

The struggling American contingent also suffered another blow when George Archer, the Masters champion from Gilroy, withdrew because of illness. Archer, who shot an opening 79, was stricken with gastro enteritis and a heavy cold.

Among the other early finishers were Gary Player of South Africa, who came in with a 68 for a 142 total. Miller Barber of Sherman, Tex., who tacked a 74 onto his opening 69 and was another stroke further back.

Rich Basset of Upper Montclair, N.J., had a 75 for 153.

Casper managed two birdies and seven pars on the first nine over Royal Lytham's 6,848-yard layout, but slipped to bogey fives on the 14th and 15th and had to settle for a 70.

After his round, Nicklaus singled out those final nine holes as the determining factor in the tournament.

"I believe," said Nicklaus, "that the holes where the champion will be made are on the last nine."

Nicklaus bogeyed the third, then birdied the sixth, seventh and ninth to turn two under par. But he took a bogey on No. 12 and another on the 15th when he

An overnight rain freshened

An overnight rain fresheneed the course and encouraged bold play as the field eyed the cutoff that will send only the low 70 and ties into tomorrow's third round. The field will be cut again after the third round to the low 45 and ties for the final for Saturday.

Archer had spent two days confined to bed after he arrived in Britain and had little chance to practice on the course.

"It's no good me trying to carry on when I don't feel good," he said in announcing his withdrawal.

JIM MURRAY

It's Not Palm Springs On This Golf Course

BLACKPOOL — You could tell right away it wasn't Palm Springs. Don't bother to bring sunglasses.

I'd like to have the false teeth concession in town.

It was a nice balmy day when I arrived. The temperature was up in the 50s. So was the population for the most part.

It's listed as a seaside resort but the only things in swimming had fins on them. You don't have to watch for sharks at these latitudes. Just icebergs. Those aren't really stiff upper lips the British are keeping. They're frozen. You could leave fish out in the sun here. It wouldn't melt butter. For one thing it isn't out long enough. "Summer" lasts several hours here. Five minutes at a time.

Any people who would consider the North Atlantic as a swimming hole would eat pickles for breakfast and make a pie out of filet mignon. And they do. You can always tell a foreigner here. He's the one who hasn't got dyspepsia. Yet.

Working Class Resort Area

It's a working class resort area. A gale force wind was blowing the day I arrived. The North Atlantic was rolling in gray and sullen. I would think it was about as much fun for a holiday as the Murmansk run. It gives you a sore throat just to look at it.

But if a Beverly Hills pool swimmer would turn blue on the strand of Blackpool, you should see what the crowd from the Tucson Open would do if it were handed a bag and told to go out and shoot 63 at the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's (pronounce it "sin-tons").

The fairways aren't mowed, they're bitten. The mowers aren't power driven, they have four feet and wool. If the sheep aren't hunugry, it looks as if they sent a guy out with a pair of scissors and a dust pan. Neither one of them makes very much of an impression on the weeds. There are places you could hit your ball here where they might have trouble finding you.

Trouble Finding Greens

You not only have trouble hitting a green, you have trouble finding it. You don't have to know how to putt, you have to know where.

The fairways are really unfairways, although there is room for two comfortably. When Sam Snead first saw the course, he asked them what they did with the cows.

At first glance, it looks like an empty lot in Cleveland. It's actually on the wrong side of the tracks. A railroad is the out-of-bounds marker on the first three holes. Slice a ball off the tee and you might have to go play it in London. The seventh and eighth holes are on the British Railways' Midland line, too, and some golfers have been about ready to get aboard by then, sticks and all.

You need a railroad timetable as well as a scorecard because you don't want to be lining up a birdie putt when the noon flyer to Preston comes hooting through.

The sprinkler system is called "Clouds." You ask the greenskeeper if he's going to water the greens today and he says, "I dunno." He might wet them with an ice cube. Only trouble it, there aren't any in this country. The only beverage that isn't warm is the coffee.

Can't Get Sunburn Here

The only thing you can't get on this course is sunburn. George Archer played in ear muffs Tuesday. He was playing with a head cold. Playing this course with a cold is like duelling in the park with hemophilia.

A storm which was wrecking ships at sea at the time boomed down over the course and more and more golfers were looking longingly at that train disappearing down in the direction of London and a way back into the north temperate zone.

From America, players' last-minute "regrets" were piling in faster than at a gangster's wedding.

I expect watching this tournament will be more fun than watching a bunch of guys going to the electric chair. Some will go stumbling along praying or weeping, others will be cursing the warden.

I wouldn't bother so much with scores. But I would take roll call every night, and check the late train to London for a lot of guys who got on in cleats, carrying clubs and cards with lots of 6's on them, drenched to the skin and checking airline schedules to Miami.

Flying Tigers Notch Win, 66-44

Jim Halm, former College of Marin star, scored 20 points to lead the Flying Tigers to a 66-44 triumph over Foster Farms last night in the Drake Adult Summer Basketball League.

In other games played in the Drake High School gym in San Anselmo, Roosevelt Green meshed 16 points to lead Kettle over McArthur Brothers, 57-40, and Roy Wolford scored 16 for San Rafael Travel in its 67-60 win over Drake Market. Pat Purcell scored 20 for the losers.

Morrall May Join Namath If Unitas Gets Top Job

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Not one, but both key quarterbacks from last year's Super Bowl might be missing when the pro football season opens.

Joe Namath, the reluctant quarterback of the New York Jets, announced his retirement a month ago. Yesterday, Namath's Super Bowl opponent, Earl Morrall of the Baltimore Colts, indicated he might retire, too.

IN SAN FRANCISCO

He told a San Francisco news conference he would discuss his possible retirement with the Colts in Baltimore this weekend. The Colts open training camp on Sunday.

"My communications with them will be the deciding factor," said the National Football League's 1968 Player of the Year. "At this point, I'm right in the middle."

So is Namath, but for a different reason.

The flamboyant Jet star said in Corona, where he's making a movie, that he's sticking to his decision not to obey Commissioner Pete Rozelle's order to get rid of his part interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by gamblers.

NO CHANGE

"I would change my mind if someone would say where I was wrong," he said. "If I have been wrong, I won't want any part of the restaurant."

Despite his big season last year, Morrall still might have to fight for his job as he has had to throughout his 13-year career. He said quarterback John Unitas, sidelined much of last season because of injuries, has been throwing well all summer.

In another retirement, Nick Buoniconti, five time All-American Football League linebacker, said he notified the Miami Dolphins he was leaving football to devote himself to his law practice. Buoniconti, acquired by the Dolphins from the Boston Patriots in an off-season trade, said fruitless contract talks prompted his decision.

In Philadelphia, running back Leroy Keyes of Purdue said he won't play in the Aug. 1 College All-Star Game against the Jets unless he signs a bonus contract with the Eagles before the game.

O. J. STILL OUT

Super back O. J. Simpson of USC, the Heisman Trophy winner, still is holding out on the Buffalo Bills for a reported $600,000 to sign. The Bills opened training camp for rookies but Simpson doesn't have to report until after the All-Star Game.

The Washington Redskins opened camp in Carlisle, Pa., under new Coach Vince Lombardi. Quarterback Gary Beban said the team already has shown a "new morale, an instant unity" because of their legendary new pilot from the Green Bay Packers.

Giants Send Juan To Mound Tonight

Key Series In Dodger Stadium

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Manager Walter Alston and his Los Angeles Dodgers couldn't be blamed for wondering what will happen in the National League's Western Division race once the San Francisco Giants become healthy.

Game On Television

Tonight's game will be televised over KTVU, Channel 2, beginning at 7:55 p.m.

The surging Giants limped into town today, sending ace right-hander Juan Marichal, 11-3, against the Dodger's Don Sutton, 11-8, in the opener of a four-game series. The Giants have won nine of their last 12 games.

PRIDE

Alston might not recognize many of the Giants' starters but San Francisco skipper Clyde King is beaming with pride over the work of his reserves following yesterday's 10-3 romp over the Houston Astros.

For the second straight game, a Houston pitcher had a one-hit shutout after six innings only to have the Giants erupt in the seventh and eighth for one-sided runaways.

Right-hander Larry Dierker was clobbered for two runs in the seventh and five more in the eighth Tuesday, dropping a 7-4 decision.

Yesterday the Giants defeated Denny Lemaster, 7-9, with four runs in the seventh and six in the eighth.

RESERVES

Ken Henderson's two-run double and Dave Marshall's run-scoring pinch-single were the big blows in the seventh, while Bob Burda's grand-slam homer highlighted the eighth-inning rally.

Those three reserves plus Tito Fuentes have filled in for injured Giants' regulars. King indicated Willy McCovey, Hal Lanier and Jim Hart would be sidelined again for the Dodger series opener.

"Our reserves don't have sensational averages," says King. "But they have determination — and that's more important. These last two wins have given us some momentum going into the Dodgers series.

WANTS THREE

"I'm usually satisfied with a split on the road," he added, "but we're capable of doing better. It would be great if we could win three games but the Dodgers will be much tougher this time with Maury Wills and Manny Mota."

King regards the Dodgers as his biggest worry in the tight Western Division race. "I'd better be most concerned about the Dodgers," he points out. "We have 14 games left with them."

LINZY SAVE

Veteran reliever Frank Linzy retired the last six Astros to register his eighth save and help rookie left-hander Ron Bryant, notch his first major league victory.

ALL-STAR POWER

Homer-Hitting Outfield For A.L.

NEW YORK — (UPI) — In an attempt to break a six-game losing streak in All-Star competition, the American League has selected a homer-hitting outfield of Reggie Jackson, Frank Howard and Frank Robinson to start in the classic at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium, Washington, July 22.

This ower brigade has combined for 85 homers. Jackson, the Oakland Athletics sphomore sensation, has 34; Howard, the Washington Senators slugger, 32, and Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles, 19.

PLAYERS VOTE

Players, coaches and managers voted for the starting lineup released yesterday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Rico Petrocelli of the Boston Red Sox, the top vote-getter with 286, gained the shortstop berth with Boog Powell of Baltimore at first, Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins at second, Sal Bando of Oakland at third. Bill Freehan of the Detroit Tigers will open as catcher.

The remainder of the 28-man squad, including pitchers and reserves, are the exclusive choices of Manager Mayo Smith of the world champion Detroit Tigers. Each club must be represented at the All-Star competition.

MOST VOTES

Jackson received the most votes among the outfielders, 260. Robinson, who played on five National League All-Star squads as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, collected 250 votes and Howard, 169.

Brooks Robinson of Baltimore missed out as the starting third baseman for the first time in six years when he amassed 126 votes to 163 for Bando in the closest balloting for any position.

MISSED TWICE

Harmon Killebrew missed on two opportunities for a starting role. He was named on 33 ballots for third baseman and his 96 was far short of Powell's 210 at first. Killebrew, the 1968 starting first sacker, was injured in the game last year while stretching for a low throw.

Five of the selectees are hitting over .300. At the time of Kuhn's announcement, Carew led the majors with a .356 mark. Frank Robinson was at .329, Powell and Petrocelli .309 and Howard .308.

One Pitch Is Costly For Athletic Reliever

CHICAGO (AP) — A pinch hitter swinging at the first ball thrown by a relief pitcher last night cost the Oakland Athletics their sixth defeat in seven games.

Pete Ward, pinch hitting for the Chicago White Sox, belted the ball over the fence against pitcher George Lauzerique in the eighth inning and that produced three runs, enough for a 5-3 victory.

Oakland's Blue Moon Odom, 11-3, was to hurl for the A's today against Chicago's Tommy John, 5-7.

WALK, SINGLE

Before Ward connected on his game winning blow, Ed Herrman had walked and Buddy Bradford had singled.

The Athletics got their three runs in the top of the eighth on singles by Danny Cater, Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando, Dick Green and Phil Roof.

Jackson, who hasn't hit a homer since Saturday, declared he wasn't "losing any sleep about it and don't try to ask me why I'm not doing it against the White Sox . . . I don't know." He has 34 homers so far this year.

After today's game the Athletics return to Oakland for three games against the California Angels.

Three Drinking Drivers Fined

Three men have been sentenced by Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving. All were placed on one year probation.

Geogre Allen Coppage, 30, of the Presidio of San Fancisco, who was arrested last Wednesday in Sausalito, was fined $150.

Jack L. Powell, 22, of 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was fined $100. He was arrested Sunday on Highway 101.

Donald Dale Robinson, 25, of 15 Roy Court, Novato, who was arrested June 14 in San Rafael, was fined $240.

Vacation Will Close Chest X-Ray Unit

The minifilm unit of the Department of Public Health, 920 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, will be closed from Aug. 25 through Sept. 5, while the X-ray technician is on vacation, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, has reported.

Persons needing minifilms should try to get their chest X-ray before Aug. 25, Dr. Albrecht advised.

Casper Vaults Into Contention In British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Steady Bill Casper put himself in strong contention in the British Open Golf Championship today by firing another two-under-par 70 for a two-round total of 140. But Jack Nicklaus's failure to conquer the back nine may have put him out of reach of the title.

Nicklaus, who shot an opening round 75, went out determined to gain ground and fired a 33 for the first nine holes. Then he ran into trouble coming home and took a 37.

The blonde belter from Columbus, Ohio, also had difficulty on the same stretch in the opening round yesterday — the same one that cost him the 1963 championship here.

Although his 70 duplicated Casper's, Nicklaus was much further back with a 145 total, seven strokes behind the early leaders, Tony Jacklin and Alex Caygill.

Casper, of San Diego, also went out in 33 and came home in 37, but finished just two strokes back of the leading British pair with first-round leader Bob Charles of New Zealand scheduled to start later in the day. Charles had an opening 66.

The struggling American contingent also suffered another blow when George Archer, the Masters champion from Gilroy, withdrew because of illness. Archer, who shot an opening 79, was stricken with gastro enteritis and a heavy cold.

Among the other early finishers were Gary Player of South Africa, who came in with a 68 for a 142 total. Miller Barber of Sherman, Tex., who tacked a 74 onto his opening 69 and was another stroke further back.

Rich Basset of Upper Montclair, N.J., had a 75 for 153.

Casper managed two birdies and seven pars on the first nine over Royal Lytham's 6,848-yard layout, but slipped to bogey fives on the 14th and 15th and had to settle for a 70.

After his round, Nicklaus singled out those final nine holes as the determining factor in the tournament.

"I believe," said Nicklaus, "that the holes where the champion will be made are on the last nine."

Nicklaus bogeyed the third, then birdied the sixth, seventh and ninth to turn two under par. But he took a bogey on No. 12 and another on the 15th when he

An overnight rain freshened

An overnight rain fresheneed the course and encouraged bold play as the field eyed the cutoff that will send only the low 70 and ties into tomorrow's third round. The field will be cut again after the third round to the low 45 and ties for the final for Saturday.

Archer had spent two days confined to bed after he arrived in Britain and had little chance to practice on the course.

"It's no good me trying to carry on when I don't feel good," he said in announcing his withdrawal.

JIM MURRAY

It's Not Palm Springs On This Golf Course

BLACKPOOL — You could tell right away it wasn't Palm Springs. Don't bother to bring sunglasses.

I'd like to have the false teeth concession in town.

It was a nice balmy day when I arrived. The temperature was up in the 50s. So was the population for the most part.

It's listed as a seaside resort but the only things in swimming had fins on them. You don't have to watch for sharks at these latitudes. Just icebergs. Those aren't really stiff upper lips the British are keeping. They're frozen. You could leave fish out in the sun here. It wouldn't melt butter. For one thing it isn't out long enough. "Summer" lasts several hours here. Five minutes at a time.

Any people who would consider the North Atlantic as a swimming hole would eat pickles for breakfast and make a pie out of filet mignon. And they do. You can always tell a foreigner here. He's the one who hasn't got dyspepsia. Yet.

Working Class Resort Area

It's a working class resort area. A gale force wind was blowing the day I arrived. The North Atlantic was rolling in gray and sullen. I would think it was about as much fun for a holiday as the Murmansk run. It gives you a sore throat just to look at it.

But if a Beverly Hills pool swimmer would turn blue on the strand of Blackpool, you should see what the crowd from the Tucson Open would do if it were handed a bag and told to go out and shoot 63 at the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's (pronounce it "sin-tons").

The fairways aren't mowed, they're bitten. The mowers aren't power driven, they have four feet and wool. If the sheep aren't hunugry, it looks as if they sent a guy out with a pair of scissors and a dust pan. Neither one of them makes very much of an impression on the weeds. There are places you could hit your ball here where they might have trouble finding you.

Trouble Finding Greens

You not only have trouble hitting a green, you have trouble finding it. You don't have to know how to putt, you have to know where.

The fairways are really unfairways, although there is room for two comfortably. When Sam Snead first saw the course, he asked them what they did with the cows.

At first glance, it looks like an empty lot in Cleveland. It's actually on the wrong side of the tracks. A railroad is the out-of-bounds marker on the first three holes. Slice a ball off the tee and you might have to go play it in London. The seventh and eighth holes are on the British Railways' Midland line, too, and some golfers have been about ready to get aboard by then, sticks and all.

You need a railroad timetable as well as a scorecard because you don't want to be lining up a birdie putt when the noon flyer to Preston comes hooting through.

The sprinkler system is called "Clouds." You ask the greenskeeper if he's going to water the greens today and he says, "I dunno." He might wet them with an ice cube. Only trouble it, there aren't any in this country. The only beverage that isn't warm is the coffee.

Can't Get Sunburn Here

The only thing you can't get on this course is sunburn. George Archer played in ear muffs Tuesday. He was playing with a head cold. Playing this course with a cold is like duelling in the park with hemophilia.

I wouldn't bother so much with scores. But I would take roll call every night, and check the late train to London for a lot of guys who got on in cleats, carrying clubs and cards with lots of 6's on them, drenched to the skin and checking airline schedules to Miami.

Not one, but both key quarterbacks from last year's Super Bowl might be missing when the pro football season opens.

Joe Namath, the reluctant quarterback of the New York Jets, announced his retirement a month ago. Yesterday, Namath's Super Bowl opponent, Earl Morrall of the Baltimore Colts, indicated he might retire, too.

IN SAN FRANCISCO

He told a San Francisco news conference he would discuss his possible retirement with the Colts in Baltimore this weekend. The Colts open training camp on Sunday.

"My communications with them will be the deciding factor," said the National Football League's 1968 Player of the Year. "At this point, I'm right in the middle."

So is Namath, but for a different reason.

The flamboyant Jet star said in Corona, where he's making a movie, that he's sticking to his decision not to obey Commissioner Pete Rozelle's order to get rid of his part interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by gamblers.

NO CHANGE

"I would change my mind if someone would say where I was wrong," he said. "If I have been wrong, I won't want any part of the restaurant."

Despite his big season last year, Morrall still might have to fight for his job as he has had to throughout his 13-year career. He said quarterback John Unitas, sidelined much of last season because of injuries, has been throwing well all summer.

In another retirement, Nick Buoniconti, five time All-American Football League linebacker, said he notified the Miami Dolphins he was leaving football to devote himself to his law practice. Buoniconti, acquired by the Dolphins from the Boston Patriots in an off-season trade, said fruitless contract talks prompted his decision.

In Philadelphia, running back Leroy Keyes of Purdue said he won't play in the Aug. 1 College All-Star Game against the Jets unless he signs a bonus contract with the Eagles before the game.

O. J. STILL OUT

Super back O. J. Simpson of USC, the Heisman Trophy winner, still is holding out on the Buffalo Bills for a reported $600,000 to sign. The Bills opened training camp for rookies but Simpson doesn't have to report until after the All-Star Game.

The Washington Redskins opened camp in Carlisle, Pa., under new Coach Vince Lombardi. Quarterback Gary Beban said the team already has shown a "new morale, an instant unity" because of their legendary new pilot from the Green Bay Packers.

Giants Send Juan To Mound Tonight

Key Series In Dodger Stadium

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Manager Walter Alston and his Los Angeles Dodgers couldn't be blamed for wondering what will happen in the National League's Western Division race once the San Francisco Giants become healthy.

Game On Television

Tonight's game will be televised over KTVU, Channel 2, beginning at 7:55 p.m.

The surging Giants limped into town today, sending ace righthander Juan Marichal, 11-3, against the Dodger's Don Sutton, 11-8, in the opener of a four-game series. The Giants have won nine of their last 12 games.

PRIDE

Alston might not recognize many of the Giants' starters but San Francisco skipper Clyde King is beaming with pride over the work of his reserves following yesterday's 10-3 romp over the Houston Astros.

For the second straight game, a Houston pitcher had a one-hit shutout after six innings only to have the Giants erupt in the seventh and eighth for one-sided runaways.

Right-hander Larry Dierker was clobbered for two runs in the seventh and five more in the eighth Tuesday, dropping a 7-4 decision.

Yesterday the Giants defeated Denny Lemaster, 7-9, with four runs in the seventh and six in the eighth.

RESERVES

Ken Henderson's two-run double and Dave Marshall's run-scoring pinch-single were the big blows in the seventh, while Bob Burda's grand-slam homer highlighted the eighth-inning rally.

Those three reserves plus Tito Fuentes have filled in for injured Giants' regulars. King indicated Willy McCovey, Hal Lanier and Jim Hart would be sidelined again for the Dodger series opener.

"Our reserves don't have sensational averages," says King. "But they have determination — and that's more important. These last two wins have given us some momentum going into the Dodgers series.

WANTS THREE

"I'm usually satisfied with a split on the road," he added, "but we're capable of doing better. It would be great if we could win three games but the Dodgers will be much tougher this time with Maury Wills and Manny Mota."

King regards the Dodgers as his biggest worry in the tight Western Division race. "I'd better be most concerned about the Dodgers," he points out. "We have 14 games left with them."

LINZY SAVE

Veteran reliever Frank Linzy retired the last six Astros to register his eighth save and help rookie left-hander Ron Bryant, notch his first major league victory.

ALL-STAR POWER

Homer-Hitting Outfield For A.L.

NEW YORK — (UPI) — In an attempt to break a six-game losing streak in All-Star competition, the American League has selected a homer-hitting outfield of Reggie Jackson, Frank Howard and Frank Robinson to start in the classic at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium, Washington, July 22.

This ower brigade has combined for 85 homers. Jackson, the Oakland Athletics sphomore sensation, has 34; Howard, the Washington Senators slugger, 32, and Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles, 19.

PLAYERS VOTE

Players, coaches and managers voted for the starting lineup released yesterday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Rico Petrocelli of the Boston Red Sox, the top vote-getter with 286, gained the shortstop berth with Boog Powell of Baltimore at first, Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins at second, Sal Bando of Oakland at third. Bill Freehan of the Detroit Tigers will open as catcher.

The remainder of the 28-man squad, including pitchers and reserves, are the exclusive choices of Manager Mayo Smith of the world champion Detroit Tigers. Each club must be represented at the All-Star competition.

MOST VOTES

Jackson received the most votes among the outfielders, 260. Robinson, who played on five National League All-Star squads as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, collected 250 votes and Howard, 169.

Brooks Robinson of Baltimore missed out as the starting third baseman for the first time in six years when he amassed 126 votes to 163 for Bando in the closest balloting for any position.

MISSED TWICE

Harmon Killebrew missed on two opportunities for a starting role. He was named on 33 ballots for third baseman and his 96 was far short of Powell's 210 at first. Killebrew, the 1968 starting first sacker, was injured in the game last year while stretching for a low throw.

Five of the selectees are hitting over .300. At the time of Kuhn's announcement, Carew led the majors with a .356 mark. Frank Robinson was at .329, Powell and Petrocelli .309 and Howard .308.

One Pitch Is Costly For Athletic Reliever

CHICAGO (AP) — A pinch hitter swinging at the first ball thrown by a relief pitcher last night cost the Oakland Athletics their sixth defeat in seven games.

Pete Ward, pinch hitting for the Chicago White Sox, belted the ball over the fence against pitcher George Lauzerique in the eighth inning and that produced three runs, enough for a 5-3 victory.

Oakland's Blue Moon Odom, 11-3, was to hurl for the A's today against Chicago's Tommy John, 5-7.

WALK, SINGLE

Before Ward connected on his game winning blow, Ed Herrman had walked and Buddy Bradford had singled.

The Athletics got their three runs in the top of the eighth on singles by Danny Cater, Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando, Dick Green and Phil Roof.

Jackson, who hasn't hit a homer since Saturday, declared he wasn't "losing any sleep about it and don't try to ask me why I'm not doing it against the White Sox . . . I don't know." He has 34 homers so far this year.

After today's game the Athletics return to Oakland for three games against the California Angels.

MAN OF HOUR — New York Met pitcher Tom Seaver talks to newsmen shortly after his one-hit victory. (AP Wirephoto)

ONE-HIT SPOILER

Frustration Even In Met Win

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Their dizzying dash towards the more respectable neighborhood in the National League standings has turned everything topsy-turvy for the prosperous New York Mets.

Tom Seaver pitched a one-hitter, beating Chicago 4-0 for the Mets ' seventh straight victory last night. It trimmed the Cubs' lead over New York to three games in the East Division race. It should have been a source of great joy. It was, believe it or not, a source of great disappointment.

That's because Seaver flirted with immortality by retiring 25 consecutive Cubs before rookie Jimmy Qualls ended his perfect game bid with a one-out single in the ninth inning.

AGGRAVATION

That single by the No. 8 hitter in the Cubs' line-up deprived Seaver of his line in the record book but it couldn't keep New York from continuing its tear towards the top. Yet, it added the touch of aggravation that always seems to follow the Mets.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh nipped Montreal twice 4-3 in 10 innings and 3-2, Philadelphia split with St. Louis, winning 7-1 before losing 5-3, San Francisco bombed Houston 10-3, Cincinnati edged San Diego 4-3 and Los Angeles dropped Atlanta 3-1.

Seaver drove in a run with a second inning single as the Mets jumped on Ken Holtzman, knocking out the Cub left-hander and taking a 3-0 lead in the first two innings.

SHOWMAN

Then Seaver became a one-man show, retiring the Cubs 1-2-3 in every inning. He struck out five of the first six batters he faced and fanned 11 for the game.

Randy Hundley bunted Seaver's first pitch in the ninth inning and the pitcher threw him out for the 25th Cub to go down in order. Then Qualls rapped the next pitch for the hit. Seaver then retired the next two hitters easily to end the game.

He termed the one-hitter "a disappointment" but around the Mets, that word is commonplace. If every disappointment was a one-hitter, they'd never complain.

Bill Singer pitched a four-hitter and Los Angeles tightened its grip on first place in the West Division by knocking off Atlanta. Manny Mota, who went 8-for-10 in Tuesday's doubleheader sweep against the Braves, added three more hits yesterday.

Annex Squad Maintains League Lead

Annex Motors continued to have the best record in the Marin area Joe DiMaggio Baseball League after nipping Mill Valley Chiefs 5-4 yesterday.

The Motormen, now boasting an 8-1 record in the North Division, were led by Ken Gnoss' two hits.

Toby's Truckers edged Herb's Pool Service 3-2 to vault back into first place in the South Division. Toby's pitcher Tom Olson struck out eight, got two hits, drove in a run and scored the winning run in a very big day. Bill LeNoue homered for Herb's.

In other games, Presidio edged Italian Club 2-1 and Holiday Magic beat San Anselmo 8-4. Jerry White hit a two-run homer for Presidio, while Holiday Magic was led by Bruce DiAmbra's bases loaded triple.

In other matches involving Marin County youngsters, Bob Knight of Tiburon d. Butch Watts, 6-0, 6-1 in Boys 16; Anne Lamott of Tiburon d. Linda Mitchell by default, and Bee Kilgore of Belvedere d. MARIN COUNTY GOLF NOTES

Meadow Club To Be A Busy Place

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Meadow Club in Fairfax is going to be a busy spot the next few days.

Sunday it will be the Marin County Tournament of Golf Champions, starting at 9:30 a.m., matching club champs of Marin's six golf clubs.

On Friday, July 18, it will be the Meadow Club Junior Invitational, a shotgun start at 8:30 a.m. Then on Tuesday, July 29, it will be the North Bay Area qualifying for the Northern California Golf Association Junior Amateur Championship.

Young golfers from the North Bay will be trying to advance to the championship rounds at Lake Merced Country Club in Daly City, Aug. 11-15. Competition will be 18-hole, medal play, no handicaps used.

TERRY DAVIS, 16-year-old junior at Terra Linda High (the MVP on the school golf team) had quite a time playing the tough Spyglass course in Pebble Beach during a vacation trip. He scored his first hole-in-one, using a nine-iron on the 127-yard 15th hole.

IT WAS quite a logjam in the Marin Country Club men's best two-ball foursomes tournament last weekend. Tying for first place were foursomes of Sil DeMaestri, Mat Palacio Jr., John Gardiner, Elwood Frink; George Pearson, Lawrence Boucher, Bill Haley, Scrub Elliott; and Ralph Lewis, Lee Lehmkuhl, Herb Marsh, Clem Ledrech, each foursome with a score of 122.

In the Mixed Scotch Ball tourney at Marin Country Club in Novato, Orville Suttles and Mrs. W. Goldman won in Class A, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Bloom won Class B, and Mr. and Mrs. Scrub Elliott won Class C.

FOR THOSE WHO have hopes of making the field for the Pro-Am event of the San Francisco Open Oct. 22 at Harding Park course, there are 150 spots on a first-come, first-served basis. Requirements are handicap of 16 or less and $200 entry fee. Wow!

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Senators Blank Injuns For Nixon

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ted Williams summed it up after winning last night something like Richard Nixon must have after winning last November: "It's about time!"

"I've known him since 1950 and I've been a Nixon man all the time," Williams insisted after his Washington Senators blanked Cleveland 3-0 with the President in attendance. But Nixon's three previous trips to the ballpark this season meant nothing but grief—and losses—for the Senators.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City nipped Minnesota 4-3, the Chicago White Sox tripped Oakland 5-3, Baltimore edged the New York Yankees 6-5 in 10 innings, Detroit took Boston 6-5 and Seattle walloped California 8-0, then lost 5-0.

BLOOPER

The Senators, who had beaten Cleveland 10 to 12 without Nixon, took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Mike Epstein's bloop double. The President arrived an inning later with daughter Tricia and son-in-law David Eisenhower, just in time to see Del Unser single for one run and Frank Howard do the same for another.

Joe Coleman breezed with a four-hitter, struck out 11 and gave the President the final ball of the game when he stopped by the Washington clubhouse. Nixon wouldn't take it, though, until Coleman autographed it.

Ed Doherty, a Senators official, reported the President kept watching the scoreboard during the game, hoping Baltimore would lose so Washington could up ground.

"He was overjoyed when Dave McNally was knocked out," Doherty said. "And he kept rooting for Howard to hit a home run. Everytime Howard came up, he jumped up and shouted, 'Hondo, Hondo, hit one.'"

Lou Piniella, a season-long pest to Minnesota, drove home the tying run with a fifth-inning single and the winner with a grounder in the seventh as Kansas City snapped the Twins' five-game winning streak and kept them 3½ games ahead of Oakland.

The Yankees kayoed unbeaten Dave McNally, 12-0 for the second time in nine days but still lost when Boog Powell singled and scored all the way from first base when Bobby Murcer booted Brooks Robinson's double. It was the seventh time the Oriole s rallied after McNally left a game on the short end of the score and took him off the hook.

"When McNally went out, I knew that would be another one we could chalk up in the victory column," said Frank Robinson, who hit a two-run homer. Powell also homered for Baltimore.

Tom Matchick drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a single but Detroit needed Don Wert's sacrifice fly and Reggie Smith's throwing error in the fifth to edge Boston and move back into second place in the A.L. East, 12 games behind Baltimore.

Seattle's Fred Talbot hurled a three-hitter and socked a grand slam homer in the Pilots' opening game triumph, but California came back to win the nightcap as George Brunet pitched a seven-hitter, Sandy Alomar had three hits and Bill Voss collected a single and double and threw two runners out on the bases.

Laver Bids For U.S. Title

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Grass courts, clay courts, synthetic courts and, maybe, even on a rock pile, Australia's Rod Laver deserves his ranking as king of world tennis travelers.

The 30-year-old southpaw, fresh from winning his fourth Wimbledon title in England last weekend, made a quick adjustment and launched a bid for his fifth U.S. Pro Championship in impressive fashion yesterday at the Longwood Cricket Club.

The transition from fast green courts to a synthetic surface, with the trade name Uni-Turf, may have bothered some players, but certainly not Laver at the start of the $33,000 tournament. He was ready to go after a brisk one-hour workout in late afternoon.

FIRST ROUND

Playing under the lights and in chilly weather, Laver demolished South Africa's Ray Moore in a 6-2, 6-2 first-round victory.

"I think playing on this surface makes tennis more enjoyable," the freckled redhead said. "There aren't the worries about bad bounces you get on grass.

"The only problem now is that the ball has a tendency to stick. That should be easily overcome in the near future."

ADJUSTMENTS

Asked if he had made any major adjustments in switching quickly from grass to an artificial, green court, Laver smiled and replied:

"No, I just played back more, rather than moving up to the net. You can afford to stay back, without gambling, on such a court."

Laver, who is top-seeded in quest of a fourth straight American pro crown, led an Aussie advance through the first half of the opening round in the five-day tournament.

Second-seeded John Newcombe, runnerup here a year ago, defeated veteran Alex Olmedo 6-3, 7-5, while fourth-seeded Ken Rosewall, 34, a two-time U.S. pro champion, eliminated 48-year-old Pancho Segura 6-3, 6-3.

France's Pierre Barthes rallied for a 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 triumph over Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill.

Lou Spadia Enthused About Candlestick

Lou Spadia is enthused over the way plans are shaping up for modernization and expansion of Candlestick Park. There was a time not long ago when the president of the 49ers didn't feel that way. Indeed, it appeared that the professional football team would be stuck in Kezar Stadium for years to come.

Candlestick improvement plans were speeded up by putting first things first. The San Fancisco Board of Supervisors Finance Committee approved installation of artificial turf in Candlestick at the end of the current baseball season. It will cost $1.3 million.

DIGGING UP the natural grass in Candlestick and laying a good foundation for the artificial stuff can't begin until Oct. 3 because the baseball season doesn't end until Oct. 2. In fact, it may be mid-October before work on the artificial carpet can start if the Giants get in the National League divisional playoffs and hopefully the World Series.

That contingency is causing some concern to Shrine East-West officials. Indeed, even if work on the artificial grass installation begins on Oct. 3 it is doubtful the entire job could be completed in time for the 45th East-West game. There is a strong possibility the Shrine classic might have to be transferred for its 45th renewal back to Kezar Stadium.

HOWEVER, that is something which, while inconvenient, could be tolerated for one year by East-West officials in the same manner that the 49ers have been tolerant about delay after delay in the modernization and expansion of Candlestick.

"I am enthused about the whole thing," said Spadia who is looking forward to a move of the 49ers from Kezar to Candlestick next year provided firm plans are made by then for Candlestick's expansion, i.e., completion of a second deck from left field to right field, including wind baffles.

THESE PLANS already have been approved in principle. So, too, have $9.1 million financing plans.

Extension of Candlesticks second deck not only would increase present seating capacity from 42,500 to 60,000 plus but would create a barrier to the present left-to-right wind.

Neither the second deck nor baffles will ever eliminate the wind. But the second deck and baffles will eliminate gusts such as those that whipped Candlestick last Saturday during a Brave-Giant game and provoked Bob Bolin, a loser in the wind, to blast Candlestick verbally as Johnny Antonelli once blasted the wind in old Seals Stadium at 16th and Bryant streets.

"CERTAINLY," said Spadia, "we'll go to Candlestick on a one-year basis in 1970 with an artificial grass installation, 7,200 movable seats on the north side line (right field), provided the expansion plans are firmed up.

"National Football League rules prohibit playing league games in any stadia with less than 50,000 seating capacity.

"I'm enthused about things because it means a move from 14,000 sideline seats (Kezar) to an excess of 28,000 (Candlestick) which is more than any multi-purpose stadium in the country.

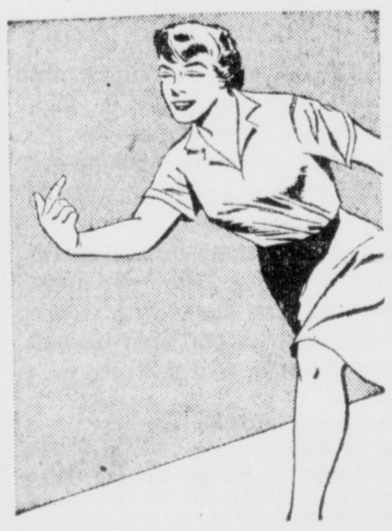
BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



The back-up ball, curving slightly from left to right for a right-hander, isn't the best delivery; but be consistent with it, and you can live with it. Today's illustrated bowler is backing it up—the palm of her hand is facing upward after release. Aim for a high 1-2 or 1-3 pocket hit.

CARL HUBBELL, GIANTS' GREAT SOUTHPAW, STRUCK OUT FIVE OF THE AMERICAN LEAGUE'S GREATEST HITTERS IN SUCCESSION...RUTH, GEHRIG, FOXX, SIMMONS AND CRONIN... BUT THE N.L. LOST THE ALL-STAR CLASSIC, 9-7.

Reds Make Room For New Pitcher

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds optioned rookie shortstop Darrell Chaney to Indianapolis of the American Association to make room on the roster for veteran right-hander Camilo Pascual.

The Reds purchased Pascual from Washington Monday for more than the $25,000 waiver price.

Chaney, sent out on 24-hour recall, had a .212 average in 68 games with the Reds.

TOURNEY OF CHAMPS

Culp Is Newcomer To Marin Golfdom

(Fourth in a series on entrants in Sunday's Marin County Golf Tournament of Champions.)

Jack Culp, the Peacock Gap representative, is no Marin County veteran nor is he a club champion but he could turn out to be trouble in the Marin County Golf Tournament of Champions.

Jack is a two-years-ago transplant from Chicago who has played golf for "some 40 years" which puts the 47-year-old advertising salesman out on the greens at age seven, fairly early even for early birds.

He doesn't play as much as he did in the Midwest, but still finds time to get out "at least once a week."

That may jelp in this tournament where competitors find very little time to go into year-round practice.

Culp, who was runner-up to Al Newman in the club tourney, is a four handicapper. Newman has since moved to Los Angeles. Culp has played in the National Amateur Tournament and in the Western Amateur six times.

"I guess I'm an iron player," he says. "My putting is average. If I'm down in two, I'm happy."

He calls Meadow Club, site of Sunday's tourney, "an excellent course, with good terrain, fine designs and some demanding holes, especially the seventh and sixth holes."

Culp, father of four, figures that a par score (71) should win the tournament.

"But if I come in with a 72, I'll be very happy with it," he said.

Bengal Roster Attracts Smith

CINCINNATI (AP) — Olympic champion Tommie Smith, who tried out with the Los Anfeles Rams recently but did not make the team, signed a contract today withm the Cincinnati Bengals.

Earlier it had been reported that Smith and Lee Evans, former teammates at San Jose State, would both tryout with the Oakland Raiders of the AFL.

But Smith said the Raiders were planning to make him tryout against Evans, world record holder for 400 meters, and that rather than do that he would attempt to make the Bengals.

Neither Smith nor Evans, who both won Gold Medals at the 1968 Olympic Games, played football in college. Smith earlier had a tryout with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

Santa Clara Swim Meet Draws Stars

The Santa Clara Swim Club, a sort of hatchery of some of the top young swimming stars in the nation, will host the third annual Santa Clara International Invitational Senior Open Swimming and Diving Meet tomorrow through Saturday.

A star-studded cast is expected to be on hand, including Olympic medalists and world record holders. The roster includes Debbie Meyer of Arden Hills, the AAU's Sullivan Award winner and the Olympics' first triple gold medal winner.

Also on hand will be people like two-time Olympic gold medalist Mike Burton of Arden Hills; Olympic platform diving queen Milena Duchkova of Czechoslovakia; Sue Pederson of Arden Hills, a double Olympic gold medal winner on relay teams; world butterfly record holder Mark Spitz of Santa Clara, and Felipe Munoz, Mexico's first Olympic gold medal winner who will head a seven-man Mexican contingent.

The meet will be held at the Santa Clara International Swim Center.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, July 10, the 191st day of 1969 with 174 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1938 Howard Hughes and a crew of 4 flew around the world in 91 hours.

In 1953 Lavrenti Beria, Russian chief of Soviet internal security forces, was purged by the Communists on charges of "criminal anti-state activities."

In 1962 the Telstar satellite relayed television pictures from the United States to Europe—and Americans received clear pictures back from France and Britain.

In 1968 French President Charles de Gaulle appointed Maurice Couve de Murville premier of France, replacing Georges Pompidou who became president in June, 1969.

A thought for the day: Sir William Osler said: "Tact is the saving virtue without which no woman can be a success."

Clean Air Hearing

Remember, There's More Than One Way To Use The Trumps

No matter how careful you are, sooner or later somebody will tell you with a serious face that 10,000 men are walking the streets of London because they forgot to draw trumps. You can reply with an equally serious face that 83,000 men (the exact number is 93,237) are walking the streets of New York because they drew trumps too quickly.

HEART CAPTURES

South won the first trick with the ace of hearts and thought about the men in London. He drew three rounds of trumps and then started on the diamonds.

When two top diamonds and a diamond ruff failed to set up the suit, South had to get back to dummy with the queen of hearts and lead a club toward his king. The ace was behind the king of clubs, and the defenders defeated the contract with two club tricks. Another good hand down the drain, all because declarer didn't know which city to think about.

VITAL ENTRY

After drawing two rounds of trumps South should discontinue the suit. Mind you, he knows that one trump is still out, but he cannot afford to draw that trump at the moment. South must first cash the top diamonds and ruff a diamond with a top trump (to guard against an overruff).

Only now can South afford to lead a third trump. This not only draws West's last trump but also puts declarer in position to ruff a second low diamond. By this time dummy's jack of diamonds is good, and South can return to dummy with the queen of hearts to discard a club on the jack of diamonds.

SLIGHT RISK

There is a slight risk in leaving the last trump out because West might have had a singleton diamond, but it is foolish to consider only this risk and disregard all other risks. After all, South didn't accomplish very much with his cautious play of drawing all of the trumps.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one diamond, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ 6
♥ 8 7 3 2
♦ Q 10 9 3
♣ Q 9 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You have four points in high cards and three points for the singleton (when you have strong support for partner's suit). Since you can make only one response and intend to pass thereafter (unless forced), you must describe your hand with a diamond raise rather than by bidding the mangy heart suit.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Leukoplakia A Lesion On Mouth That Could Be Pre-Cancerous

VAN DELLEN

Leukoplakia is a white (leuko) plaque that develops in the oral cavity. The lesions are caused mainly by irritation and are seen on the inside of the cheeks, palate, tongue, and lips. Many are regarded as pre-cancerous because they undergo malignant changes when allowed to continue growing.

Common causes include irritation from the sharp edges of a dental cavity, poor restorations of teeth, dentures that do not fit, malocclusions, and bad oral habits. Tobacco also plays a role, including cigaret smoking, chewing, and the use of snuff. In India, the use of betel leaf, bidi, ganja, or khaini (raw slaked lime) is causative. Alcohol, and chemical or thermal irritants do the same.

THE PLAQUES usually begin as a sore spot in the mouth provoked by highly seasoned, very hot foods and certain drinks. Leukoplakia is more likely to develop in persons suffering from glandular problems and from nutritional deficiencies, including lack of vitamins and iron. Men over 40 are favored.

The relationship of these lesions to malignancy is more than coincidental. It is true that not many people with the usual forms of oral cancer tell of having a pre-existing leukoplakic lesion. In addition, a biopsy of the lesion usually shows cells that are associated with irritation.

OCCASIONALLY THERE IS definite evidence of pre-cancerous, or cancerous development. This is mentioned because it is impossible to tell whether the white plaque is dangerous or innocuous unless a piece is sent to the laboratory for study. In large lesions, several biopsies are done from different parts of the lesion because some areas may not show malignant change.

Biopsy determines the treatment. The benign plaque usually disappears when the local irritants are eliminated. Some of these lesions contain yeast organisms and respond to nystatin. Should malignancy exist, excision or radiation is needed.

RUPTURED DISK

C. W. writes: Is there a concrete way of determining whether a disk has slipped beyond the shadow of a doubt?

REPLY

Disks usually don't slip that far. Two tests are available—the myelogram and the diskogram. The latter particularly offers definite evidence that the protruding material is pressing against the spinal cord. For the record, we might add that disks do not slip. They rupture and protrude against the spinal cord or nearby nerves.

RECURRING WART

S. T. writes: I had a wart on my forefinger which previously disappeared. It came back on the same finger, except it is now on the other side. Please explain.

REPLY

Warts are contagious during the early stages and I assume that the causative virus came from the original wart or from another source. These lesions usually develop over an area where the skin has been injured.

KIDNEY X-RAY

W. B. writes: What is an IVP X-ray?

REPLY

A kidney X-ray. A special solution that is known to be excreted by the kidneys and that shows up under X-ray is injected into a vein of an arm. The solution gets into the urinary tract and outlines the kidneys, ureters, and bladder. From the films, the doctor is able to determine whether the kidneys are working properly or an obstruction exists.

CORONA BOREALIS

STARS ABOVE

Corona Borealis Small But Delight To Viewer

By SHERMAN WALKER

Corona Borealis, the Northern Crown, is another one of the small and pretty constellations that is a delight to find and identify. It is squeezed in between two large figures, Ophiuchus and Bootes, and is just a little bit hard to find.

Once found, though, you will wonder how you could have missed it — and you can locate it on later nights with ease.

To find the Northern Crown, face southward at 10 p.m. Daylight Savings Time and look at the region of the sky that is a short distance south of the overhead point.

The brightest star of this figure, Alpha Coronae Borealis, is also known as Gemma (not to be confused with Gamma) because it is the Gem of the crown.

There is a variable star in this figure which doesn't seem to follow any of the rules that apply to the various kinds of standard variables. Astronomers call it R Coronae Borealis.

It shines at magnitude 5.5 for a long but unpredictable period. Then it will begin to fade, and in a short time it will be down to magnitude 12, requiring a powerful telescope to see it.

Almost immediately it will begin to brighten again and in a few months will be back to its original brilliance. No explanation is known for its action. This star is not in the chain of stars that make up the crown proper, but is in the region that is enclosed by them.

Ex-Convict Held In Co-Ed Killing

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A 28-year-old ex-convict has been held for trial in the slaying of a University of Michigan co-ed.

After a preliminary hearing yesterday, District Judge S. J. Elden ruled that Ernest R. Bishop must face a first degree murder charge in court July 25.

Miss Margaret Anne Phillips, 25, who had befriended the convicted rapist, was fatally shot last Saturday in her apartment. She was the seventh young woman, and the third University of Michigan coed, slain in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area in the last 23 months.

A co-ed who occupied a room next to that of Miss Phillips testified at the hearing she heard a man's voice and a series of shots. A police detective said he found Bishop's fingerprints on a coffee cup in the apartment.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Late Movies Keep Alive 'Real Stars'

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Televised movies have kept alive the memory of many a veteran actor who deserved praise for solid work, but might otherwise have been forgotten.

This is particularly true of some of the lesser leading men, who were overshadowed in the presence of stars.

Randolph Scott, for instance, was known pretty much as a B-Western star, and that's really what he was, of course, even if he did look great in white tie and tails.

But just because he appeared in B-Westerns, that doesn't mean he wasn't—and isn't—a pleasure to watch. He holds up well over the long haul, one of the more courtly and attractive headliners in pioneer epics.

George Raft really was terrific in a movie way that counts—nobody was ever like him. He represented a whole era and an entire milieu, and he is easy to take in reruns.

Victor Mature was known, through publicity, for his beefcake photos and his excellent build. But forget those epics he appeared in—biblical and the like—and get a load of him as a sympathetic tough guy in those earthy, wordly little dramas set in New York, in the Broadway scene of promoters, characters and caps. He was good. Plenty good.

Jack Oakie and Jack Carson were probably two of the most pleasant, and peculiarly American, performers ever to hit the screen. Both gregarious, both great bluffers, both eminently vulnerable, they were everybody's best friends.

When it came to accented character acting, Oscar Homolka and Akim Tamiroff and Gregory Ratoff picked up countless movies by the bootstraps and rescued them from the blandness of countless forgotten leading men.

John Wayne, well, he was a pretty underrated performer for years too, despite being a star. Just catch him on those countless reruns, and watch a pro at work. And if you want to see a piece of star-like character acting that rates with the most memorable in movie history, go see him in "True Grit." I mean, it is a beautiful sight to see what he does in this picture. I know three liberals who went to see it and came out a couple hours later as conservatives.

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Mary Fischer, a University of Colorado student from Mankato, Minn., got a job here as a gasoline station attendant to help pay for her college expenses. She soon was made manager of the station.

Art School's Founder Dies

PASADENA (AP) — Mrs. Nelbert M. Chouinard, founder of the famed Chouinard Art Shcool which groomed such talents as designer Edith Head, is dead at the age of 90.

Mrs. Chouinard, who died yesterday, after being in failing health, founded the school in 1921 in a three-room frame house. Her capital was a $75 monthly widow's pension from World War I and $200 cash.

More than 40,000 students had attended Chouinard on her retirement in 1961. Graduates included Miss Head; Millard Sheets, painter-designer; Mary Best, fashion designer; Charles Jones, director-producer, and cartoonist Virgil Partch.

She began art studies in her home town of Montevideo, Minn., and was graduated in 1904 from Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at St. James Episcopal Church, South Pasadena.

Attack Made On Medicine Labels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-thirds of the medicines used by Americans are badly labeled and a large percentage are partly or totally ineffective, says a government-sponsored study.

The three-year $1 million study of 4,000 drug preparations — 85 per cent of them prescription, 15 per cent sold over the counter — was released yesterday by the Food and Drug Administration. The drugs represent 80 per cent of the total sold.

Seven per cent of the drugs were found totally ineffective "for all cited claims." Others were found effective for only some of the diseases for which effectiveness was claimed.

Two-thirds of the drugs were found to have labels that "were poorly organized, repetitive, out of date, evasive and promotionally oriented," the study said.

Closing Of Campsites On Tam Criticized

The Marin County Board of Supervisors was asked yesterday to reprimand the state Department of Parks and Recreation for closing parts of Mount Tamalpais State Park to campers while failing to provide replacement sites.

Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation, presented a letter to the parks and recreation commission from Robert B. Hatch, district superintendent of the state department, in which Hatch said the recent closing of the Pan Toll and Bootjack campgrounds to overnight camping was due to vandalism, thefts and loitering by undesirables.

"The closing is not so deplorable because of the problems," Joske said, "but the fact is that there are no plans for any new campsites in Marin."

A total of 25 campsites was closed as a result of the state's action.

Joske said he was concerned over an apparent shift away from development of camping facilities toward construction of regional day parks close to metropolitan areas.

He said also that "there were priorities in Sacramento, and obviously parks is not one of them."

Joske told the commission he had written a critical letter to William Penn Mott, state parks and recreation director, but the commission felt that the board of supervisors should write one, too.

Senior Citizen Picnic Slated

A picnic for senior citizens in Armstrong Grove State Park on the Russian River Wednesday, will be sponsored by the San Rafael Goldenaires.

Reservations will be taken at the community recreation center in San Rafael through tomorrow. A bus will leave the center at Second and Brooks streets at 10 a.m. and return at 5 p.m. for picnic riders.

Billed as an "old fashioned" picnic, Andrew J. Snyder, director of parks and recreation, said picnickers should bring their own lunches, wear walking shoes and "dress sporty."

A JUDICIAL GOOF

Percy Learns Not To Tackle Dirksen

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, the 73-year-old sonorously mellifluous Republican floor leader, is going out of his way these days to refer to his much younger Illinois GOP colleague with significant sardonic indulgence.

There is good reason for that. Between Dirksen, a fourth-term veteran, and Sen. Charles Percy, 50-year-old first-termer, there has long been a barely concealed backstage feud. They have widely differed on issues, legislation, politics and patronage.

Currently, this last is now playing into Dirksen's hands.

A Percy choice for a prize appointment —a seat on the U.S. Court of Appeals — turned it down because of "pressing commitments to his law firm." But insiders attribute still another reason for the declination. They say Charles Bane, prominent Chicago lawyer, would have run head-on into torrid confirmation opposition due to a racial incident.

It involved the denial of an apartment to a Jewish family in the East Lakeshore Drive cooperative where Bane lives.

For public consumption, Percy is regretting Bane's withdrawal. In a press release, Percy characterized Bane as a distinguished lawyer who would have made "an outstanding judge." But privately, he is obviously embarrassed.

Before Percy can get approval for another selection for this patronage plum, he has to get Dirksen's nod. In other words, Dirksen now wields a veto over Percy.

That's a complete reversal in position.

A few months ago, Dirksen wanted another Chicago attorney, John Bickley, named U.S. attorney. Bickley belongs to the Dirksen wing of the Illinois GOP. Percy, who lists himself as a "liberal," let it be known he would vigorously oppose Bickley —if necessary would block him on the ground he was "personally obnoxious."

The White House immediately backed off. Not wanting to get involved in the acrimonious rowing between the two Illinoisans, it held up filling this job until they could get together on a selection.

When that will be is conjectural.

But Dirksen "has a hunch" it will be a lot sooner than it might have been before Percy's embarrassment over the Bane affair. As one Senate Republican, on good terms with both of them, chucklingly remarked, "Percy now has to do business with Ev, and he'll get around to doing it in short order. That's politics and he knows it. As the old saying goes, 'There are times when you have to rise above principle'."

Percy, politically ambitious (in 1968 he was an avowed vice presidential aspirant), differs with Dirksen on many major issues — the Vietnam War, antiballistic missiles, tough federal crackdown on campus disorders, which Percy opposes.

Percy also broke squarely with Dirksen over the selection of the Senate GOP whip. While Dirksen backed Sen. Roman Hruska, Neb., Percy voted for Sen. Hugh Scott, Pa., who won.

High noise levels affect the hearing of farmers as well as teen-agers addicted to "rock" music. Canadian research groups report that noisy farm tractors can cause permanent loss of hearing, and advise drivers to protect themselves with earmuffs or plugs.

Suisun Bay Gas Well Nod Sought

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — An application to construct a platform in Suisun Bay for gas well operation will be voted upon by the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission at 2 p.m. next Thursday in Room 1194 of the State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue.

The applicants, Standard Oil of California and Shell Oil Company, testified last month before the BCDC that an oil leak "cannot happen." The BCDC approved a similar platform last year before the leak in the Santa Barbara Channel, and commissioners made it clear last month that such applications no longer were routine.

The platform would be removed after the wells were depleted in about 15 years, according to the oil companies.

Radio Firm Not Eying Marin Job

Byron F. Bertram, vice president of Redwood Radio Telephone Corp., today said J. Mansfield Lewis, former head of the Marin County communications Department, was mistaken in implying Redwood would consider or might be considered for the job of providing communications service for the county.

Lewis, in Tuesday's Independent-Journal report on management-employee problems in the county department, said Redwood lacked the manpower to maintain the county communications system.

Redwood, Bertram said, provides only a mobile telephone service does no maintenance work and has no interest in the county system.

About half of the city of Bonn, Germany, was destroyed during World War II.

Happening Park Scene In New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—Those who know where the action is in New York on a Sunday afternoon make a beeline for Central Park's Bethesda Fountain, warm weather gathering spot of the young "in" crowd.

Hippies, yippies, teeny boppers, college students, dropouts, young professionals, and celebrities of every kind converge on the area from all directions for the weekly fun happening.

It's the most colorful and zaniest summer scene in New York—and it's all free.

What attracts the people?

"The people, man, the people," sighed one bearded youth to no one in particular as he viewed the passing parade one recent weekend. "Wow, just look at all the groovy people."

The fountain area is located midway between Fifth Avenue and Central Park West at about 72nd Street. It began to come alive about four years ago when Mayor John V. Lindsay and then Parks Commissioner Thomas Hoving initiated programs to revive New Yorkers' interest in the park.

Cars were banned from the roadways on summer weekends and certain weekday evenings, and bicyclists were allowed to roam in their place. A colorful outdoor cafe was established near the fountain and the rowboat fleet on the nearby lake put in top shape. It wasn't long before people began to rediscover the area and they liked what they saw. News of the good relaxing spot spread by word of mouth and every summer since then more and more people have made it a weekend mecca.

"I wouldn't miss a Sunday here for anything," one high school student said. "I mean, there just isn't any other place that swings like this."

Now, almost everyone who is anyone makes the scene at the fountain on Sunday afternoon. The activity begins picking up at noon and by 3 p.m., it's standing room only in the area with barely enough elbow room to strum a guitar.

The scene is a natural for photographers—amateurs and professionals. Dozens of cameras dangle from necks and rise almost in unison to eye level when an especially pretty girl or unusual outfit appears on the scene.

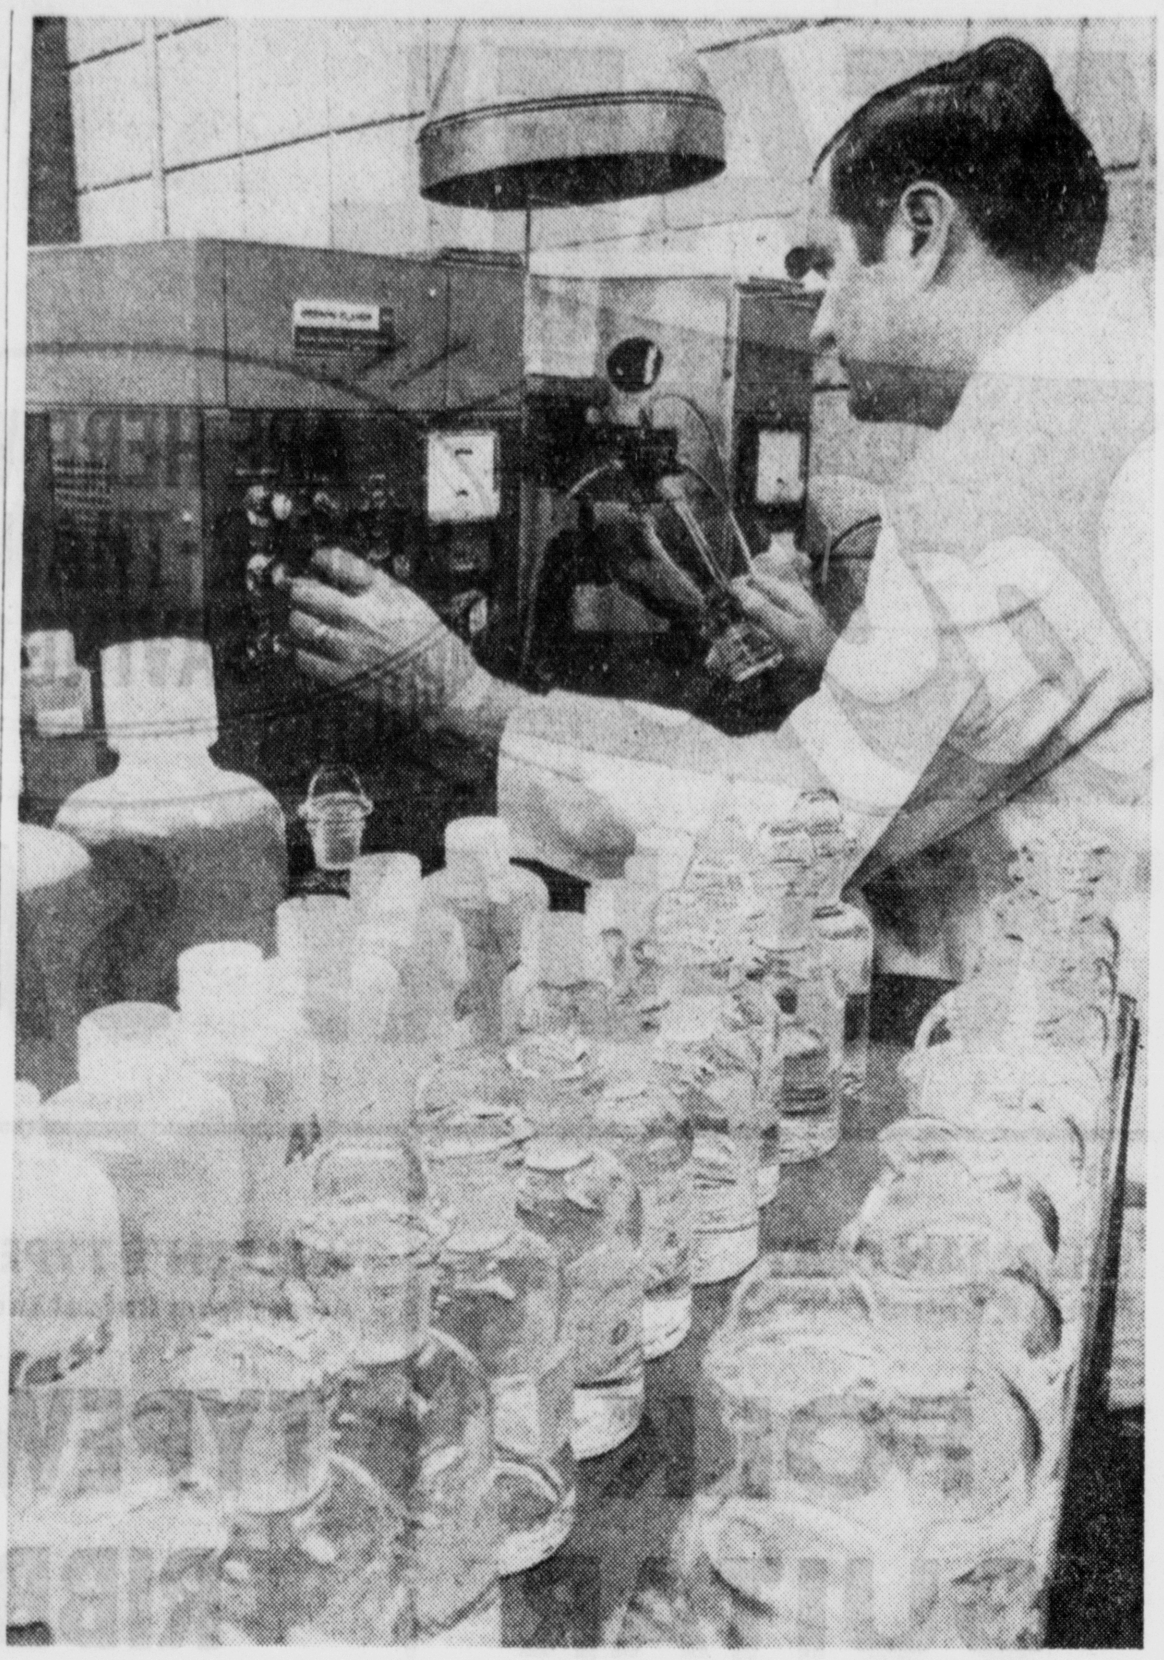
Many of the girls are knockouts—professional models or actresses who know all the tricks of the trade to make themselves attractive. Each week they try to outdo each other, knowing that if they are especially photogenic their picture has a good chance of appearing in some newspaper or magazine or on television or in the movies.

An increasing number of producers and directors on the prowl for new faces make the fountain area one of their regular hunting grounds. The fountain is frequently used as background for motion picture location shooting.

The scene's impact on one's eyes is matched by its assault on one's ears. Transistor radios and—despite regulations banning them—a myriad of musical instruments, bongos, guitars, and flutes, account for most of the din.

Around the edge of the area, people lounge on the hills, sleeping, sunbathing, talking, playing guitars and smoking. Some pot smoking does occur, but the ever-present four or five policemen generally discourage most people from openly turning on.

The water of the fountain is almost always dirty, littered with paper plates, cups and cigarette and gum wrappers.



ATOMIC SPECTROPHOTOMETER

Sylvania Electric Products Inc., has developed this sophisticated yardstick to measure metallic and semimetallic elements, detecting elements of fewer than one part per million. In the research laboratory, experiments are geared towards the physical and chemical properties, and electrical characteristics of metals, plastics, and other materials.

Drop Birds And Bees Gimmick, Group Told

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The birds and the bees should be kept out of sex education, a symposium on "Sex and Marriage in the Permissive Society" was told here.

One of the speakers said humans have a special relationship distinct from the purely biological drives of animals. "By teaching children about sex using animals as examples, this special relationship in human behavior can be overlooked or missed by children."

A Comeback For Zeppelins

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany (GF) — The last of Germany's once-famous zeppelin fleet will soon be taking to the airways again. Its owner, German salesman Siegfried Peters, has decided to make the cigar-shaped monster earn its keep via advertising.

The 163-foot-long ship "D-Lemo" was built here in 1958, and used by a chocolate manufacturer to advertise his products from the air.

With its skin badly dilapidated through service, the "D-Lemo" was put up for sale a year ago and Peters acquired it. He had the skin renovated and the ship filled with non-combustible helium instead of highly combustible hydrogen.

Numerous businesses have already announced their interest in using the "De-Lemo" for advertising purposes.

Peters, meanwhile, believes the airways will not long be reserved exclusively for his airship. He is convinced a new squadron is on the horizon.

Models have been designed that would be up to 980 feet long and atomic powered, able to handle tremendous freight loads or up to 500 passengers.

Interstate Highways Safest Road System

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The National Automobile Club reports statistics show auto travel on the interstate highway system is safer than other roads.

In 1967, 2.89 people died for each 100 million vehicle miles of travel on interstate highways, while other roads had a rate of 5.66 deaths.

Mighty Mississippi Poses Flood Threat

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—U.S. engineers say the Mississippi River could pump 3 million cubic feet of water at New Orleans during a flood period. That's more than double what the banks of the river could handle.

About 1,750,000 cubic feet of water per second would have to be diverted to one or more of the spillways located above New Orleans. The Bonnet Carre spillway immediately above the city has had to be opened three times—in 1937, 1945 and 1950.

New University Center To Probe Into The Mind

SAN DIEGO — Knowledge which will help man "to learn better, teach better, and think better" is the ultimate goal of University of California at San Diego's new Center for Human Information Processing.

The center's director, Dr. George Mandler, professor of psychology, says the new facility will operate as the psychology department's basic research arm, concentrating on such fundamental questions as:

How does the mind work?

How do we develop intellectual skills?

How does the mind receive and store information?

How is sensory information registered?

How does the mind recall data when needed?

How does it assemble bits of information in reaching a conclusion or making a decision?

Though the center has been in UCSD's plans for two years, it did not become a functioning reality until last month with receipt of a $91,000 grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to fund the first year of a projected five-year program.

Operating temporarily in Urey Hall, the center eventually will occupy 10,000 square feet of laboratory space on Muir Campus when Muir is completed in 1970.

An example of the phenomena to be explored, said Mandler, is the difference between short- and long-term memory.

"Experiments on short-term memory have shown that the average person cannot remember five items for more than 20 or 30 seconds, if his mind is immediately distracted by other problems," Mandler observed.

As for long-term memory, he said it is clear that man stores facts for future reference. "The problem is how to get them out."

"The mind's capacity for processing new information appears to be limited," he noted. "This limitation may be a protective mechanism. If man were to remember every sensory experience, his mind would be faced with an immense organizing task to which it might not prove equal. However, once stored, information is organized and seems to be available for long periods of time."

Mandler said the new UCSD facility will serve also as a clearing house for the findings of other investigators and institutions on information processing and as a conference site and workshop for investigators from other institutions.

Cigarettes And Fires

Special to the I-J

BERKELEY — Smoking is not only hazardous to health. It is often fatal to thousands of members of California's wildlife family, and adds to the destruction of nearly 40,000 acres of beautiful and valuable timber and wildland annually.

A look at the destructive power of forest fires and a study of forest fire loss figures reveal that smoking is the main cause of forest fires in the state, reports Ed Gilden, University of California Agricultural Extension forester, stationed at Berkeley, who suggests the following safety measures:

"1. When smoking in your automobile, camper, or truck, always use the ash tray. Never, but never, throw burning material out the window while you are traveling.

"2. In the woods or grassy areas, smoke only when stopping in a safe place. Clear a space free of flamable material, drop your ashes or cigaret butts there, and cover them with soil.

"3. Be sure your match is out. Then rub the match head between your fingers. It is safer to use a lighter, if you must smoke.

"4. Don't let your children play with matches."

In Gilden's words, "We have wildfires mainly because of people." Last year, in California, too many people took chances or were careless, and 7,200 fires resulted.

Japan Relays TV To Remote Areas

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan Broadcasting Company (NHK) has designed what it calls the smallest television relay station in the world. The station, about the size of a suitcase, automatically receives and retransmits television programs.

NHK will install the miniature relay stations in remote areas of Japan in order to reach more households. Engineers say NHK's 543 main television stations will reach 98 per cent of all television sets in the country when the small relay units are installed, an increase of 3 per cent.

U.S. Maintaining Over 2,000 Bases Overseas

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States now has 2,170 military bases overseas. Questions are being asked both in Congress and in the administration as to whether all of them are really needed.

The bases cover a total land area of 4,000 square miles. They are located in 29 foreign countries, the Panama Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Pacific Trust Territories and the Ryukyu Islands.

Last fiscal year they cost $13.5 billion to operate.

A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee headed by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., recently sent staff investigators to inspect U.S. bases in Europe and the Mediterranean.

"In almost every country visited, they found military facilities whose original mission had long since faded," Symington says.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., says much of the overseas base structure is a "hangover from World War II" which remains through "inertia."

According to the Pentagon, 343 of the bases are "major" and 1,927 are "minor." It had no precise definitions of these terms but said examples of "minor" bases would be navigational aids, small communication installations, missile sites, small housing compounds, remote training areas and small administrative buildings.

Examples of "major" bases are large air fields, shipyards and fleet facilities, principal headquarters and command complexes, and large communication, training and housing complexes.

The largest in area is Sondestrom Air Base, Greenland, 466,066 acres. One of the smaller ones is a radio relay at Donnersburg, Germany, one acre.

In addition to U.S. possessions, this country has bases in Australia, Bahamas, Barbados, Belgium, Bermuda, Canada, Cuba, Greenland (Denmark), Ethiopia, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Iran, Italy, Japan, Libya, Morocco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines, (Azores), Portugal, Taiwan, South Korea, South Vietnam, Spain, Thailand, Turkey and the United Kingdom.

In these countries the United States owns no land, but has agreements for shared or exclusive use of it.

A total of 1,074,983 U.S. military personnel are assigned to these countries and therefore are connected with these bases. This includes the 539,500 U.S. military men in South Vietnam.

U.S. civilians employed at the bases total 26,071; dependents 347,452; foreign nationals 256,383—a grand total of 1,704,889 military and assorted civilians.

Fifty-nine of the bases are in Vietnam.

Of the overall $13.5 billion annual operating cost, $2.6 billion is earmarked for Europe (excluding Greece, Turkey and the Sixth Fleet); $0.6 billion for Korea; $8.5 billion for Southeast Asia; and $1.8 billion elsewhere including Greece, Turkey and the Sixth Fleet.

Most of this money stays in America, because it is paid out to American-produced goods. But $4.5 billion of the total ends up in the hands of foreign countries or their nationals, and thus becomes a major item in the U.S. gold outflow or "balance of payments" problem.

Late in 1967 the Johnson administration ordered a joint State-Defense Department study of overseas bases. It was headed by retired Army Gen. Robert J. Wood and Robert McClintock, former U.S. ambassador to Argentina.

The Wood-McClintock group began work in March, 1968, and submitted on Dec. 19, 1968, a report which is now under review by the Nixon administration.

In essence, it says that the extent of U.S. bases abroad depends on what foreign policy this country chooses. It examines base requirements and costs of a range of alternative foreign policies — between "world policeman" and "fortress America." The report is still secret.

Further study has been done as part of a report by Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard to the National Security Council on non-nuclear forces at home and abroad. But officials say the investigation has a long way to go before major conclusions are reached.

Most of the U.S. base structure overseas has grown up since the beginning of World War II. It was nurtured by defense commitments the United States made in the late 1940s and 1950s with more than 40 countries.

At the heart of the bases problem are such policy questions as whether this country should reduce its defense commitments abroad, whether there are other military ways to provide security for the free world, and whether this country should rely more on non-military means to keep the peace.

New technology can reduce the need for bases. In-flight refueling has cut the need for fighter aircraft to make frequent stops along chains of bases across the Atlantic and Pacific on ferry flights. Technology also can create bases, such as listening posts.

Street Judge Role For Police

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A municipal advisory committee on crime and delinquency concludes that a policeman must be a careful arbitrator of social values.

"Law enforcement policy is made by the policeman," the committee reported.

"For policemen cannot and do not arrest all the offenders they encounter. It is doubtful they arrest most of them. A criminal code, in practice, is not a set of specific instructions to policemen, but a more or less rough map of the territory in which policemen work."

Merrie Olde England Ignores 20th Century

LONDON (UPI)—The 20th Century stops at the border of a 140-square mile wood area in southwest England.

It still is called the New Forest, although it was given its name by William the Conqueror nearly 900 years ago.

The 40,000 inhabitants of New Forest, under protection of the crown, have their own laws and their own names for things. For example, forest rangers are called "agisters," and laws are called "commons." They even have their own court and their own capital.

One particular law, called "The Common of Mast," gives New Forest dwellers the right to turn pigs loose to forage for acorns.

"The Commons of Estover" gives them the right to cut a specified quantity of wood from the forest. The wood, however, must be used at a house in the forest.

New Forest law allows anyone to take wood "by hook or by crook," meaning that one is entitled to any fallen wood that can be picked up or separated from trees without cutting. This right also applies to the picking of wild fruit and the use of running water.

"Rights of Turbary" permits the cutting of turf, for burning on the cottage hearth. Some cottages have a right to as many as 2,000 turves a year.

Another law gives a man the right to a home if he can build it in one day and have a fire in the hearth by the following morning.

The forest has hardly changed its appearance since the days of William the Conqueror, who turned it into his hunting ground and also gave it its name in 1079.

It was here in the glades, moors and marshes that his son, William Rufus, or William II, was killed by an assassin's arrow. Henry VIII used New Forest oak trees to build his navy, as did Queen Elizabeth I. New Forest timber carried Sir Francis Drake and Sir Walter Raleigh on their voyages of discovery and helped sink the Spanish Armada in 1588.

The forest is the home of the New Forest pony descendants of the original small hardy horses of ancient Britain.

Residents of the forest pay pony fees to an "agister" who tailmarks the animal and then gives the money to the clerk of the verderers.

Several times a year the forest verderers hold session in the 900-year-old court of Swainmote at Lyndhurst, the forest "capital." It is in this court, which once had powers of life and death, that all disputes between New Foresters are settled.

New Foresters are alarmed by enclosures which, they say, alter their way of life, though they cheerfully accepted at least one.

During the last war the army moved secretly into 8,000 sealed off acres to prepare the invasion of France in 1944.

Only recently were the last acres returned to the residents.

Woman Defies Armed Robber

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—Never underestimate the power of a woman—even when it comes to bank robberies.

Mrs. Rosemary Powers, 47, a bank teller, foiled an attempted stickup by diving on the floor and hitting the alarm button when a bandit stuck a gun in her face and said: "Give me your 50's, 20's and 10's."

The bandit said: "Get up off the floor," but Mrs. Powers stayed down. The gunman then fled empty-handed.

Foreman Finds New Tenants Already Nested

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Edward Swart, a foreman on the construction site of the highest building in Africa, now has two extra charges to watch over.

Swart discovered a pigeon nest in the completed 458-foot central tower of Johannesburg's new Standard Bank building, right inside a slot in which workmen were about to fit an 84-ton floor section. He had himself lowered to move the nest to another slot further down, only to repeat the tricky rescue operation as work proceeded from the top of the tower downwards.

Finally he made the two baby pigeons a home in the tower's storeroom, where he guards them and feeds them with seed. "I keep 20 pigeons at home and I've got what you call a soft spot for them," Swart explained.

Israeli Immigration

TEL AVIV (AP) — Immigration to Israel is expected to reach 40,000 in 1969, compared with 30,000 in 1968, the Jewish Agency said.

Wyoming Sharing Angling Area

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—The Wyoming Game and Fish Commission has agreed to swap fishing privileges in the Big Horn Canyon national recreation area between license holders of Montana and Wyoming.

Under the agreement, Wyoming fishermen will pay $3 for a stamp to fish the Montana portion of the lake and Montana anglers will pay $2 to fish in Wyoming.

The cost difference arises from the fact that Montana has more water on its side and Montana residents have to pay more for a fishing license.

New Type Of Sanitary Board

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—Expanding the Peace Corps into an International Volunteer Development Corps with volunteers from all nations has been suggested by a special U.S. government committee.

The committee recommended that "multinational teams of volunteers would work in the rural and urban ghettos of every nation in preserving pure water and air, eradicating illiteracy and ignorance, lessening disease, enhancing beauty..."

The committee, whose chairman was Dr. Paul R. Hanna, Stanford University professor of education, said the expanded corps might be organized through the United Nations.

Library Will 'Tape' History

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—First-hand accounts of important political events in California between the years 1925 and 1953 will be preserved on tape in a new five-year project by the Bancroft Library at the University of California.

The project calls for recording history "from those who were there" and will consist of verbatim accounts by those who can relate from first-hand knowledge exactly what happened and why.

Of special interest will be the California career of Earl Warren.

Saigon Redevelopment Funds From China

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Canadian Government will contribute about four-fifths of the cost of constructing a 152-unit housing complex in a suburb of Saigon devastated by the Tet offensive last year.

The South Vietnam government will finance the remainder. The Canadian government has already paid for rebuilding a 72-unit complex in the same area.

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Antique snuff boxes worth more than Rands 40,000 ($56,000) disappeared when a thief broke into Mrs. L. Whitman's suburban Pinetown home. Some of the 68 snuff boxes in the collection were more than 500 years old.

Stanford Students Invade Cliveden Home

MAIDENHEAD, England (UPI)—The new "Cliveden set" is made up of 80 Stanford University undergraduates.

At a cost of around $5,000 a year, Stanford has taken a 21-year lease on the very stately home of Cliveden beside the River Thames as an overseas campus.

The American youngsters live in the balustraded mansion where kings, queens and high society have gone before them. They study liberal arts in rooms where the Astor family held court. They hold discussions in others that echoed the talk of the weekend house parties of the famous "Cliveden set" of the 1930's, accused through their influence in politics and journalism of a hand in World War II because they supported the appeasement of Hitler.

USE KEELER POOL

And through the summer's warm weather, the younger Americans will use the swimming pool where Christine Keeler took a nude dip that fateful day of July 8, 1961, when a government scandal began over her acquaintance with John Profumo, then British war minister.

The new Cliveden set strolls over rolling lawns and sweeping drives where in the 18th Century the Duke of Buckingham duelled with the Duke of Shrewsbury; where a cricket ball killed Frederick, prince of Wales, in 1751.

The house, which burnt down and was rebuilt a century ago, was bought by William Waldorf Astor in 1893, who became a viscount when he gave up his American citizenship.

Several afternoons a week, the students share with tourists the gracious grounds and four main rooms of the house filled with suits of armor, tapestries on the walls, wood carvings on the ceiling and portraits of the Astor family.

A condition of the lease that the National Trust granted to Stanford was for the house to remain open to the public. The trust signed thankfully after taking three years to find a tenant that fulfilled the will of the 2nd Viscount Astor. In giving the house to the trust, he stipulated its use for 'Anglo-American purposes.

NEAR LONDON

The first batch of 52 boys and 28 girls at Cliveden are delighted to be only 25 miles from London, easy to reach for an evening's theater, instead of isolated 100 miles away at Harlaxton Manor which Stanford used until Easter.

They are less delighted with the British press for the impression given since they moved into Cliveden.

Lili Pratt, 20, of 910 Laythrop Ave., San Francisco, said, "The journalists tend to be very insulting and think we are rich Americans."

Cynthis Weber, 20, of 8125 Freedom Drive) El Paso, Tex., said, "they keep emphasizing how much money we are spending. They ask why we are studying here instead of back in the States. The thing is, you can study all you want. But until you experience another country, it's not the same.

"And there's something else—this stereotyped American image. One girl was chewing gum when she was going to be photographed by a newspaper. She wanted to take the gum out, but the photographer said: 'No. That would ruin the picture.'

"The thing is, the students do respect the building. We don't regard it as a playground."

Mike Duncheon, 20, of 22 Park St., Danville, Ill., said, "They have not made an unbiased effort to find out why we're here. In a way, it's understandable."

UNFORTUNATE

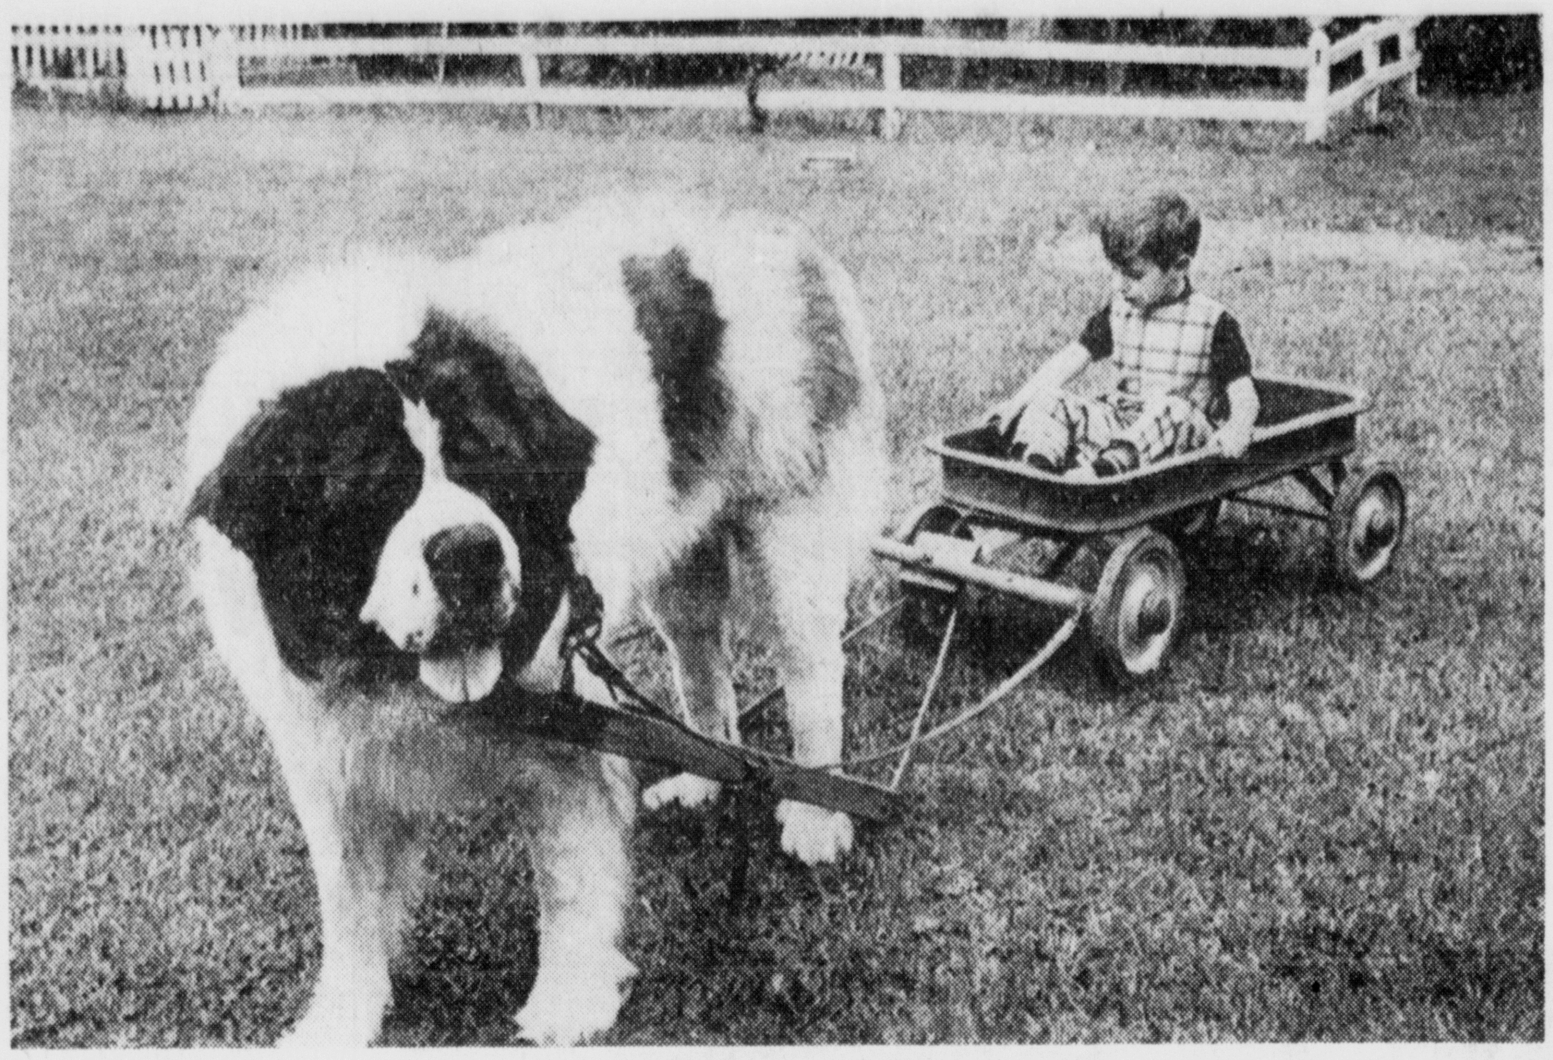
"I think the thing that really surprised me was that I had never thought of myself as being that much more wealthy than other people in the world. When America is spoken of, it is with the dollar sign. It's unfortunate but I guess it's true."

The students pay for a six-month spell in England exactly as much as they would in California: $2,040 for tuition, bed and board. These fees are considerably higher than those at English universities. The campus also advises students to bring $750 to cover a three-week vacation in Europe, two field trips to continental cities and spending money.

Cliveden is staffed by a British administrator, George Docker, two American professors in architecture and psychology, two English tutors in history and politics, plus visiting lecturers invited from British universities. They teach four days a week.

Illegitimacy Rate

CAPT TOWN, South Africa (AP) — More than one-third of all colored (mulatto) children born in South Africa are illegitimate, said Dr. Sally Woodrow, president of the National Council for Maternal and Family Welfare. The illegitimacy rate rises to eight out of 10 for colored teen-age mothers.



LEADING A HORSE'S LIFE

Gentle, a 7-year-old, 246-pound St. Bernard, gets the "mush!" signal whenever his master, 4-year-old Sean McGillen, wants to go for a ride. Sean's father, Dr. Frank L. McGillen of Grosse Point, Mich., has devised this special wagon hitch so Gentle can pull Sean around the yard.
